Hilda Moves Toward Coast

By GAVIN SCOTT

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Heavyweight Hurricane Hilda surprisingly shed a bit of its awesome power Friday night as it churned relentlessly on toward a date with a deserted Louisiana Gulf Coast.

The mighty storm winds, 150 miles an hour earlier in the day, dropped first to 130 m.p.h. and then to 120 m.p.h. as it drove north at a sluggish 6 m.p.h.

An ominous note was sounded when Hilda came within Weather Bureau radar range for the first time. Radar checks showed the hurricane — bigger in size than all New England — was slightly closer to New Orleans than had been thought.

The Weather Bureau's latest bulletin located the hurricane's eye at latitude 27.4, longitude 91.4 — about 210 miles southsouthwest of New Orleans.

"The movement has been slowly northward and no northeastward movement has been indicated," the bulletin said.

The drop in top winds was unexpected; the Weather Bureau had forecast an increase.

Rain squalls, bouncing along as Hilda's advance guard, buffeted the coastal marshlands with rising tides and winds up to 40 m.p.h.

Refugees from Hilda's expected fury choked roads leading north. Many carried their pets along, leaving a string of abandoned, ghost cities in Louisiana's Cajun country.

Frank G. Spiess, acting state Civil Defense director, estimated 125,000 persons had left the low-lying coastal areas with the count not yet complete. It was probably the largest mass evacuation in the history of Louisiana, a state long accustomed to killer hurricanes.

As Hilda ploughed north, uncertain of its exact land target, more than a million anxious residents of southern Louisiana kept a constant watch on its progress.

Morgan City, Cameron and communities along the Atchafalaya Bay at the end of "Hurricane Alley" resembled ghost towns as the rain-driven outer fringes of Hilda touched land. Other than a small caretaker staff, only cats and dogs were left at Cameron — where 500 lives were claimed by Hurricane Audrey in 1957.

Hurricane warning flags flew from the mouth of the Mississippi River west to the Texas border. A hurricane watch — one step below a hurricane warning — remained in effect from Mobile, Ala., to the Mississippi River and along the entire Texas coast.

Tides were expected to run three to six feet.

As the storm moved nearer, Civil Defense and other emergency forces stepped up activities to complete the mass evacuation of the coastal marshlands.

Three companies of Louisiana National Guardsmen went into the coastal areas to assist residents in getting out befor rising waters and tides seal off the last escape routes.

The job of feeding and caring for the mounting swell of refugees quickly became a formidable one.

The Red Cross sent in 10,000 cots and 20,000 blankets to the Lake Charles and Lafayette areas. Both the Salvation Army and Civil Defense massed supplies.

The New Orleans Levee Board had 10,000 sand bags filled for possible need.

Tulane University here and Nicholls State College in Thibodaux suspended classes. Tulane postponed indefinitely its Saturday night football game with Duke in the Sugar Bowl Stadium.

Frank G. Spiess, acting state Civil Defense director, at midmorning put the number of evacuees at more than 50,000. The rain - slick roads and highways continued to be clogged with fleeing residents.

Three officials from the Office of Emergency Planning flew into New Orleans to brief Civil Defense leaders on help available from the federal government.

Off-shore oil drilling rigs were secured Wednesday and their crews sent ashore.

More Votes Than Voters In Idaho

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)— Statistics gathered by the Legislative Council disclosed Friday there were more votes cast for president in 1960 than there were registered voters in four of Idaho's 44 counties.

Idaho's four electoral votes went to Republican Nominee Richard M. Nixon in 1960. Nixon lost the election to Democrat John F. Kennedy.

Information gathered as part of a reapportionment study showed voter participation in Butte, Cassia, Elmore and Fremont counties in the 1960 general election topped 100 per cent of the registered voters.

Research Director Myran Schlechte said the discrepancies came to light when his assistant, John McDevitt, compared the number of registered voters in each county with the number of costs cast in 1960 for president.

Mayor Says Tax Opponents Misinformed

Mayor Harry Hoth verbally lashed the "misinformation distributed by a few merchants" during a special council meeting Friday morning.

The mayor was referring to opposition of downtown businessmen to the two per cent sales tax recommended for 1965 by City Manager John Biery.

"Some of these people who are being so boisterous and obnoxious," said Hoth, "should run for City Council."

He said there had been no "secret meetings" on the 1965 budget, only executive sessions. He commended the councilmen for spending so much time in meetings.

The mayor promised no action on a sales tax until the Oct. 13 council session. He also said there would be a public hearing on any sales tax proposal.

Hoth said that objections could also be voiced to the sales tax a second time. This is because it would take two readings of an ordinance to pass the tax.

Councilwoman Betty Krouse said the public should turn out for more council meetings.

The Consumers Against Sales Tax met in City Auditorium Thursday to organize a campaign against the sales tax. They have said it would drive business out of the city.

Gooch Trial Set To Open Dec. 8

Richard Olon Gooch will be tried Dec. 8 for murder.

Gooch, 38, Ft. Carson is accused of the fatal shooting of his wife, Gloria Dean Gooch, 32, at the couple's home, 705 Main St. June 13.

He has already pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and although he has been found legally sane by Dr. Richard L. Conde he is still maintaining the two pleas and will be tried on both issues.

A second defendant, Ronald S. McIntosh, who has also been declared legally sane by Dr. Paul Draper, still stood on the two pleas in District Court Friday and his trial date on the sanity issue was scheduled for Nov. 12.

McIntosh, 19, Ft. Carson, has been charged with larceny of a motor vehicle. According to the information filed against him he stole a $900 car belonging to George S. Hoffman, Aug. 2.

In a companion case Larry Keith Wolfe, 20, Ft. Carson, has also pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the charge. His psychiatric examination has not yet been completed and he will appear in District Court towards the end of this month.

U.S. Drops Spy Case to Keep Counterspy Secrets

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—The government on direct, urgent orders from Washington suddenly and suprisingly Friday dropped its federal spy case against a Russian mystery couple—indicating it did not want to bare its counterspy secrets of the cold war in open court.

The defendants had time only to exchange a congratulatory kiss before they were picked up by immigration authorities, to await deportation proceedings. The woman's eyes were filled with tears.

The development stunned Brooklyn courtroom, where a jury of 11 men and one woman had just been completed in the fifth day of the espionage trial of Alexandre Sokolov, 41, a Russian of vague background, and his 34-year-old wife, whose name is not even known to

Ike Claims Campaign Not Right

NEW YORv (UPI) —Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Friday that "something's wrong" with the presidential campaign.

"I can't define the issues," the titular head of the Republican party told United press International in an exclusive interview during a visit to the New York World's Fair. "I just can't define the issues," he repeated.

The former Chief Executive at first said he "didn't want to get into politics" during his daylong tour of the fair grounds, but a serious, preoccupied look came over his face and he added without further questioning:

"The campaign is getting to be a confused state of affairs."

He was asked if he was worried because President Johnson, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater and their running mates were becoming "too personal."

"I don't know — something's wrong," Eisenhower replied. "It's confusing."

Eisenhower's remarks were terminated by a group of well-wishers. Wherever he, his wife Mamie, and their entourage went there were cheers from the thousands who recognized them. The former president's serious mood disappeared and he resumed his usual smiling countenance.

3 Sentenced By Judge Calvert

Three defendants were sentenced in District Court Friday by Judge William M. Calvert.

Larry Wayne Newlander, 22, Ft. Carson, was given one year in County Jail for assault and battery.

Newlander was first charged with attempting to commit aggravated robbery and alleged to have tried to take money from Arthur Ray Haas, Nov. 11, 1963.

On Aug. 22 the district attorney's office reduced the charge to the lesser offense and the defendant pleaded guilty.

Lloyd L. Pearson, 41, 2226 Frontier Dr., received a suspended sentence of two to three years in the State Penitentiary and was placed on probation for no account check.

He was accused of writing a $15 check July 26 and giving it to Simms Super Market in Security. Testimony was given

LBJ Promises White House Peace Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson promised Friday to call a White House conference on peace in 1965—if he's elected.

"You can't be a statesman unless you get elected," Johnson told several hundred government officials and private citizens who watched him sign a proclamation designating 1965 as International Cooperation Year.

The President, appearing before the group, said:

"If I am here — I'm speaking now politically and not physically — I intend next year to call a White House conference to search, explore and thoroughly discuss every conceivable approach and avenue of cooperation that could lead to peace."

Johnson called on his listeners, who included a number of prominent Republicans, to dedicate themselves to the cause of cooperation and peace.

But he said that if they take his advice, they can expect to be labeled idealists, crackpots or worse than that by some people.

"Some may say you're sort or hard and don't know what things are all about," he went on.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, Republican rival of Johnson in the presidential campaign, has charged that the chief executive is "soft on communism."

Johnson gave no details on the planned White House conference. Such sessions normally bring together prominent private citizens to discuss problems and topics of major concern under official auspices. The role of conferees on such occasions has been advisory.

Barry Promises North Atlantic Conference

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater pledged Friday night that one of his first acts as president would be to call a "North Atlantic conclave" to unify the grand alliance for "the struggle against Communist domination."

He called his proposal "the

Two Indicted In Civil Rights Murder Case

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — A federal grand jury Friday returned two indictments in connection with the slaying of three civil rights workers at Philadelphia, Miss., this summer.

But U. S. District Judge Sidney S. Mize ordered the grand jury "not to reveal any information about this case until the defendants are placed under arrest."

Thus the jury, completing a two-week investigation, refused to release the names of the persons indicted until the FBI arrests them.

"I think it would be wise to keep it secret now," said Mize, "As soon as the first defendant is arrested, of course, then it will be public."

There was also no indication as to the charge leveled in the indictments. The jury has been hearing evidence in the slayings of Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, and Negro James Chuney 22, of Meridan, Miss.

The men disappeared June 21,

Ford Warns Of Big Government

The Johnson Administration never tells the American public that a government big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take everything you have, according to to Republican Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

Ford spoke Friday night at a $50-a-plate dinner in the main dining room of the Broadmoor Hotel in a fund raising event for the local Republican party. About 300 attended.

Also on the program was Cong. J. Edgar Chenoweth, Republican representative from this district.

"The people are finally beginning to realize that the radical elements of the Democratic party controls the White House and Congress," he declared.

"The Democratic party is dominated by radicalism, big city bosses, and now the Texas element, but the Republican party is the party the American people want," Ford stated.

The Republican party is becoming a truly national party, and this is reflected nationwide, he claimed. Ford said he sees evidences of growing party unity. "Divided we cannot win, but united we cannot fail," he told the enthusiastic crowd as he emphasized the unit theme within the party.

He took a solid swing at the pollsters and newspaper columnists who have Arizona Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, the Republican presidential candidate, far behind Pres. Lyndon B. Johnson as they point toward the Nov. 3 election.

"This is an illusion created by Democratic leadership to prevent the voters from looking at the issues," Ford stated.

He accused the Democrats of smearing the Republican party to hookwink the American people.

Ford declared it was the Republican responsibility to carry the cause, the issues and the record to the American people.

"One of the vital issues today," he said, "is that Democrats have promised more and given less in this four-year administration than any adminis-

Campaign Issues Predicted

By LEWIS HAWKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional adjournment dam burst Friday and submerged chances for 1964 action on health care for the elderly and a $1-billion revival program for Appalachia.

But at least one of these two prime administration objectives is expected to bob to the surface as an issue in the Nov. 3 election.

The members' basic urge to get riding quickly in the big vote roundup set in motion a swift windup of more-or-less noncontroversial business. And this opened the way for ending a historic session which lasted nearly 10 months and gave President Johnson about 80 per cent of the wide-ranging legislative program which forms the foundation for his bid for a continued White House lease.

A deadlock in the senate-house conference on a bill raising Social Security retirement payments by $5 to $7 a month blocked house action on a Senate amendment calling for a system of health care for the

U.S. Drops Spy Case to Keep Counterspy Secrets

By ARTHUR EVERETT

NEW YORK (AP)—The government on direct, urgent orders from Washington suddenly and suprisingly Friday dropped its federal spy case against a Russian mystery couple—indicating it did not want to bare its counterspy secrets of the cold war in open court.

The defendants had time only to exchange a congratulatory kiss before they were picked up by immigration authorities, to await deportation proceedings. The woman's eyes were filled with tears.

The development stunned Brooklyn courtroom, where a jury of 11 men and one woman had just been completed in the fifth day of the espionage trial of Alexandre Sokolov, 41, a Russian of vague background, and his 34-year-old wife, whose name is not even known to SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh said Friday he expects to give up the premiership for duty in the armed forces upon transfer of governmental powers to civilians, but could be drafted to stay on.

The 17-man National Council, formed last month to handle the transition from military rule, is scheduled to take over Oct. 27.

Gooch Trial Set To Open Dec. 8

Richard Olon Gooch will be tried Dec. 8 for murder.

Gooch, 38, Ft. Carson is accused of the fatal shooting of his wife, Gloria Dean Gooch, 32, at the couple's home, 705 Main St. June 13.

He has already pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity and although he has been found legally sane by Dr. Richard L. Conde he is still maintaining the two pleas and will be tried on both issues.

A second defendant, Ronald S. McIntosh, who has also been declared legally sane by Dr. Paul Draper, still stood on the two pleas in District Court Friday and his trial date on the sanity issue was scheduled for Nov. 12.

McIntosh, 19, Ft. Carson, has been charged with larceny of a motor vehicle. According to the information filed against him he stole a $900 car belonging to George S. Hoffman, Aug. 2.

In a companion case Larry Keith Wolfe, 20, Ft. Carson, has also pleaded innocent and innocent by reason of insanity to the charge. His psychiatric examination has not yet been completed and he will appear in District Court towards the end of this month.

Ike Claims Campaign Not Right

NEW YORv (UPI) —Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower said Friday that "something's wrong" with the presidential campaign.

"I can't define the issues," the titular head of the Republican party told United press International in an exclusive interview during a visit to the New York World's Fair. "I just can't define the issues," he repeated.

The former Chief Executive at first said he "didn't want to get into politics" during his day-long tour of the fair grounds, but a serious, preoccupied look came over his face and he added without further questioning:

"The campaign is getting to be a confused state of affairs."

He was asked if he was worried because President Johnson, Sen. Barry M. Goldwater and their running mates were becoming "too personal."

"I don't know — something's wrong," Eisenhower replied. "It's confusing."

Eisenhower's remarks were terminated by a group of well-wishers. Wherever he, his wife Mamie, and their entourage went there were cheers from the thousands who recognized them. The former president's serious mood disappeared and he resumed his usual smiling countenance.

3 Sentenced By Judge Calvert

Three defendants were sentenced in District Court Friday by Judge William M. Calvert.

Larry Wayne Newlander, 22, Ft. Carson, was given one year in County Jail for assault and battery.

Newlander was first charged with attempting to commit aggravated robbery and alleged to have tried to take money from Arthur Ray Haas, Nov. 11, 1963.

On Aug. 22 the district attorney's office reduced the charge to the lesser offense and the defendant pleaded guilty.

Lloyd L. Pearson, 41, 2226 Frontier Dr., received a suspended sentence of two to three years in the State Penitentiary and was placed on probation for no account check.

He was accused of writing a $15 check July 26 and giving it to Simms Super Market in Security. Testimony was given

LBJ Promises White House Peace Meeting

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson promised Friday to call a White House conference on peace in 1965—if he's elected.

"You can't be a statesman unless you get elected," Johnson told several hundred government officials and private citizens who watched him sign a proclamation designating 1965 as International Cooperation Year.

The President, appearing before the group, said:

"If I am here — I'm speaking now politically and not physically — I intend next year to call a White House conference to search, explore and thoroughly discuss every conceivable approach and avenue of cooperation that could lead to peace."

Johnson called on his listeners, who included a number of prominent Republicans, to dedicate themselves to the cause of cooperation and peace.

But he said that if they take his advice, they can expect to be labeled idealists, crackpots or worse than that by some people.

"Some may say you're sort or hard and don't know what things are all about," he went on.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, Republican rival of Johnson in the presidential campaign, has charged that the chief executive is "soft on communism."

Johnson gave no details on the planned White House conference. Such sessions normally bring together prominent private citizens to discuss problems and topics of major concern under official auspices. The role of conferees on such occasions has been advisory.

Johnson departed from his

By JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

PEORIA, Ill. (UPI) — Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater pledged Friday night that one of his first acts as president would be to call a "North Atlantic conclave" to unify the grand alliance for "the struggle against Communist domination."

The senator said, in a speech prepared for delivery in the Bradley University Field House, that he would first name a blue-ribbon U. S. delegation to meet with representatives of other nations to plan the conference.

He called his proposal "the

Two Indicted In Civil Rights Murder Case

BILOXI, Miss. (UPI) — A federal grand jury Friday returned two indictments in connection with the slaying of three civil rights workers at Philadelphia, Miss., this summer.

But U. S. District Judge Sidney S. Mize ordered the grand jury "not to reveal any information about this case until the defendants are placed under arrest."

Thus the jury, completing a two-week investigation, refused to release the names of the persons indicted until the FBI arrests them.

"I think it would be wise to keep it secret now," said Mize, "As soon as the first defendant is arrested, of course, then it will be public."

There was also no indication as to the charge leveled in the indictments. The jury has been hearing evidence in the slayings of Michael Schwerner, 24, and Andrew Goodman, 20, of New York, and Negro James Chuney 22, of Meridan, Miss.

The men disappeared June 21,

Ford Warns Of Big Government

The Johnson Administration never tells the American public that a government big enough to give you everything you want is big enough to take everything you have, according to to Republican Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan.

Ford spoke Friday night at a $50-a-plate dinner in the main dining room of the Broadmoor Hotel in a fund raising event for the local Republican party. About 300 attended.

Also on the program was Cong. J. Edgar Chenoweth, Republican representative from this district.

"The people are finally beginning to realize that the radical elements of the Democratic party controls the White House and Congress," he declared.

"The Democratic party is dominated by radicalism, big city bosses, and now the Texas element, but the Republican party is the party the American people want," Ford stated.

The Republican party is becoming a truly national party, and this is reflected nationwide, he claimed. Ford said he sees evidences of growing party unity. "Divided we cannot win, but united we cannot fail," he told the enthusiastic crowd as he emphasized the unit theme within the party.

He took a solid swing at the pollsters and newspaper columnists who have Arizona Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, the Republican presidential candidate, far behind Pres. Lyndon B. Johnson as they point toward the Nov. 3 election.

"This is an illusion created by Democratic leadership to prevent the voters from looking at the issues," Ford stated.

He accused the Democrats of smearing the Republican party to hookwink the American people.

Ford declared it was the Republican responsibility to carry the cause, the issues and the record to the American people.

"One of the vital issues today," he said, "is that Democrats have promised more and given less in this four-year administration than any adminis-

Campaign Issues Predicted

By LEWIS HAWKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Congressional adjournment dam burst Friday and submerged chances for 1964 action on health care for the elderly and a $1-billion revival program for Appalachia.

But at least one of these two prime administration objectives is expected to bob to the surface as an issue in the Nov. 3 election.

The members' basic urge to get riding quickly in the big vote roundup set in motion a swift windup of more-or-less noncontroversial business. And this opened the way for ending a historic session which lasted nearly 10 months and gave President Johnson about 80 per cent of the wide-ranging legislative program which forms the foundation for his bid for a continued White House lease.

A deadlock in the senate-house conference on a bill raising Social Security retirement payments by $5 to $7 a month blocked house action on a Senate amendment calling for a system of health care for the

Penrose to Get Administrator

John Hurley of Omaha has been named assistant administrator of Penrose Hospital and will begin his duties later this month, it was announced Friday.

Hurley, married and father of two children, has been associate administrator of Archbishop Bergan Mercy Hospital and St. Catherine's Hospital, Omaha, since 1956.

Hurley holds a fellowship in the American College of Hospital Administrators and is a Preceptor for the School of Hospital Administration at St. Louis University.

He was editor of the Nebraska Hospital News from 1954 to 1959 and is the author of ten articles in national hosptial journals.

Hurley is a past-president of the Nebraska Hospital Association and is currently secretary of the Omaha Hospital Council.

tration in history."

Further, he added, that this administration "will go down in objective history as best known for its double talk."

"No amount of Johnson's wax can cover up these failures," he said.

Turning to American foreign policy and acts, he said, "In Viet Nam we are losing the war because when this administration took over in 1961 it changed the policies set up by Pres. Eisenhower."

The Johnson administration has spent $700 million in Viet Nam and increased the military personnel from 500 to 20,000 — yet "we are losing because this administration offers no new solution," he said.

The president is sweeping the vital Viet Nam issue under the rug, he said.

However, Ford said he is confident that the Republicans can win the war in Viet Nam after they take over the presidency in January.

The Republicans must be given the responsibility of the stewardship of America in the next four years because the Democ'crats have been strong on promises and woefully weak on performances, according to Ford.

When President Eisenhowre turned out the reigns of the country over to the Democrats in 1961 ,the country was strong, he said, but since then there has been erosion in many areas.

"This erosion could harm our potentialities for peace," he charged.

He disagreed with the administration policy on defense, saying that he believes in a "mixed force" instead of "putting all of our eggs in one basket."

This could lead to a serious deterrent gap, and has already shown up because our margin of strength over the Soviets has been narrowed," he declared.

Ford said the Republicans should tell the truth, tell it often and tell it with conviction between now and election because there is very little honest substance coming out of the White House.

years, Khanh outlined his position at a news conference.

Relaxed and in apparent good humor, he told newsmen: "I have said many times, and I will repeat, that I will go back to the ranks of the armed forces, certainly before Oct. 27. But I say this: If the people want me and call me and tell me to serve in the government, of course as a citizen I cannot refuse."

Khanh also said he has full power over the armed forces. He denied he was under the control of any group such as the Young Turks, the young generals who remained loyal to him Sept. 13.

Khanh said an investigation of the leaders of that coup is completed and some of them may get the death sentence from a military tribunal.

Concerning the recent rebellion of about 2,000 mountain tribesmen armed and schooled by U.S. Army Special Forces troops, Khanh said his government is reviewing with the U.S. Embassy the whole program of training the tribesmen as irregulars for the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

He renewed charges that the insurrection was sparked and sustained by "three of four foreigners." He acknowledged there had been a difference of opinion between himself and American authorities on the use of force against the tribesmen who gave up when a Vietnamese army task force seized their headquarters camp Monday.

He declined to name the foreigners.

Bid Ed Goes Back to Aid Candidate

DENVER (UPI)— Former Colorado Gov. Edwin (Big Ed) C. Johnson returned to the political trail Wednesday to stump for an old friend—Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo.

"Wayne isn't too well known in northeast Colorado, and I thought I'd go up there and put in a word or two for him," said Johnson, who also is a former U.S. senator.

Aspinall's 4th Congressional District was enlarged this year by the GOP-dominated Legislature in a move to equalize population of the state's four districts as ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The addition of the northeast corner, heavily Republican, not only makes the district the largest geographical district in the state, but also makes the race tougher for the veteran Aspinall, chairman of the House Interior Committee.

Johnson, the only man who ever carried every Colorado county in an election, said he would campaign for his fellow Democrat in Greeley, Holyoke, Crook, Haxtun and Julesburg this week.

Aspinall's opponent is State Sen. Ed Lamm, R-Grand Junction.

32 Hurt in North Irish Street Fight

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Thirty-two persons were injured Thursday night in a street battle between police and Irish nationalists after officers removed the Irish Republic's flag from a building.

It was the worst outbreak of violence in recent years in British-ruled Northern Ireland. Fifteen demonstrators were arrested.

The injured included 20 policemen. One suffered a fractured skull. All but five of those hurt were released after treatment.

The battle took place in West Belfast after police raided the Republican party's campaign headquarters and for the third time took down the tricolor flag. Flying of the Irish flag is banned in Northern Ireland, which Irish nationalists want to unite with the republic.

West Belfast is the only one of Northern Ireland's 12 districts where the Republican party is given a chance to elect a member of the British House of Commons in the Oct. 15 election.

Silver Dollar Probe Is Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Florida congressman said Friday the Secret Service is investigating reports that silver dollars of little value to collectors have been substituted for valuable dollars in the Treasury's vaults.

Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House monetary affairs subcommittee, said the Treasury had asked the Secret Service to make the investigation.

Fascell said, however, Treasury officials had given him an inventory of the $3 million in silver dollars still in the Treasury. The inventory, showing dates and mint marks, indicated only a "relatively small number" of coins differed from descriptions on the bags in which they are kept, he said.

"The inventory was obtained to quiet rumors which have been circulating that some silver dollars having little numismatic value have been substituted for Carson city dollars of high market value in the Treasury vaults," Fascell said.

The exchange of silver dollars for silver certificates was suspended last March after a run on the Treasury had reduced the quantity on hand to about $3 million—mostly high prized dollars minted at Carson City, Nev.

Since that time the dollars have been under seal in the Treasury's vaults.

Fascell said Treasury officials told him that investigation had disclosed "no real evidence" of any substitution.

However, he said, the Secret Service had been ordered to make an "exhaustive investigation" despite the results of the inventory.

Six Killers Hunted By Acapulco Police

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Police are hunting six killers who escaped from the prison in Arcadina, near Acapulco, after a riot in which a police major was killed and a policeman and two prisoners were wounded.

The riot began Thursday when several convicts attacked and disarmed guards. Police reinforcements quelled the rioting after an exchange of shots.

The prisoners who escaped were serving terms for homicide.

constructive way to mobilize the free world."

Goldwater outlined the plan after giving the Peoria audience a replay of the speech in Cincinnati Tuesday in which he accused the Johnson administration of being "soft on communism" in policies around the world.

"One of my first acts as president will be to initiate a call for a North Atlantic conclave," he said. "That conclave will have a single object: to create a North Atlantic community unified in spirit, purpose and action.

"As the first step, I will name a blue-ribbon delegation of American citizens to meet with delegates from other NATO nations to plan the conclave. Those great statesmen of this nation who helped build NATO should join together in leading the American delegation.

"This is the constructive way to mobilize the strength of the free world in the struggle against Communist domination. This is the way of partnership with unity. This is the way toward a true Atlantic civilization."

The Peoria speech climaxed a full day of whistle stop campaigning for Illinois' 26 electoral votes. Beginning with an early morning rally in Cairo on the Mississippi River at the state's southern tip, Goldwater steamed his train northward through the center of the state. On the way he planted a new name tag on President Johnson: "Lydon-come-lately."

He told his audiences that the President has followed along on such Goldwater proposals as ending the draft, strengthening NATO, and helping the local law enforcement agencies. In Carbondale, home of Southern Illinois University, the Arizonan renewed his pledge to end the draft.

Goldwater kept up his attack on the administration's medicare program as congressional leaders abandoned efforts to pass it at this session. He said Johnson had tried to ram through a health care bill that would be "no help to anyone of any age."

He told trainside audiences Johnson's medicare would "get you into the hospital and that's the end of it." He said the bill did not provide expenses for doctor's fees and medicine.

In Peoria, Goldwater voiced his plan for a NATO conclave after stressing the combined strengths of the NATO nations and declaring: "If we are to meet the threat of communism — if we are to keep Khrushchev from burying us, we must move swiftly and resolutely to unify the free world. WE must pick up the pieces of our grand alliances and put them together again."

He said the alliances, including CENTO, SEATO and ANZUS as well as NATO, have "vanished one by one" over the last four years in what he called the Johnson administration's "drift, deception and deceit."

"And there, my fellow Americans, is the challenge of the hour," he said.

Medicare Appalachia Seem Dead

elderly under the Social Security program.

The Senate conferees refused to drop the rider, the House conferees refused to accept it and the resulting stalemate killed the whole bill. Political recriminations started immediately.

The Senate - approved program for a massive rehabilitation effort in the economically depressed, 11-state Appalachia area never reached the House floor.

The Democratic leaders decided it could not risk a knock-down fight in the face of heavy absenteeism and the remaining members' anxiety to plunge into the homefront political battles in which all the 435 house seats must be filled.

The administration seized quickly on the health care issue with Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., one of the conferees, telling nesmen:

"This means that the President will go to the people and ask a mandate on this issue. I think it assures that health care for the aged — a good plan — will be enacted next year."

But this brought prompt counterfire from Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., another conferee, who said:

"This means that congress is going home after having voted itself a $7,500 annual salary increase. . .while at the same time denying increases for those living on Social Security.

"This action demonstrates the political farce of this administration's claim to an interest in the welfare of our elderly citizens."

Administration leaders' feelers about recessing Congress until after the election generated no apparent support and the day's developments seemed to assure that the 88th Congress is at the end of its deliberations — barring recall by the President in a special session.

Johnson indicated he isn't especially unhappy at the prospect of quick adjournment.

Nearly an hour late for a White House ceremony to proclaim International Cooperation Year, Johnson apologized and said:

"I didn't know we had as many majority leaders in the Congress as we have. They're all hoping to go home this week. I hope they go home too."

Major closing-hours actions included:

— Senate passage and dispatch to the White House of a $1.8-billion bill extending the Defense Education Act until June 30, 1968, and broadening its scope to cover aid for the teaching of non-scientific subjects.

This measure also extends for a year the program of aid to school districts where children of federal personnel have swollen school enrollments.

The House passed this by a 320-20 count Saturday and the Senate accepted it Friday on a voice vote.

— Both chambers accepted a conference report on a $3.5-billion foreign aid authorization measure which sets a ceiling on such spending.

The House adopted it on a voice vote but critics of the conference report forced a roll call in the Senate after attacking conferees' omission of several Senate amendments. The bill then passed by 35 to 15.

Most noteworthy of the Senate amendments dropped by the conference committee was one expressing the "sense of Congress" that district courts should go slowly in implementing the supreme court's ruling that both chambers of state legislatures must be apportioned on a population basis.

But more criticism was stirred in the Senate by elimination of an amendment condemning persecution of Jews in the Soviet Union.

These actions left passage of two appropriations measures as the only remaining major hurdles on the adjournment road.

One is for $3.25 billion to provide the actual funds the foreign aid program set up by the authorization bill.

The other is a catch-all supplemental measure providing for $1.25 billion for various agencies including $861 million for the new anti-poverty agency. 8 prepared text in talking about the search for peace, saying "that five-letter word is the goal of all of us."

Looking over his audience, he said "it is the assignment of the century for each of you."

Still ad libbing, Johnson said he is very excited about trying to promote peace and he hopes his commission on heart disease, cancer and stroke can come up with some remedies "so we can all live beyond 100 and participate."

As he signed the proclamation carrying out a United Nations recommendation that member countries observe International Cooperation Year, Johnson summoned several well-known Republicans to stand behind him for a photo. When some of them hesitated, he exclaimed, "I'm not going to use this on a billboard — come on."

So up walked Henry Cabot Lodge, the 1960 Republican vice-presidential candidate and former ambassador to South Viet Nam; Christian Herter secretary of state in the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration; and James J. Wadsworth, U.S. representative at the United Nations during the early Eisenhower years.

After the ceremony, Johnson took Lodge back to his office with him.

U.S. authorities. The indictment called her Jane Doe.

The only explanation on record for abandon is the case real name is not even known to U.S. authorities. The indictment called her Jane Doe.

The only explanation on record for abandoning the case was "the interests of national security."

This was taken to mean that at the last minute the Justic Department decided not to go through with its plan to put FBI men and counterespionage agents on the witness stand. There they would face exposure to the world, both as to their identity and their methods of operation.

U.S. Dist. Judge John F. Dooling lauded the government's action in dropping the case, rather than continuing with "shapeless charges."

He noted that the U.S. Constitution provides that a defendant is entitled to be confronted by the witnesses against him.

The task of torpedoing the case fell to U.S. Atty. John P. Hoey, a portly, gray man with a gull, round face. He moved for the dismissal on telephoned instructions from Acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas deB. Katzenbach — instructions that appeared to have come without any forewarning to Hoey.

Hoey referred to the only two overt acts alleged in the indictment that connected the defendants with an international Soviet espionage ring. These were meetings that took place in New York and Washington on June 15-16, 1960.

Miller Charges LBJ Is Silent On Baker Case

By ROBERT T. GRAY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has remained silent on the Bobby Baker case because "he is fearful of more damning disclosures," Rep. William E. Miller charged today in the President's home state.

A Republican administration "will give the American people a full accounting of Lyndon Johnson's stewardship in the Bobby Baker case," the GOP candidate for vice president said in a campaign statement.

Miller slammed at the Democrats on the Bobby Baker issue after stating Thursday he would not be deterred from campaign debate by Democratic demands for an investigation of his connections with a business firm in his home district in Upstate New York.

Rep. W. Donlon Edwards, D-Calif., introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives calling for the investigation.

Miller said he would be delighted to testify before a House committee in any such probe.

The GOP candidate flew into Texas from Los Angeles early this morning for visits to San Antonio, Galveston and Houston, the final stops on a long campaign swing that has taken him through the West and the Midwest.

Miller's aides kept a cautious eye today on Hurricane Hilda, which was headed for the Texas coastal area.

In his statement, Miller said the Bobby Baker matter was "no longer just a case of a get-rich-quick Senate employe. It is a scandal going to the basic moral fiber of our government."

He said that Johnson had remained silent and had not requested a full and public investigation "of this sordid mess."

The GOP nominee continued: "Mr. Johnson, of course, will make no such demand, because he is fearful of more damning disclosures in the Baker case before the American people go to the polls on Nov. 3."

Miller said of the President: "Bobby was his boy, his boy only, and everyone in Washington knows it."

He quoted Johnson as praising Baker in 1956 and 1957, when Johnson was Senate majority leader and Baker was secretary to the Senate majority.

Baker resigned under fire and invoked the Fifth Amendment during an investigation of his private business dealings while in the Senate post. A new investigation was launched recently.

Miller said the Johnson administration was "ready to apply another coat of whitewash."

At a news conference in Los Angeles Thursday, Miller was asked to comment on a proposed investigation of himself and replied: "I refuse to be deterred from debating the issues of this campaign by this silly performance."

The resolution called for a probe of Miller's connections with the Lockport Felt Co. in his home city. He has been assistant secretary and a director for 18 years at a salary of $7,500 a year.

Miller has said he opposed legislation that would have been detrimental to the felt industry. He said in a television interview Thursday in Reno, Nev., that he had been carrying out the duty of a congressman to protect the economic interests and the job producing industry of his home district.

Any congressman who did not do so would be ousted by voters, Miller said.

In a statement on another subject in Los Angeles, Miller said that the Johnson administration had adopted a defense policy based on "a space-age Maginot Line" in which the emphasis is on missiles to the exclusion of other weapons.

shortly after being released from the Neshoba County Jail at Philadelphia. A massive search failed to turn up any clue to them for weeks.

Judge Mize did not dismiss the grand jury. He told jurors, which included 22 whites and one negro, to come to Jackson On Oct. 21 to resume their investigation of the case.

There had been reliable reports that the Justice Department was seeking indictments against at least nine persons in connection with various acts of racial violence in the Philadelphia area.

A Neshoba County grand jury, also investigating the slayings, would up its work earlier this week qithout returning any indictments.

Ford Warns of Bigness in Government

tration in history."

Further, he added, that this administration "will go down in objective history as best known for its double talk."

"No amount of Johnson's wax can cover up these failures," he said.

Turning to American foreign policy and acts, he said, "In Viet Nam we are losing the war because when this administration took over in 1961 it changed the policies set up by Pres. Eisenhower."

The Johnson administration has spent $700 million in Viet Nam and increased the military personnel from 500 to 20,000 — yet "we are losing because this administration offers no new solution," he said.

The president is sweeping the vital Viet Nam issue under the rug, he said.

However, Ford said he is confident that the Republicans can win the war in Viet Nam after they take over the presidency in January.

The Republicans must be given the responsibility of the stewardship of America in the next four years because the Democrats have been strong on promises and woefully weak on performances, according to Ford.

When President Eisenhowre turned out the reigns of the country over to the Democrats in 1961 ,the country was strong, he said, but since then there has been erosion in many areas.

"This erosion could harm our potentialities for peace," he charged.

He disagreed with the administration policy on defense, saying that he believes in a "mixed force" instead of "putting all of our eggs in one basket."

This could lead to a serious deterrent gap, and has already shown up because our margin of strength over the Soviets has been narrowed," he declared.

Ford said the Republicans should tell the truth, tell it often and tell it with conviction between now and election because there is very little honest substance coming out of the White House.

Bid Ed Goes Back to Aid Candidate

DENVER (UPI)— Former Colorado Gov. Edwin (Big Ed) C. Johnson returned to the political trail Wednesday to stump for an old friend—Rep. Wayne N. Aspinall, D-Colo.

"Wayne isn't too well known in northeast Colorado, and I thought I'd go up there and put in a word or two for him," said Johnson, who also is a former U.S. senator.

Aspinall's 4th Congressional District was enlarged this year by the GOP-dominated Legislature in a move to equalize population of the state's four districts as ordered by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The addition of the northeast corner, heavily Republican, not only makes the district the largest geographical district in the state, but also makes the race tougher for the veteran Aspinall, chairman of the House Interior Committee.

Johnson, the only man who ever carried every Colorado county in an election, said he would campaign for his fellow Democrat in Greeley, Holyoke, Crook, Haxtun and Julesburg this week.

Aspinall's opponent is State Sen. Ed Lamm, R-Grand Junction.

32 Hurt in North Irish Street Fight

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Thirty-two persons were injured Thursday night in a street battle between police and Irish nationalists after officers removed the Irish Republic's flag from a building.

It was the worst outbreak of violence in recent years in British-ruled Northern Ireland. Fifteen demonstrators were arrested.

The injured included 20 policemen. One suffered a fractured skull. All but five of those hurt were released after treatment.

The battle took place in West Belfast after police raided the Republican party's campaign headquarters and for the third time took down the tricolor flag. Flying of the Irish flag is banned in Northern Ireland, which Irish nationalists want to unite with the republic.

West Belfast is the only one of Northern Ireland's 12 districts where the Republican party is given a chance to elect a member of the British House of Commons in the Oct. 15 election.

The body, discovered by divers of the Denver Police Department, was found near the bank where his fishing equipment was located.

Khanh Willing To Be Drafted As Premier

years, Khanh outlined his position at a news conference.

Relaxed and in apparent good humor, he told newsmen: "I have said many times, and I will repeat, that I will go back to the ranks of the armed forces, certainly before Oct. 27. But I say this: If the people want me and call me and tell me to serve in the government, of course as a citizen I cannot refuse."

Khanh also said he has full power over the armed forces. He denied he was under the control of any group such as the Young Turks, the young generals who remained loyal to him Sept. 13.

Khanh said an investigation of the leaders of that coup is completed and some of them may get the death sentence from a military tribunal.

Concerning the recent rebellion of about 2,000 mountain tribesmen armed and schooled by U.S. Army Special Forces troops, Khanh said his government is reviewing with the U.S. Embassy the whole program of training the tribesmen as irregulars for the war against the Communist Viet Cong.

He renewed charges that the insurrection was sparked and sustained by "three of four foreigners." He acknowledged there had been a difference of opinion between himself and American authorities on the use of force against the tribesmen who gave up when a Vietnamese army task force seized their headquarters camp Monday.

He declined to name the foreigners.

Goldwater outlined the plan after giving the Peoria audience a replay of the speech in Cincinnati Tuesday in which he accused the Johnson administration of being "soft on communism" in policies around the world.

"One of my first acts as president will be to initiate a call for a North Atlantic conclave," he said. "That conclave will have a single object: to create a North Atlantic community unified in spirit, purpose and action.

"As the first step, I will name a blue-ribbon delegation of American citizens to meet with delegates from other NATO nations to plan the conclave. Those great statesmen of this nation who helped build NATO should join together in leading the American delegation.

"This is the constructive way to mobilize the strength of the free world in the struggle against Communist domination. This is the way of partnership with unity. This is the way toward a true Atlantic civilization."

The Peoria speech climaxed a full day of whistle stop campaigning for Illinois' 26 electoral votes. Beginning with an early morning rally in Cairo on the Mississippi River at the state's southern tip, Goldwater steamed his train northward through the center of the state. On the way he planted a new name tag on President Johnson: "Lydon-come-lately."

He told his audiences that the President has followed along on such Goldwater proposals as ending the draft, strengthening NATO, and helping the local law enforcement agencies. In Carbondale, home of Southern Illinois University, the Arizonan renewed his pledge to end the draft.

Goldwater kept up his attack on the administration's medicare program as congressional leaders abandoned efforts to pass it at this session. He said Johnson had tried to ram through a health care bill that would be "no help to anyone of any age."

He told trainside audiences Johnson's medicare would "get you into the hospital and that's the end of it." He said the bill did not provide expenses for doctor's fees and medicine.

In Peoria, Goldwater voiced his plan for a NATO conclave after stressing the combined strengths of the NATO nations and declaring: "If we are to meet the threat of communism — if we are to keep Khrushchev from burying us, we must move swiftly and resolutely to unify the free world. WE must pick up the pieces of our grand alliances and put them together again."

He said the alliances, including CENTO, SEATO and ANZUS as well as NATO, have "vanished one by one" over the last four years in what he called the Johnson administration's "drift, deception and deceit."

"And there, my fellow Americans, is the challenge of the hour," he said.

Silver Dollar Probe Is Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Florida congressman said Friday the Secret Service is investigating reports that silver dollars of little value to collectors have been substituted for valuable dollars in the Treasury's vaults.

Rep. Dante B. Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House monetary affairs subcommittee, said the Treasury had asked the Secret Service to make the investigation.

Fascell said, however, Treasury officials had given him an inventory of the $3 million in silver dollars still in the Treasury. The inventory, showing dates and mint marks, indicated only a "relatively small number" of coins differed from descriptions on the bags in which they are kept, he said.

"The inventory was obtained to quiet rumors which have been circulating that some silver dollars having little numismatic value have been substituted for Carson city dollars of high market value in the Treasury vaults," Fascell said.

The exchange of silver dollars for silver certificates was suspended last March after a run on the Treasury had reduced the quantity on hand to about $3 million—mostly high prized dollars are minted at Carson City, Nev. Nev.

Since that time the dollars have been under seal in the Treasury's vaults.

Fascell said Treasury officials told him that investigation had disclosed "no real evidence" of any substitution.

However, he said, the Secret Service had been ordered to make an "exhaustive investigation" dspite the results of the inventory.

Six Killers Hunted By Acapulco Police

ACAPULCO, Mexico (AP) — Police are hunting six killers who escaped from the prison in Arcelina, near Acapulco, after a riot in which a police major was killed and a policeman and two prisoners were wounded.

The riot began Thursday when several convicts attacked and disarmed guards. Police reinforcements quelled the rioting after an exchange of shots.

The prisoners who escaped were serving terms for homicide.

elderly under the Social Security program.

The Senate conferees refused to drop the rider, the House conferees refused to accept it and the resulting stalemate killed the whole bill. Political recriminations started immediately.

The Senate - approved program for a massive rehabilitation effort in the economically depressed, 11-state Appalachia area never reached the House floor.

The Democratic leaders decided it could not risk a knock-down fight in the face of heavy absenteeism and the remaining members' anxiety to plunge into the homefront political battles in which all the 435 house seats must be filled.

The administration seized quickly on the health care issue with Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., one of the conferees, telling nesmen:

"This means that the President will go to the people and ask a mandate on this issue. I think it assures that health care for the aged — a good plan — will be enacted next year."

But this brought prompt counterfire from Sen. John J. Williams, R-Del., another conferee, who said:

"This means that congress is going home after having voted itself a $7,500 annual salary increase. . .while at the same time denying increases for those living on Social Security.

"This action demonstrates the political farce of this administration's claim to an interest in the welfare of our elderly citizens."

Administration leaders' feelers about recessing Congress until after the election generated no apparent support and the day's developments seemed to assure that the 88th Congress is at the end of its deliberations — barring recall by the President in a special session.

Johnson indicated he isn't especially unhappy at the prospect of quick adjournment.

Nearly an hour late for a White House ceremony to proclaim International Cooperation Year, Johnson apologized and said:

"I didn't know we had as many majority leaders in the Congress as we have. They're all hoping to go home this week. I hope they go home too."

Major closing-hours actions included:

— Senate passage and dispatch to the White House of a $1.8-billion bill extending the Defense Education Act until June 30, 1968, and broadening its scope to cover aid for the teaching of non-scientific subjects.

This measure also extends for a year the program of aid to school districts where children of federal personnel have swollen school enrollments.

The House passed this by a 320-20 count Saturday and the Senate accepted it Friday on a voice vote.

— Both chambers accepted a conference report on a $3.5-billion foreign aid authorization measure which sets a ceiling on such spending.

The House adopted it on a voice vote but critics of the conference report forced a roll call in the Senate after attacking conferees' omission of several Senate amendments. The bill then passed by 35 to 15.

Most noteworthy of the Senate amendments dropped by the conference committee was one expressing the "sense of Congress" that district courts should go slowly in implementing the supreme court's ruling that both chambers of state legislatures must be apportioned on a population basis.

But more criticism was stirred in the Senate by elimination of an amendment condemning persecution of Jews in the Soviet Union.

These actions left passage of two appropriations measures as the only remaining major hurdles on the adjournment road.

One is for $3.25 billion to provide the actual funds the foreign aid program set up by the authorization bill.

The other is a catch-all supplemental measure providing for $1.25 billion for various agencies including $861 million for the new anti-poverty agency. 8

U.S. Drops Spy Case to Keep Own Secrets

U.S. authorities. The indictment called her Jane Doe.

The only explanation on record for abandon is the case real name is not even known to U.S. authorities. The indictment called her Jane Doe.

The only explanation on record for abandoning the case was "the interests of national security."

This was taken to mean that at the last minute the Justic Department decided not to go through with its plan to put FBI men and counterespionage agents on the witness stand. There they would face exposure to the world, both as to their identity and their methods of operation.

U.S. Dist. Judge John F. Dooling lauded the government's action in dropping the case, rather than continuing with "shapeless charges."

He noted that the U.S. Constitution provides that a defendant is entitled to be confronted by the witnesses against him.

The task of torpedoing the case fell to U.S. Atty. John P. Hoey, a portly, gray man with a gull, round face. He moved for the dismissal on telephoned instructions from Acting Atty. Gen. Nicholas deB. Katzenbach — instructions that appeared to have come without any forewarning to Hoey.

Hoey referred to the only two overt acts alleged in the indictment that connected the defendants with an international Soviet espionage ring. These were meetings that took place in New York and Washington on June 15-16, 1963.

market for the first time in 45 days.

Oren Lee Staley, president of the militant farm group, said NFO directors from 23 states would meet next week to plan a resumption of the holding action by which the NFO hopes to force up livestock prices.

Staley said the "temporary halt" will give farmers who have been holding livestock since Aug. 19 a chance to dispose of their animals.

No major upsurge in receipts was noted at the nation's largest livestock markets. Staley's announcement came too late to enable many NFO members to get livestock to market Friday, the last trading day of the week.

prepared text in talking about the search for peace, saying "that five-letter word is the goal of all of us."

Looking over his audience, he said "it is the assignment of the century for each of you."

Still ad libbing, Johnson said he is very excited about trying to promote peace and he hopes his commission on heart disease, cancer and stroke can come up with some remedies "so we can all live beyond 100 and participate."

As he signed the proclamation carrying out a United Nations recommendation that member countries observe International Cooperation Year, Johnson summoned several well-known Republicans to stand behind him for a photo. When some of them hesitated, he exclaimed, "I'm not going to use this on a billboard — come on."

So up walked Henry Cabot Lodge, the 1960 Republican vice-presidential candidate and former ambassador to South Viet Nam; Christian Herter secretary of state in the Dwight D. Eisenhower administration; and James J. Wadsworth, U.S. representative at the United Nations during the early Eisenhower years.

After the ceremony, Johnson took Lodge back to his office with him.

Miller Charges LBJ Is Silent On Baker Case

By ROBERT T. GRAY

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — President Johnson has remained silent on the Bobby Baker case because "he is fearful of more damning disclosures," Rep. William E. Miller charged today in the President's home state.

A Republican administration "will give the American people a full accounting of Lyndon Johnson's stewardship in the Bobby Baker case," the GOP candidate for vice president said in a campaign statement.

Miller slammed at the Democrats on the Bobby Baker issue after stating Thursday he would not be deterred from campaign debate by Democratic demands for an investigation of his connections with a business firm in his home district in Upstate New York.

Rep. W. Donlon Edwards, D-Calif., introduced a resolution in the House of Representatives calling for the investigation.

Miller said he would be delighted to testify before a House committee in any such probe.

The GOP candidate flew into Texas from Los Angeles early this morning for visits to San Antonio, Galveston and Houston, the final stops on a long campaign swing that has taken him through the West and the Midwest.

Miller's aides kept a cautious eye today on Hurricane Hilda, which was headed for the Texas coastal area.

In his statement, Miller said the Bobby Baker matter was "no longer just a case of a get-rich-quick Senate employe. It is a scandal going to the basic moral fiber of our government."

He said that Johnson had remained silent and had not requested a full and public investigation "of this sordid mess."

The GOP nominee continued: "Mr. Johnson, of course, will make no such demand, because he is fearful of more damning disclosures in the Baker case before the American people go to the polls on Nov. 3."

Miller said of the President: "Bobby was his boy, his boy only, and everyone in Washington knows it."

He quoted Johnson as praising Baker in 1956 and 1957, when Johnson was Senate majority leader and Baker was secretary to the Senate majority.

Baker resigned under fire and invoked the Fifth Amendment during an investigation of his private business dealings while in the Senate post. A new investigation was launched recently.

Miller said the Johnson administration was "ready to apply another coat of whitewash."

At a news conference in Los Angeles Thursday, Miller was asked to comment on a proposed investigation of himself and replied: "I refuse to be deterred from debating the issues of this campaign by this silly performance."

The resolution called for a probe of Miller's connections with the Lockport Felt Co. in his home city. He has been assistant secretary and a director for 18 years at a salary of $7,500 a year.

Miller has said he opposed legislation that would have been detrimental to the felt industry. He said in a television interview Thursday in Reno, Nev., that he had been carrying out the duty of a congressman to protect the economic interests and the job producing industry of his home district.

Any congressman who did not do so would be ousted by voters, Miller said.

In a statement on another subject in Los Angeles, Miller said that the Johnson administration had adopted a defense policy based on "a space-age Maginot Line" in which the emphasis is on missiles to the exclusion of other weapons.

Storage Space Important to Rooms

What's your first handyman project for the fall season? Finishing the basement? Attic? Building a room addition to the house?

No matter where you start—no matter what kind of a room you're going to build and where you're going to build it — be sure to include adequate storage space.

A basement recreation or family room, for example, needs storage space for toys and games, for books and records, clothes, accessories and a host of other items.

An attic, too, requires provisions for storage, depending on what type of room you're planning to build.

By including ample closet space with a room addition, you take the pressure off your regular bedroom closets. Such a storage area adjacent to a basement family room is ideal for out - of - season clothes, furs and bedding. If you have the space — and generally you do in a full basement — you can even compartmentalize the closet for efficient closet organization.

To make it of even greater utilitarian value, you can line this storage unit with aromatic red cedar. This unique wood, with its natural fragrance which repels moths, will provide maximum protection from moth damage for your clothing and woolens.

Cedar lining can be applied directly to the studs in building a basement or attic closet. No additional backing is required. The material is tongue - and-grooved for easy and snug installation.

Cedar material also can be applied directly to any wall surface if you're simply planning to re-do one of your existing closets. In any case, it's a weekend job for the average handyman, costing about $90 in materials and requiring only the use of a nail and saw.

Red cedar requires no finishing. Any kind of protective coating would only destroy the wood's pleasant (to humans) aroma and its repellent (to moths) properties.

Fall Is Time To Seal Out Frosty Drafts

Fall is crack-hunting time and caulking time if you are to seal out frosty drafts during the winter months.

If there is one job you can do yourself, says the October issue of American Home magazine, it is caulking. There are many types of caulking available and techniques for applying them.

These are the major areas to inspect around your home for caulking, the magazine says:

1. All roof flashing.
2. Joints between masonry chimney and flashing.
3. Between underside of eaves and molding.
4. Between dormers and roof shingles.
5. Between siding and any adjoining roof.
6. Between siding and vertical corner boards.
7. At inside corners formed by siding.
8. At joints between siding and window and door frames.
9. Between siding and window and door rip caps.
10. Between masonry steps, porches, patios and the house.

Apply caulking only on the exterior of a house, American Home warns. If used inside, artificial heat will prevent it from hardening properly. Interior cracks should be filled with such materials as spackle, putty, patching paste, or plastic sealers.

Before Buying House Check Heating System

Thousands of families will be shopping for new homes this fall.

Unfortunately, many will be "penny wise and pound foolish" at the expense of future comfort and enjoyment of the home, says a man who has been associated with the homebuilding industry for more than 30 years.

"For instance, probably no other feature of the home will be as important to the family's comfort and good health as the heating system," points out Charles H. Franke, president of American Furnace Company, St. Louis.

"Yet the prospect of moving into a 'dream home' will be so exciting that many home buyers won't even think to ask about the size of the furnace, the ductwork, air conditioning, air filtering, possibilities for expansion, and other important factors."

The homebuying public generally takes it for granted that the home will be heated, but this is really only the beginning of a modern comfort system, according to Franke, once a real estate salesman himself.

More important is how efficiently it is heated because this usually will determine the size of the fuel bill. A few dollars more invested in a quality furnace originally could mean a saving of several hundred dollars in fuel costs over the life of the heating plant.

In addition to the basic heating system, today's home buyer also should investigate central air conditioning and electronic air filtering, American Furnace Company advises.

Summer cooling now can be combined easily and economically with winter heating, giving the family year-around comfort from one system. And with the new electronic filters, the air circulated through the home in both seasons now can be cleaned with unprecedented efficiency.

"Considering the long service it will provide, a good, year-around comfort system is one of the most economical investments a home buyer can make," Franke said. "It will pay families shopping for homes this fall to add this point to their check list."

Home Heating Should Be 'Outside-in'

Many old heating systems are inefficient because the heat distributors are located along the inside walls instead of the outside walls.

According to heating comfort experts at the National Better Heating - Cooling Council, "inside - out" heating, as it is called, cannot control drafts. Those sitting near windows are chilled by the constant movement of cool air around the ankles because heating units aren't in the right place.

This situation has been corrected today by heating engineers who have put heating units where they belong — at the base of outside walls and underneath windows; in other words, heating the correct way for comfort's sake, from the "outside-in."

Colorado contains 75 per cent of all the area in the United States over 10,000 feet.

Suit Floor Type And Design to Particular Use

The old admonition, "you made your bed, now sleep in it," applies just as well — with a slight twist — to floors in the home, says the Better Floors Council.

Persons planning to buy or build a home, or remodel an old one, will do well to consider that after they "made" a floor, they'll have to "walk" on it. Depending upon the specific uses of the room or area involved, some basic considerations in choosing a floor are:

Beauty: Does it add to the visual pleasure of the room's decor?

Comfort: Is it too hard or too soft? Does it provide resilience for foot comfort when standing for long periods, as in a kitchen? Is it easy to walk on, with minimum "foot drag?"

Convenience: Is it easy and quick to clean?

Investment: Is it ruined when fats or oils, household chemicals, household pet "accidents," or children's paints are spilled on it?

Health: Does it trap dust or pollen,, resist germ removal? Does it retain odors?

Safety: Will it chip or splinter? Does it provide good footing, even when wet?

Repair: Is it inexpensive to replace damaged areas of the floor?

Fire Resistance: Does it resist flame and cigarette burns?

Wear: Does it wear well, will it last the life of the house?

Cost: Is the installed cost reasonable when you take into account the floor's longevity, maintenance cost and replacement expense?

While no single one of the many type of floor coverings available today fits every need and instance, the Better Floors Council does recommend vinyl asbestos tile as most suitable for most rooms in the home. It can be used satisfactorily in all rooms, although varying needs or tastes may require a harder or softer floor covering in special areas.

HOME SELLING TIP

If you're putting your house up for sale, stress its outstanding qualities such as ceramic tile bathrooms and kitchens to prospective buyers. Ceramic tile is one of the most beautiful assets of a home, and will last many years with little or no maintenance. It makes a good sales point for you.

Racer Plans for Dad-Son Project

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

More than likely Dad made a home-built racer when he was around nine or ten. It was the rage then, and still is one of the most satisfying and fun play projects around. The idea of playing grown up, of racing in the Indianapolis trials, of being a racing car driver is part of the fun of growing up.

Sketchbook this week presents a sleek design plan, S-182, for both Dad and his son go get together and build. And the son can do a great deal of the construction outside of handling the power or hand saw in cutting out the body parts. He can help assemble, paint and add the finishing touches to his push -power fun racer.

The Sketchbook plan showing how the racer is made gives all parts and lumber lists. The cost of making the racer is moderate. One sheet of ½" plywood plus a 16" with of ¾" plywood some four feet long are the lumbed essentials. The wheel kit (which is detailed in the plan) is the only other major expense. Or if you are clever at adapting wheels from another toy around the home, you can use these and cut your costs considerably.

Following the details of design for the body cutouts, the assembly of the racers is no difficult job at all. Once together and with wheels under it, this is a sturdy, safe toy that will provide many hours of fun for the yound lad from age six to ten or 11. The Sketchbook 50-cent plan is available as usual through this newspaper.

Half a Lamp Better Than None in Home

Half a lamp is better than none. And it can be just as good as a full-round lamp.

The half - lamp is particularly suitable for end tables.

Fastened to the wall it's safer than a free - standing lamp, and it occupies less space.

The half - lamp does present one problem: Because the bulb is brought closer to the wall, it can cause burns. You can avoid this — and add a decorative touch to your home — by surfacing the wall with a burn-proof material stich as ceramic tile.

Ceramic tile now comes in an almost endless variety of patterns and colors so that it can easily match or blend with any decor. Decorators have used this ancient material effectively as a headboard behind a bed and end tables. They also have dramatically employed it over an entire living room wall as a background setting for sofa and lamp tables.

Here's the Answer

Question: I have been reading for years about the effects of colors on the size of rooms and the moods of people, but never paid much attention to them. Now I am ready to do an extensive painting job and would like some help on the use of color.

Answer: On the fundamental side: light colors reflect more light and tend to make things appear larger than they really are. Dark colors absorb light and thus make objects appear smaller and heavier. To make a small room seem larger, therefore, paint the walls a light, cool color such as pale blue, lilac or a light aqua. Paint the walls a deep shade of one of the stimulating colors, such as coral, if you want a large room to have a sense of intimacy.

A long, narrow room can be made to look larger by painting the side walls a light cool color, such as blue-gray, and the narrow walls a deep warm shade, such as dark rose. Unattractive features in a room can be minimized by painting them the same color as their background. A gray radiator, for instance, will be inconspicuous if the walls of the room also are gray.

As for the mood idea, it is generally believed that blues, blue-greens, blue-grays and violets have a cooling, restful effect; that reds, pinks, oranges, etc., are emotionally stimulating; and that dark colors, when used too extensively, can be depressing.

QUESTION: For several years we kept three large vases on the wooden floor of our living room. We have now decided to move them to another part of the house. There are three white circles where the vases had been standing. How can these marks be removed? We believe the floor has a shellac finish.

ANSWER: It appears likely that some of the water in the vases leaked out at one time or another, or there may have been a bit of carelessness in filling them. The marks should disappear by rubbing the area with denatured alcohol. Rub lightly to prevent taking off the finish along with the marks.

If some of the finish does come off, apply shellac to the marred sections, attempting to blend it in with the surrounding surface. This may not be too easy, especially if the finish on the rest of the floor is well worn.

QUESTION: What is the best way to tighten the head of a hammer, which otherwise is in good condition?

ANSWER: Most hardware stores carry wooden or metal wedges which can be hammered into the wooden part of the hammer at the other end of the handle. Do not make the mistake of hammering a nail into the wood, which will tighten the hammer head for a while but come loose again after being used several times.

(Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. Inidvidual correspondence can not be undertaken.)

Housing Gain Is Seen by Fortune

Builders expect housing starts in the second half of 1964 to run at a rate of 1,685,000, or about five per cent higher than the actual rate for the first half of the year. Builders also look for a further rise to 1,760,000 starts in 1965.

These forecasts came in response to Fortune's semi-annual survey of home-builders. Its results will be published in the magazine, together with a somewhat more conservative forecast by Fortune's own economists — that total start will remain in the neighborhood of 1,550,000 annually for the next few years.

Apartment builders have somewhat reduced their earlier, more optimistic forecasts somewhat. Now they predict 560,000 unit starts for all of 1964 and 580,000 for 1965.

Builders of single - family homes say they are encountering growing buyer resistance. They foresee, however, that total single-family home starts, including pre-fabs) will be 1,160,000 this year and the same in 1965. Pre-fab homebuilders forecast a 15 per cent increase in their shipments this year and a similar increase next, bringing the 1965 total to over 300,000 units.

Summer Patio Can Make Winter Playroom

Is your house short a playroom?

Take a look at the possibility for winter enjoyment that your screened-in patio offers.

Most patios fall into the "useless space" category during cold winter weather, according to Robert Jacobsen, home improvement specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company. The cost of making this space over into an outdoor playroom, he claims, can be considerably less than finishing an attic or basement.

Converting a screened-in patio into a playroom involves replacing the screen panels with glass panels and adding heat, the Flexalum specialist says. The sturdy aluminum patio cover will keep out winter wind, rain and snow just as it fended off the sun during the summer.

Sufficient warmth may usually be obtained without having to alter the home's heating system, Jacobsen says. Electric or gas heaters now on the market can do an excellent job of keeping the playroom comfortable. He adds that the winter sun provides a lot more warmth than people realize, even on the coldest days.

"Although the job of the patio cover is to provide shade during the summer, in most northern locations it will permit the rays of the winter sun, which hit at a considerably lower angle, to enter and warm the patio."

Tile Is Durable Sav Promoters

Many home designers are following the lead of architects of public and commercial building by using colorful ceramic tile on building exteriors. Ceramic tile on the exterior of a home is practical as well as decorative. It is virtually impervious to all types of weather and can be set over almost any subsurfacing material. The integral beauty of ceramic tile — it's available in more than 250 colors and an infinite number of patterns — offers unusual opportunity for home design.

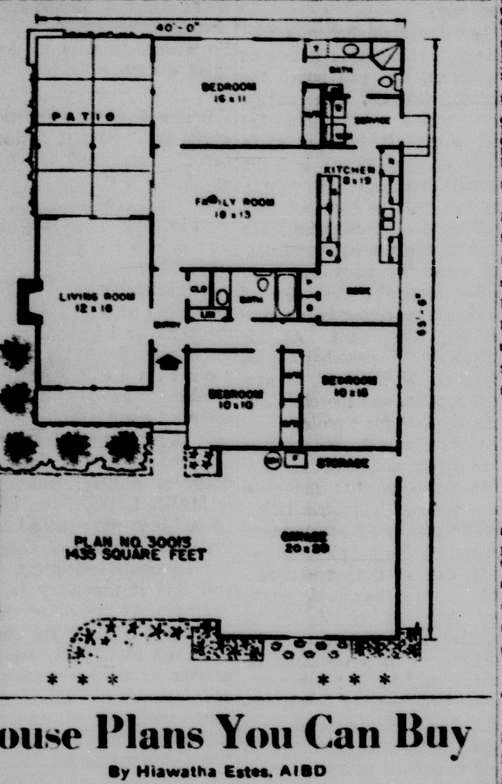
Real economy in home construction should be judged not by original cost alone, says the Tile Council of America, since eventual replacement costs play an important role in figuring the ultimate cost of construction. That's why it's important to avoid cutting quality in the original structure. Durable ceramic tile, for example, will last virtually the entire life of a home, and therefore is actually more economical than substitute materials that need periodic replacement.

A floor surfaced with ceramic tile is naturally safe and comfortable for walking. In special circumstances — such as a shower stall or a sundeck alongside a swimming pool — this inherent safety factor can be increased by using tile manufactured with an abrasive surface. Such tiles are usually resistant to slipping no matter how deep the puddles.

With wintry weather rapidly approaching, now's a good time to take a close look at your fireplace. Is it an artistic focal point of your home? Or is it a drab detraction?

If the latter is the case, you can resurface both the fireplace and hearth with ceramic tile. This durable material is now available in more than 250 different colors, including many decorator patterns and a wide variety of shapes. It also comes in sizes ranging from one inch to nearly one foot.

Ceramic tile is particularly well suited for fireplaces because it can't be burned, is easily cleaned, and never needs replacing.



House Plans You Can Buy

By Hiawatha Estes, AIBD

BY Hiawatha Estes, Hibo

Here we have combined a traditional looking exterior with a completely modern floor plan. The interior layout of the design is anything but traditional as it is more in keeping with the informal living habits of our times. More important yet, its modern space-saving features obtain the maximum use out of a limited floor space.

If you have an exciting view from your building site, you will be able to make the most of it with this design. The living room has large windows facing the street and sliding glass doors at the rear of the room. There are large glass areas in both the family room and master bedroom that will allow you to take advantage of a view at either the side or rear of the lot. The plan could be reversed if your view should be on the opposite side of this layout.

The entry will appear larger since only a partial wall separates it from the living room.

So as to economically use every square foot of floor space, the fireplace just barely projects into the living room.

There is a guest closet opening to the entry at the family room door. This all-purpose room has an ideal relation to the kitchen as well as to the partially roofed patio. The sliding glass doors open to the patio from both the family and living rooms means that this huge indoor-outdoor area can be combined when entertaining.

To obtain a maximum of privacy, the master bedroom is completely separated from the remaining bedrooms.

The family bath with its pullman lavatory is located in the center of the house. A bath with a pullman lavatory plus a dressing table is accessible from both the master bedroom and the service. This arrangement eliminates the necessity of an additional bath.

The kitchen is unusually large and well arranged. The oversized eating nook is very convenient. Spacious closets have been provided for both a pantry and for brooms. A half-wall at the rear of the range opens this room just enough to the family room so that mother can join in all the family activities or observe the children playing on the patio as she goes about her work in the kitchen.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased for $8.50 for the first set and $5 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until January 27, 1965. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. Basement Costs Money, Keep It Dry Always Basements are back in business. After several years of decline, the trend is now swinging once again toward houses that include them. Homes built without them during the past years have convinced most people of this: they need them.

But somehow, the new basements just aren't the same as the ones we knew years ago. They're no longer the dark, dank area to hide unwanted articles. Today, a good percentage of new basements have finished rooms for expanded family living areas. A sizeable investment is made in adding this "livability down and below," and its good sense to protect it against water damage so prevalent in many areas.

ELIMINATE MUSTY ODOR

A good way to improve the appearance of a basement recreation room and eliminate a musty odor is to panel the area with aromatic red cedar. This wood, which is known for its moth repellency, has a pleasant aroma that is strong enough to overcome the average musty smell. Aromatic red cedar is easy to install. It comes in tongue-and-grooved pieces. Local lumber dealers carry it in pre-packaged bundles.

CALLING ALL HOME MAKERS

Imagination and Courage Are Needed In Decorating

When someone asks me "What are the main rules in decorating a home?", I give them this answer:

The simple ingredients are imagination, courage . . . and, good taste.

Mrs. Ford

In decorating your home, remember, you are expressing your own personality. And, you should certainly consider your own basic likes and dislikes. You can do a beautiful job in many different ways and styles.

One noticeable trend today is to mix periods, woods and finishes, so it is not difficult to assemble the things you like.

I always say that money will never take the place of good taste, and all of us have seen homes furnished on a shoe-string that could win a prize in decorating shows.

So regardless of your budget, you can furnish your home attractively with the exact pieces you need and like.

And, dont be afraid to express your imagination!

When you do need assistance in selecting carpet, draperies, upholstery or slip-cover materials, we can help you pick the things you want at the price you can afford.

Storage Space Important to Rooms

What's your first handyman project for the fall season? Finishing the basement? Attic? Building a room addition to the house?

No matter where you start—no matter what kind of a room you're going to build and where you're going to build it — be sure to include adequate storage space.

A basement recreation or family room, for example, needs storage space for toys and games, for books and records, clothes, accessories and a host of other items.

An attic, too, requires provisions for storage, depending on what type of room you're planning to build.

By including ample closet space with a room addition, you take the pressure off your regular bedroom closets. Such a storage area adjacent to a basement family room is ideal for out - of - season clothes, furs and bedding. If you have the space — and generally you do in a full basement — you can even compartmentalize the closet for efficient closet organization.

To make it of even greater utilitarian value, you can line this storage unit with aromatic red cedar. This unique wood, with its natural fragrance which repels moths, will provide maximum protection from moth damage for your clothing and woolens.

Cedar lining can be applied directly to the studs in building a basement or attic closet. No additional backing is required. The material is tongue - and-grooved for easy and snug installation.

Cedar material also can be applied directly to any wall surface if you're simply planning to re-do one of your existing closets. In any case, it's a weekend job for the average handyman, costing about $50 in materials and requiring only the use of a nail and saw.

Red cedar requires no finishing. Any kind of protective coating would only destroy the wood's pleasant (to humans) aroma and its repellent (to moths) properties.

Fall Is Time To Seal Out Frosty Drafts

Fall is crack-hunting time and calking time if you are to seal out frosty drafts during the winter months.

If there is one job you can do yourself, says the October issue of American Home magazine, it is calking. There are many types of calking available and techniques for applying them.

These are the major areas to inspect around your home for calking, the magazine says:

1. All roof flashing.
2. Joints between masonry chimney and flashing.
3. Between underside of caves and molding.
4. Between dormers and roof shingles.
5. Between siding and any adjoining roof.
6. Between siding and vertical corner boards.
7. At inside corners formed by siding.
8. At joints between siding and window and door frames.
9. Between siding and window and door rip caps.
10. Between masonry steps, porches, patios and the house.

Apply calking only on the exterior of a house, American Home warns. If used inside, artificial heat will prevent it from hardening properly. Interior cracks should be filled with such materials as spackle, putty, patching paste, or plastic sealers.

Home Heating Should Be 'Outside-in'

Many old heating systems are inefficient because the heat distributors are located along the inside walls instead of the outside walls.

According to heating comfort experts at the National Better Heating - Cooling Council, "inside - out" heating, as it is called, cannot control drafts. Those sitting near windows are chilled by the constant movement of cool air around the ankles because heating units aren't in the right place.

This situation has been corrected today by heating engineers who have put heating units where they belong — at the base of outside walls and underneath windows; in other words, heating the correct way for comfort's sake, from the "outside-in."

Colorado contains 75 per cent of all the area in the United States over 10,000 feet.

Before Buying House Check Heating System

Thousands of families will be shopping for new homes this fall.

Unfortunately, many will be "penny wise and pound foolish" at the expense of future comfort and enjoyment of the home, says a man who has been associated with the homebuilding industry for more than 30 years.

"For instance, probably no other feature of the home will be as important to the family's comfort and good health as the heating system," points out Charles H. Franke, president of American Furnace Company, St. Louis.

"Yet the prospect of moving into a 'dream home' will be so exciting that many home buyers won't even think to ask about the size of the furnace, the ductwork, air conditioning, air filtering, possibilities for expansion, and other important factors."

The homebuying public generally takes it for granted that the home will be heated, but this is really only the beginning of a modern comfort system, according to Franke, once a real estate salesman himself.

More important is how efficiently it is heated because this usually will determine the size of the fuel bill. A few dollars more invested in a quality furnace originally could mean a saving of several hundred dollars in fuel costs over the life of the heating plant.

In addition to the basic heating system, today's home buyer also should investigate central air conditioning and electronic air filtering, American Furnace Company advises.

Summer cooling now can be combined easily and economically with winter heating, giving the family year-around comfort from one system. And with the new electronic filters, the air circulated through the home in both seasons now can be cleaned with unprecedented efficiency.

"Considering the long service it will provide, a good, year-around comfort system is one of the most economical investments a home buyer can make," Franke said. "It will pay families shopping for homes this fall to add this point to their check list."

In the life of every boy there should be the fun and excitement of having his own push racer. And with Dad backing him up with the building, this is a father-son project par excellence. Suit Floor Type And Design to Particular Use

The old admonition, "you made your bed, now sleep in it," applies just as well — with a slight twist — to floors in the home, says the Better Floors Council.

Persons planning to buy or build a home, or remodel an old one, will do well to consider that after they "made" a floor, they'll have to "walk" on it. Depending upon the specific uses of the room or area involved, some basic considerations in choosing a floor are:

Beauty: Does it add to the visual pleasure of the room's decor?

Comfort: Is it too hard or too soft? Does it provide resilience for foot comfort when standing for long periods, as in a kitchen? Is it easy to walk on, with minimum "foot drag?"

Convenience: Is it easy and quick to clean?

Investment: Is it ruined when fats or oils, houshold chemicals, household pet "accidents," or children's paints are spilled on it?

Health: Does it trap dust or pollen,, resist germ removal? Does it retain odors?

Safety: Will it chip or splinter? Does it provide good footing, even when wet?

Repair: Is it inexpensive to replace damaged areas of the floor?

Fire Resistance: Does it resist flame and cigarette burns?

Wear: Does it wear well, will it last the life of the house?

Cost: Is the installed cost reasonable when you take into account the floor's longevity, maintenance cost and replacement expense?

While no single one of the many type of floor coverings available today fits every need and instance, the Better Floors Council does recommend vinyl asbestos tile as most suitable for most rooms in the home. It can be used satisfactorily in all rooms, although varying needs or tastes may require a harder or softer floor covering in special areas.

HOME SELLING TIP

If you're putting your house up for sale, stress its outstanding qualities such as ceramic tile bathrooms and kitchens to prospective buyers. Ceramic tile is one of the most beautiful assets of a home, and will last many years with little or no maintenance. It makes a good sales point for you.

Racer Plans for Dad-Son Project

By BILL MEYERRIECKS

More than likely Dad made a home-built racer when he was around nine or ten. It was the rage then, and still is one of the most satisfying and fun play projects around. The idea of playing grown up, of racing in the Indianapolis trials, of being a racing car driver is part of the fun of growing up.

Sketchbook this week presents a sleek design plan, S-182, for both Dad and his son go get together and build. And the son can do a great deal of the construction outside of handling the power or hand saw in cutting out the body parts. He can help assemble, paint and add the finishing touches to his push -power fun racer.

The Sketchbook plan showing how the racer is made gives all parts and lumber lists. The cost of making the racer is moderate. One sheet of ½" plywood plus a 16" with of ¾" plywood some four feet long are the lumbed essentials. The wheel kit (which is detailed in the plan) is the only other major expense. Or if you are clever at adapting wheels from another toy around the home, you can use these and cut your costs considerably.

Following the details of design for the body cutouts, the assembly of the racers is no difficult job at all. Once together and with wheels under it, this is a sturdy, safe toy that will provide many hours of fun for the yound lad from age six to ten or 11. The Sketchbook 50-cent plan is available as usual through this newspaper.

Half a Lamp Better Than None in Home

Half a lamp is better than none. And it can be just as good as a full-round lamp.

The half - lamp is particularly suitable for end tables.

Fastened to the wall it's safer than a free - standing lamp, and it occupies less space.

The half - lamp does present one problem: Because the bulb is brought closer to the wall, it can cause burns. You can avoid this — and add a decorative touch to your home — by surfacing the wall with a burn-proof material such as ceramic tile.

Ceramic tile now comes in an almost endless variety of patterns and colors so that it can easily match or blend with any decor. Decorators have used this ancient material effectively as a headboard behind a bed and end tables. They also have dramatically employed it over an entire living room wall as a background setting for sofa and lamp tables.

Here's the Answer

Question: I have been reading for years about the effects of colors on the size of rooms and the moods of people, but never paid much attention to them. Now I am ready to do an extensive painting job and would like some help on the use of color.

Answer: On the fundamental side: light colors reflect more light and tend to make things appear larger than they really are. Dark colors absorb light and thus make objects appear smaller and heavier. To make a small room seem larger, therefore, paint the walls a light, cool color such as pale blue, lilac or a light aqua. Paint the walls a deep shade of one of the stimulating colors, such as coral, if you want a large room to have a sense of intimacy.

A long, narrow room can be made to look larger by painting the side walls a light cool color, such as blue-gray, and the narrow walls a deep warm shade, such as dark rose. Unattractive features in a room can be minimized by painting them the same color as their background. A gray radiator, for instance, will be inconspicuous if the walls of the room also are gray.

As for the mood idea, it is generally believed that blues, blue-greens, blue-grays and violets have a cooling, restful effect; that reds, pinks, oranges, etc., are emotionally stimulating; and that dark colors, when used too extensively, can be depressing.

QUESTION: For several years we kept three large vases on the wooden floor of our living room. We have now decided to move them to another part of the house. There are three white circles where the vases had been standing. How can these marks be removed? We believe the floor has a shellac finish.

ANSWER: It appears likely that some of the water in the vases leaked out at one time or another, or there may have been a bit of carelessness in filling them. The marks should disappear by rubbing the area with denatured alcohol. Rub lightly to prevent taking off the finish along with the marks.

If some of the finish does come off, apply shellac to the marred sections, attempting to blend it in with the surrounding surface. This may not be too easy, especially if the finish on the rest of the floor is well worn.

QUESTION: What is the best way to tighten the head of a hammer, which otherwise is in good condition?

ANSWER: Most hardware stores carry wooden or metal wedges which can be hammered into the wooden part of the hammer at the other end of the handle. Do not make the mistake of hammering a nail into the wood, which will tighten the hammer head for a while but come loose again after being used several times.

(Questions of general interest will be answered in this column. Inidvidual correspondence can not be undertaken.)

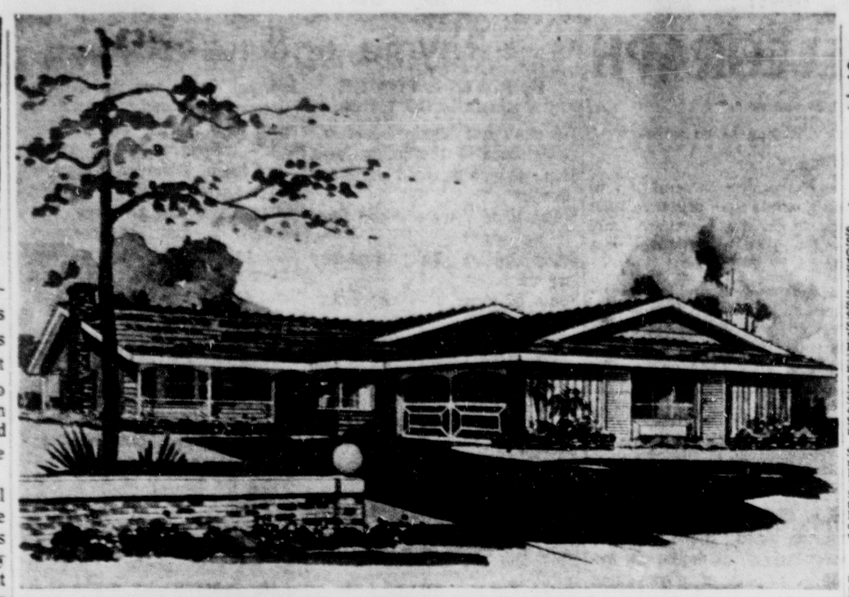
Housing Gain Is Seen by Fortune

Builders expect housing starts in the second half of 1964 to run at a rate of 1,665,000, or about five per cent higher than the actual rate for the first half of the year. Builders also look for a further rise to 1,700,000 starts in 1965.

These forecasts came in response to Fortune's semi-annual survey of home-builders. Its results will be published in the magazine, together with a somewhat more conservative forecast by Fortune's own economists — that total start will remain in the neighborhood of 1,550,000 annually for the next few years.

Apartment builders have somewhat reduced their earlier, more optimistic forecasts somewhat. Now they predict 560,000 unit starts for all of 1964 and 590,000 for 1965.

Builders of single - family homes say they are encountering growing buyer resistance. They foresee, however, that total single-family home starts, including pre-fabs) will be 1,100,000 this year and the same in 1965. Pre-fab homebuilders forecast a 15 per cent increase in their shipments this year and a similar increase next, bringing the 1965 total to over 300,000 units.



Summer Patio Can Make Winter Playroom

Is your house short a playroom?

Take a look at the possibility for winter enjoyment that your screened-in patio offers.

Most patios fall into the "useless space" category during cold winter weather, according to Robert Jacobsen, home improvement specialist for the Flexalum division of Bridgeport Brass Company. The cost of making this space over into an outdoor playroom, he claims, can be considerably less than finishing an attic or basement.

Converting a screened-in patio into a playroom involves replacing the screen panels with glass panels and adding heat, the Flexalum specialist says. The sturdy aluminum patio cover will keep out winter wind, rain and snow just as it fended off the sun during the summer.

Sufficient warmth may usually be obtained without having to alter the home's heating system, Jacobsen says. Electric or gas heaters now on the market can do an excellent job of keeping the playroom comfortable. He adds that the winter sun provides a lot more warmth than people realize, even on the coldest days.

"Although the job of the patio cover is to provide shade during the summer, in most northern locations it will permit the rays of the winter sun, which hit at a considerably lower angle, to enter and warm the patio."

Tile Is Durable Sav Promoters

Many home designers are following the lead of architects of public and commercial building by using colorful ceramic tile on building exteriors. Ceramic tile on the exterior of a home is practical as well as decorative. It is virtually impervious to all types of weather and can be set over almost any subsurfacing material. The integral beauty of ceramic tile — it's available in more than 250 colors and an infinite number of patterns — offers unusual opportunity for home design.

Real economy in home construction should be judged not by original cost alone, says the Tile Council of America, since eventual replacement costs play an important role in figuring the ultimate cost of construction. That's why it's important to avoid cutting quality in the original structure. Durable ceramic tile, for example, will last virtually the entire life of a home, and therefore is actually more economical than substitute materials that need periodic replacement.

A floor surfaced with ceramic tile is naturally safe and comfortable for walking. In special circumstances — such as a shower stall or a sundeck alongside a swimming pool — this inherent safety factor can be increased by using tile manufactured with an abrasive surface. Such tiles are usually resistant to slipping no matter how deep the puddles.

With wintry weather rapidly approaching, now's a good time to take a close look at your fireplace. Is it an artistic focal point of your home? Or is it a drab detraction?

If the latter is the case, you can resurface both the fireplace and hearth with ceramic tile. This durable material is now available in more than 250 different colors, including many decorator patterns and a wide variety of shapes. It also comes in sizes ranging from one inch to nearly one foot.

Ceramic tile is particularly well sujted for fireplaces because it can't be burned, is easily cleaned, and never needs replacing.

House Plans You Can Buy

By Hiawatha Estes, AIBD

BY Hiawatha Estes, Hibo

Here we have combined a traditional looking exterior with a completely modern floor plan. The interior layout of the design is anything but traditional as it is more in keeping with the informal living habits of our times. More important yet, its modern space-saving features obtain the maximum use out of a limited floor space.

If you have an exciting view from your building site, you will be able to make the most of it with this design. The living room has large windows facing the street and sliding glass doors at the rear of the room. There are large glass areas in both the family room and master bedroom that will allow you to take advantage of a view at either the side or rear of the lot. The plan could be reversed if your view should be on the opposite side of this layout.

The entry will appear larger since only a partial wall separates it from the living room.

So as to economically use every square foot of floor space, the fireplace just barely projects into the living room.

There is a guest closet opening to the entry at the family room door. This all-purpose room has an ideal relation to the kitchen as well as to the partially roofed patio. The sliding glass doors open to the patio from both the family and living rooms means that this huge indoor-outdoor area can be combined when entertaining.

To obtain a maximum of privacy, the master bedroom is completely separated from the remaining bedrooms.

The family bath with its pullman lavatory is located in the center of the house. A bath with a pullman lavatory plus a dressing table is accessible from both the master bedroom and the service. This arrangement eliminates the necessity of an additional bath.

The kitchen is unusually large and well arranged. The oversized eating nook is very convenient. Spacious closets have been provided for both a pantry and for brooms. A half-wall at the rear of the range opens this room just enough to the family room so that mother can join in all the family activities or observe the children playing on the patio as she goes about her work in the kitchen.

Complete working drawings for this plan can be purchased for $8.50 for the first set and $5 for each additional set when ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these prices until January 27, 1965. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. The following home plan books are also available: Hallmark Homes — $1; Homes By Hiawatha — $1; Town & Country Homes — $1; Homes For Living — $1; Distinctive Homes — $1; Ranch & Modern Homes — $2. All books — a $7 value — only $5. Send all orders for either plans or books to: Hiawath Estes, P. O. Box 404-K, Northridge, Calif.

ELIMINATE MUSTY ODOR

A good way to improve the appearance of a basement recreation room and eliminate a musty odor is to panel the area with aromatic red cedar. This wood, which is known for its moth repellency, has a pleasant aroma that is strong enough to overcome the average musty smell. Aromatic red cedar is easy to install. It comes in tongue-and-grooved pieces. Local lumber dealers carry it in pre-packaged bundles.

CALLING ALL HOME MAKERS

By Mildred Ford

Imagination and Courage Are Needed In Decorating

Mrs. Ford

When someone asks me "What are the main rules in decorating a home?", I give them this answer:

The simple ingredients are imagination, courage . . . and, good taste.

In decorating your home, remember, you are expressing your own personality. And, you should certainly consider your own basic likes and dislikes. You can do a beautiful job in many different ways and styles.

One noticeable trend today is to mix periods, woods and finishes, so it is not difficult to assemble the things you like.

I always say that money will never take the place of good taste, and all of us have seen homes furnished on a shoe-string that could win a prize in decorating shows.

So regardless of your budget, you can furnish your home attractively with the exact pieces you need and like.

And, dont be afraid to express your imagination!

When you do need assistance in selecting carpet, draperies, upholstery or slip-cover materials, we can help you pick the things you want at the price you can afford.

Ever striving for the Pikes Peak Region to be an even better place to live

This newspaper is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license nor anarchy. It is self-control, no more, no less. It must be consistent with the truths expressed in such great moral guides as the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

Talking Typewriter

We have learned, by way of our supplement, Family Weekly, of a new teaching device that is doing wonders with little children. Dr. Omar Khayyam Moore, a behavioral scientist, supplied with no more than private sums granted him by various foundations, has come up with a new teaching gimmick that is a boon for any youngster in the process of learning how to learn.

Dr. Moore, conducting research into learning processes, and working on his own, thought he had found something. He then teamed up with the engineering staff of the Thomas A. Edison Research Laboratory in West Orange, New Jersey, to manufacture a new kind of typewriter. This one talks.

It cost $400,000 to manufacture, and, at that price, we doubt very much if it is going to be listed as a handy device to have around the home in the immediate future. However, as we all know, the first of any kind of instrument to be made costs a lot of money. If this item goes into mass production, and well it may, we have no doubt that in a relatively short while, the new machine can be produced with some of those zeros taken off the right side of the figure.

The big innovation made by Professor Moore is that he will not permit any adult to have anything to do with the child's instruction. The moppet is introduced to a private booth, independently heated and airconditioned, and in this space is able to experiment at will with the keyboard of the machine which dutifully talks back every time a key is punched. In flawless diction it recites every letter of the alphabet that is activated.

But presently, once the child has experimented a bit, the machine moves into the next phase. It no longer operates haphazardly in response to the child's aimless diddling. Instead, all the keys, except one, are locked in position. The only key that works is the key that reproduces the letter which is now flashed on a television screen.

Thus, the child learns to associate the written form of the letter with the picture on the screen and is able to reproduce the same character. This way, he or she learns the alphabet. And, according to the information, this instruction can and should begin as early as two years seven months.

Indeed, the machine can begin instruction with children who have been "retarded" as a result of their exposure to less accurate and more popular "progressive" methods, so frequently a part of government schooling.

Once the child becomes proficient in recognizing letters on the screen and can punch the corresponding key with alacrity, the machine moves into the next phase. It flashes whole words on the screen and the machine responds by permitting the child to spell out each word in turn, pronouncing each letter as the process continues, and when the word has been spelled correctly, the voice of the machine responds by pronouncing the word. At this point, only the space bar can be activated. When it is, a new word appears and the child can work on that for awhile.

By this process, and without adult supervision at all, the machine deftly teaches the child the alphabet, pronunciation, spelling and word construction. Fortunately, no pictures of birds, cats or dogs are intruded to confuse the simple procedure. And best of all, the instruction method permits the child to act as a complete individual without a teacher imposing irrelevancies or distractions. The child takes his own responsibility and moves as rapidly forward as his own ability and interests permit.

Then the child is ready for a final experience. He can recite a story which is recorded on a tape and played back through the machine. Each word of the story now comes up for spelling and typing. The child learns composition and is able to create his own word sequences in sentences. At this point, some adult supervision is permitted so that grammar can be corrected and correct work usage employed.

Some will suggest that this process is pretty inhuman and mechanistic. It is. But the fact is that the little folk must be schooled in these basics at as early an age as possible to be fully capable of employing these techniques when they reach high school or college age. Learning the fundamentals is often a grueling business. But the machine makes it possible for the tiniest tyke to familiarize himself with the fundamentals in a way that is truly stimulating and accurate.

Perhaps one of these days we will see a machine of this kind, or something like it, in wide usage. We certainly hope it is put in private and independent schools so that maximum usage without political control can be encouraged.

A SLOUGH OF LAWS

We can't live legally because
Of millions of conflicting laws.
Some say do this and some say don't;
We're fined if we will and fined if we won't.
Some say we can't; some say we can.
Some of those laws are crazy, man!
So many laws and edicts are passed
That we, as a nation, are sinking fast
Into a stinking, bottomless slough
Of laws a lawyer can't see through:
Of laws that cramp our every move,
Laws by which any judge can prove
We're criminals all and ought to hang.
No wonder most of us don't give a dang.

It is a deplorable situation in which the "greatest nation on earth" finds itself today. We are bound, hog - tied, restrained and immobilized because our lawmaking machinery functions all too well. We continue to elect lawmakers long, long after our need for them has ended. And a lawmaker considers it his bounden duty to MAKE LAWS. Since all the "good" laws were passed in the first few sessions of Congress and the state legislatures they now find it necessary to pass bad ones. As our editor recently pointed out, we are encumbered by 35 million laws and another 35 million presidential and bureaucratic edicts which carry the force of laws. Seventy million laws to enforce the Ten Commandments!

It is bad enough to have the legally elected lawmakers drowning us in a sea of laws. But why was it necessary for them to grant lawmaking privileges to the heads of bureaus, from whose whimsicalities there is no appeal?

Many of the laws and edicts under which we are forced to live are fanciful, facetious and futile; trifling, trivial and terrible. And we can look forward to the passing of millions more of the same kind. Laws tend to double themselves at a faster rate than does the population. They multiply like rabbits.

The founding fathers never pictured such a morass of laws that we are floundering in today. They distinctly empowered the Congress to make ALL laws — and even that has proved to be a mistake. Who NEEDS 35 million laws? But the fathers of this republic never intended that the people should be flooded with a plethora of edicts, rules and regulations that take the place of laws from the executive or the judicial departments of the government — and, least of all, from bureaucrats who are, themselves, beyond all law.

Beginning in 1933 Congress began a retreat from its sworn responsibilities as lawmakers and has gradually let others usurp their powers. So much so that we could send Congress home and the executive, the Supreme Court and the various bureaucrats would continue to enact laws faster than a college - trained computer could count them. Before it does any more harm, Congress should outlaw itself and go home. But instead of that, congressmen keep raising their salaries and expense allowances. Not only that, they keep right on passing laws.

Quite a few years ago Bruce Barton, noted writer, was elected to Congress from New York state on a pledge to repeal a law a day so long as he served. He was elected, but failed to have even one law repealed although he did try at first. But he wound up by voting for a lot of new laws, himself.

The power to make laws is like any other power — it goes to the head. A guy might feel very humble when he is first elected to office. But it isn't long until he outgrows his humbleness and dons a cloak of arrogance, believing himself to be fit to tell his constituents how they should behave. It must be tough on the novices today. So many laws have been passed that they are hard put to find something to pass more laws about. That is the reason we are being swamped by all these pesky, gad-fly type of laws that, like a swarm of gnats, are driving us to distraction.

But the peculiar part of the whole business is the way we crown some political brows with laurel and dub them "great lawmakers" when all they have done is spend their lifetimes passing harmful, hindering and hideous laws that will one day prove our undoing.

NEWS DISTORTION

To the Editor:

I write this in partial answer to a letter in Sunday's Gazette Telegraph, concerning action of church groups, and action of some ministers. First, let me say that I appreciated the letter of Mr. John E. Kreiser — for it may do a lot of good. He wrote well, and his remarks are pertinent.

It should be said, though, that most of the present controversy concerning political action of some large church group stems from an article, of outright misstatements, given out to the various newspapers in the country by United Press International.

UPI had interviewed only two men, and in so doing asked their own PERSONAL view on some of the present political candidates. Somehow, when finally given out to the papers, the views were quoted as BEING THE VIEWS OF THE CHURCH BODY ITSELF. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I have here before me a letter, sent to me and to all ministers of our churches (the United Church of Christ), which letter says, "The UPI had no basis in fact and no representation from any member of the United Church of Christ to justify this lead paragraph. . .or a succeeding sentence in the story. The report stops just short of an endorsement of President Johnson."

The letter goes on to say, "The three opening paragraphs distort the position of the Council for Christian Social Action . . .We have never supported a candidate as such . . ."

The opening statement of the UPI article — (which I repeat is completely false and without any basis in fact) reads as follows:

"WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (UPI) A major Protestant denomination told its 2 million members today that Senator Barry Goldwater 'has set himself against the overwhelming consensus of Christian social doctrines enunciated by the churches.'"

I repeat, that there may be no mistake, the above, sent to papers by the UPI, is completely false, not sanctioned by any church body, and in my own personal opinion is another example of the undoubted news management of the present administration.

In fact, so disturbed are the leaders of the United Chruches of Christ that just this next week many of us (and I am one) have been called to a meeting in Denver to discuss ways and means of combatting this obviously deliberate distortion of the news. In case of doubt in the mind of anyone reading the article in Open Parliament, I hold the letter on file for their reading at any time.

Now for some of the rest of Mr. Kreiser's letter:

It is unfortunately true that there are ministers — of many denominations — who by their own odd-ball interpretations are doing much harm to the cause of Jesus Christ. All of these out of the way teachings — against the Virgin Birth, the miracles of Jesus, the resurrection of Christ — seem so foolish (and sometimes almost stupid) to me. Anyone — Christian or not, minister or not — need only consider the fact of creation itself to know that only the answer of a supreme being could have done what has been done. I have often used in a sermon the fact that Man has, and does do marvelous things. We have conquered the air and the sea, to some extent. We believe that we hold in our hands the terrible power and force of the atom. We, as Man, in our own conceit often do as do these misguided ministers. We speak, and think, and strut upon the stages of the world (yes, and sometimes the pulpits) as though we were indeed the masters of all creation and yet this same man in all his so-called power, in all of his vaunted knowledge, in all of his scientific learning, cannot create so much as a single blade of green grass!

Yes, there are certain types among the churches — just as there are other Gremlins —who would save the life of the enemy with a bullet.

But there are in the majority, and thinking men and women, and especially thinking and believing Christians, are not misled by them. The words of our Lord — and His teachings are in Scripture for all to read (although few do read them), and neither the words nor the actions of a few misguided souls will alter the inevitable working of the Creator Mind.

We know that there will always be the teachings and the actions of the Demoniac for the Scriptures themselves tell us so. We must be aware of them, but not fear them for "all the legions of Hell shall not prevail."

One last piece of thought:

Mr. Kreiser spoke of the delinquents, the broken homes, the mental cases, and the other serious troubles of our society.

Let us consider: Combine all of our churches, our synagogues, and our temples, and they are outnumbered by our taverns by 175,000. In our nation, which is the supposedly most civilized, most Christian nation on earth, we now have over 37 million children who receive absolutely no religious education.

Juvenile crime is increasing five times faster than our growth of population.

In all fairness these things are not entirely the fault of the churches, or the denominations, or of the odd-ball ministers. The fault lies directly on one doorstep — the doorstep of the adults who do not care, who make the liquor laws — who do not educate their children, or see that they get religious training.

Here, in our little town of Cripple Creek, we have a population of 650 and we have a liquor outlet for every 81 persons in the area! We of the churches spend much money and time. We do everything in our power to honestly teach the young and we try to be of every possible service to the community. But until the adults of every community take an active interest in their young ones, until they are concerned enough to wonder where they are and what they are doing at two o'clock in the morning, until the adults are willing to take upon themselves the responsibilities of guarding the futures of the young people rather than leaving it all to the police, the schools, and the churches (to which they do not send them) — until such time we shall continue to have a soaring crime rate, a soaring delinquency rate, and a continued indifference to the teachings or the will of our God.

Yes, there are ministers at fault. Yes, there are churches at fault. But so long as we ourselves, the adults of these United States, allow corruption in high places, allow managed news, allow the government to take over paternally, just so long as we, the should-be-responsible adults, do not work according to our responsibility, just so long will we continue to be the Godless, the irresponsible, the immoral, and the rapidly failing nation that we presently are.

Yes, the ministers, and the churches, and the Word of God can help, and can change things, but only if we, the adults of this nation, accept our responsibilities and turn again to these opportunities for change.

Rough talk? Yes, but the Scriptures are plain, and it is time for us to forget the soft way — and get back to such plain thinking!

TERRIBLE POWER

To the Editor:

Khrushchev's monstrous new "terrible weapon" that can destroy all humanity in man "is a means of the destruction and extermination" and is "power without limit," sounds like Nikita has discovered Communism.

Nothing else has so killed the humanity in men, nothing else has destroyed 40 million people in the Soviet Union and another 20 million in Red China, and what is communism but power without limit?

There has never before been a "weapon" like unto communism which can exert so much power over so many and so much of the earth.

It's Up to You

The Road to Recognition

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Three virtuosos supported by an orchestra were giving a marvelous interpretation of a classical masterpiece not more than 10 feet from where I sat enraptured by their skill. The intensity of their effort was amazing. The evening was not warm but the sweat poured off them. With intense concentration, they seemed to be putting every ounce of their spiritual and physical abilities into the effort. There was marvelous intellectual and muscular coordination. No matter how talented, no one could do what these men did without prodigious and sustained effort over many years.

These men have very little competition because hard work has lifted them to the pinnacle of human capacity. There is little demand for shorter hours among professional men.

There are thousands of pianists, violinists, and cellists in our country but less than a score of them are equals with these three men. Even the orchestra composed of skillful musicians was not on the same plane of accomplishment. The very thought of equality in this setting appeared ludicrous. Is it not so in all professions? Why does the skilled doctor and lawyer have a large lucrative practice? Because his highly cultivated abilities and hard work enable him to serve his clients. Just tell a man whose life has been saved by a hair that all doctors are equal! Or a man who has survived a legal crisis by the exceptional skill of his attorney that there is equality among lawyers.

In lesser degree only, the same distinctions we have been considering, apply to all men and to all trades and professions.

In the first place, there is a vast difference between the mental and physical endowments of individuals. Their abilities are all different. No two are alike. In the second place, there is an equally great or greater difference between what people do with the talents they possess. Some, like the musicians referred to above, work very hard and very long hours acquiring thereby greatly superior skill. Even those who might have equal ability to start with, but who lack the will to strive unceasingly never attain equality with those who do.

Now let us suppose that our richly talented hard working were paid no more than their far less able fellows or that the differential in pay was not sufficiently marked or that the progressive income tax took from the skilled and the able an undue portion of their earnings. There would, of course, be less incentive for them to put in long hours of hard work in developing their capacities and the world would be deprived of a considerable part of their abilities. On the other hand, those with less skill and ability and less drive to pay the price of long hours and intensive effort would have much less incentive to strive. If the man who works hard is paid but little more than the one who jogs along at a relaxed pace, the latter will be encouraged and quite content because he is not much punished for taking life easy. Only the incentive of great reward will drive men to put their whole heart, mind, soul, body and strength into their work.

Any civilization which encourages and rewards its citizens to develop their capacities to the fullest possible extent will flourish and go on to higher and higher standards of living. Unfortunately, the converse also is true that any civilization which fails to encourage its extraordinary citizens and, in fact, all its citizens to develop their initiative and do their best, and fails to reward them in proportion to their efforts, must inevitably decline.

Post 'Endorses' LBJ

If you think you have all the troubles in the world trying to maintain a right-wing position, consider the plight of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Post, after suffering a serious plunge in circulation, embarked on what its editor described as a career of "genteel mud - raking" interlaced with increasing political liberalism.

Now the Post has endorsed Lyndon Johnson, the first time the venerable magazine has turned against a Republican presidential candidate.

The Post devotes an entire page to its announcement; but only seven of its 76 lines have anything to say about Lyndon. The remainder are devoted to anti-Goldwater.

Indeed, the Post says:

"The Post therefore urges the election of Lyndon B. Johnson as President.

"It urges, even more strongly, the defeat of Barry Goldwater."

It finds Goldwater to be "a grotesque burlesque of the conservative he pretends to be. . . a wild man. . . a thug. . .an unprincipled and ruthless political fighter like Joe McCarthy . . ."

The Post proves off Johnson as "a fine man; a good man, honest, loyal to get things passed by Congress, devoted to the welfare of his fellow men, etc. etc. It would be hard to find a man the Post did not have too much enthusiasm for Lyndon, when you got right down to it. The attitude was almost entirely anti-Goldwater.

(Come, come. Liberals never are "negative" in their thinking.)

We began to appreciate the Post's dilemma when, in the same issue, we picked up the Washington Report of its capital editor and chief pundit Stewart Alsop.

Mr. Alsop doesn't say anything much for Lyndon except that he is "extraordinarily able" (to do what?) but he finds, rather inaccurately, we suspect, that LBJ has "one flaw."

"This," writes Alsop, "is the sin. . .of pride which is followed as night follows day. . . by excess and excess in turn leads to the final fatal fall. . ."

We are advised by the Post to vote for a man who, in the opinion of their own groundfloor observer in Washington, bears the sin of pride which inveriably will lead to "excess" and eventually to the "final fatal fall. . ."

We are not sure who is going to "fall," Lyndon or the country of which he is President, but it's too much of a risk to take.

Mr. Alsop goes on to suggest that Lyndon's garish attempts to disclaim a haughty spirit do not come off well. He accuses Lyndon of having "pride that apes humility."

We are interested in the quotation and found that Coleridge had written:

"And the devil did grin for his darling sin
"Is pride that apes humility."

Not a very nice thing to throw at a fellow you advocate for the presidency.

Our researches turned up a similar quotation from Southey:

"His favorite sin

And John Ruskin wrote:

"Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes."

Old Testament, Proverbs, 6: 18:

"Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall."

These are not comforting thoughts when applied to a fellow you're advocating for President.

We were rather shaken, too, by Alsop's analysis that President Johnson's overwooning vainglory will lead to "excess."

Excess, somehow, sounds like it might be closely related to "extremism" and if there is one thing all good liberals are opposed to it is extremism, even in defense of liberty.

How can we maintain a consistently anti - extreme attitude when Our Leader is inevitably committed to "excess" because of his "pride that apes humility"? Perhaps the answer is that we will become excessively unextreme, or moderately excessive. Alsop and the Post don't go into the matter.

It is, in a way, revealing that Alsop, in his first and last paragraph, used the word "able" to describe Lyndon. It is, in fact, about the most nearly complimentary term he can think of. He doesn't accuse the President of great depth of intellect, honesty, integrity or fussiness of principles.

He says only he is "able." He doesn't even say what Lyndon is "able" to do.

Many people are able. Hitler, Stalin and Khrushchev were long on ability. It takes a little more spelling out.

Well, as we started to remark, if there is any comfort to be derived from the Post's new venture in liberal politics it can be found in the obvious discomfiture of a journal which has determined to support a man it doesn't like very much.

The Post is, of course, more against someone than for his opponent. In its hatred of Goldwater it has thrown in with a man it advertises as being rather unprincipled in that he pretends to be humble when, actually, he is afflicted with a fatal pride which will lead to "excess" and, eventually, "a fatal fall."

Indeed, how uncomfortable a position in which to be.

How Scarcity Spurs Production

By OSCAR COOLEY
Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Scarcity is not the same as poverty. Poverty is hard to define but it comes close to say that poverty is the condition of a person who is satisfying so few of his wants that he is in actual pain or distress.

Now a person may have scarcity but scarcity is the gap between what a person has and what he wants. He may have a great deal — be rich, in fact— and still have many unfilled wants; therefore, he has great scarcity.

The American people as a whole are in this class. They have a lot but they want much more. They have great scarcity. This is proven by their feverish activity.

CAN'T BE MEASURED

Just how much scarcity people have is impossible to say, because we do not know how much they want. Only they know. It is safe to say, however, that the American people have more scarcity than do the people of the Congo, or of other relatively poor countries, because as a people consume more their horizon expands and they come to see many wants that a poorer people cannot even imagine.

For example, assume that a savage people live on raw meat. Then they discover fire and they find that meat tastes better after being cooked. Now they are not satisfied with raw meat; they must have fuel to make a fire and a pot to cook the meat in. They have wants for fuel and pot, and lacking these they suffer scarcity, a scarcity which was not present in the period when they ate their meat raw.

For another example, the American Indians traveled afoot or horseback. No roads, only trails, were necessary. Then came the white men, who had discovered the wheel and traveled in wagons and on roads wide and firm enough to bear these vehicles.

Then gasoline engines were placed in the vehicles, greatly increasing their speed. Now the roads had to be smooth, hard ribbons of concrete. The Indian had no want of concrete roads. By our standard, the Indian was poverty - stricken, but he did not suffer from scarcity of concrete roads, service stations, and motels We, on the other hand, spend huge sums of energy to get these things, proving they are a scarcity to us.

NO END TO THE ROAD

Economics is the science of overcoming scarcity. But let us not make the mistake of assuming that the road of overcoming scarcity has an end at which we shall arrive some time, and that that time will be an "age of abundance," when there will no longer be any scarcity to overcome. There is no prospect of this. Rather, the richer a people become, the more unfilled wants, or scarcity, they have. Hence, we never come to the end of the economics road.

Recently, I mentioned the "Ad Hoc Committee," which has issued a pamphlet stating that man's machines are now so productive that he no longer need work, hence wages should be divorced from work and men should be paid whether they work or not.

These people say that man has at last arrived in an age of abundance when he no longer, like Adam, must eat bread "in the sweat of thy face." Labor being unnecessary (machines having taken its place), we no longer need pay people to labor. All can just lean back and consume the products of the machines.

In short, according to this "Ad Hoc Committee," there IS an end to the economics road, and we are there—Eureka!

Men are constantly satsifying wants, but this does not mean they come to the end of their wants — to a time when they no longer have wants.

What the "Ad Hoc Committee" is really saying is that men OUGHT not to have more wants — that they OUGHT to be satisfied at this point (why at THIS point?) and stop expanding production, distributing the present product among all.

But who is this "Ad Hoc Committee" to make any such decision? Do not people decide for themselves whether they shall strive to satisy more wants or not? Of course they do.

And America, teeming with productive activity, demonstrates that the people have already decided that they have not reached an age of abundance — that they aim to go right on satisfying wants.

The people of Asia, Africa and Latin America also are becoming conscious of having great unsatisfied wants and are bestirring themselves to produce want-satisfying wealth.

These nations are called "under-developed," but they are under-developed only in a relative sense. They have less wealth than we have, and they also have fewer wants. As they get more wealth, they will also get more wants. As they want more, they will be spurred to produce more. Then their productivity will accelerate.

Scarcity, or the excess of wants over wealth, is a great stimulus.

Being told to write an essay on the mule, a small boy turned in to his teacher the following effort: "The mewl is a hardier bird than the guse or turkie. It was two legs to walk with, two more to kick with, and wears its wings on the sides of its head. It is stubbornly backward about coming forward."

A—Meteorologists do not think so. They point out that the energy released by 100 bombs would be insignificant compared with the natural forces released in a single storm over the Atlantic seaboard.

Talking Typewriter

We have learned, by way of our supplement, Family Weekly, of a new teaching device that is doing wonders with little children. Dr. Omar Khayyam Moore, a behavioral scientist, supplied with no more than private sums granted him by various foundations, has come up with a new teaching gimmick that is a boon for any youngster in the process of learning how to learn.

Dr. Moore, conducting research into learning processes, and working on his own, thought he had found something. He then teamed up with the engineering staff of the Thomas A. Edison Research Laboratory in West Orange, New Jersey, to manufacture a new kind of typewriter. This one talks.

It cost $400,000 to manufacture, and, at that price, we doubt very much if it is going to be listed as a handy device to have around the home in the immediate future. However, as we all know, the first of any kind of instrument to be made costs a lot of money. If this item goes into mass production, and well it may, we have no doubt that in a relatively short while, the new machine can be produced with some of those zeros taken off the right side of the figure.

The big innovation made by Professor Moore is that he will not permit any adult to have anything to do with the child's instruction. The moppet is introduced to a private booth, independently heated and airconditioned, and in this space is able to experiment at will with the keyboard of the machine which dutifully talks back every time a key is punched. In flawless diction it recites every letter of the alphabet that is activated.

But presently, once the child has experimented a bit, the machine moves into the next phase. It no longer operates haphazardly in response to the child's aimless diddling. Instead, all the keys, except one, are locked in position. The only key that works is the key that reproduces the letter which is now flashed on a television screen.

Thus, the child learns to associate the written form of the letter with the picture on the screen and is able to reproduce the same character. This way, he or she learns the alphabet. And, according to the information, this instruction can and should begin as early as two years seven months.

Indeed, the machine can begin instruction with children who have been "retarded" as a result of their exposure to less accurate and more popular "progressive" methods, so frequently a part of government schooling.

Once the child becomes proficient in recognizing letters on the screen and can punch the corresponding key with alacrity, the machine moves into the next phase. It flashes whole words on the screen and the machine responds by permitting the child to spell out each word in turn, pronouncing each letter as the process continues, and when the word has been spelled correctly, the voice of the machine responds by pronouncing the word. At this point, only the space bar can be activated. When it is, a new word appears and the child can work on that for awhile.

By this process, and without adult supervision at all, the machine deftly teaches the child the alphabet, pronunciation, spelling and word construction. Fortunately, no pictures of birds, cats or dogs are intruded to confuse the simple procedure. And best of all, the instruction method permits the child to act as a complete individual without a teacher imposing irrelevancies or distractions. The child takes his own responsibility and moves as rapidly forward as his own ability and interests permit.

Then the child is ready for a final experience. He can recite a story which is recorded on a tape and played back through the machine. Each word of the story now comes up for spelling and typing. The child learns composition and is able to create his own word sequences in sentences. At this point, some adult supervision is permitted so that grammar can be corrected and correct work usage employed.

Some will suggest that this process is pretty inhuman and mechanistic. It is. But the fact is that the little folk must be schooled in these basics at as early an age as possible to be fully capable of employing these techniques when they reach high school or college age. Learning the fundamentals is often a grueling business. But the machine makes it possible for the tiniest tyke to familiarize himself with the fundamentals in a way that is truly stimulating and accurate.

Perhaps one of these days we will see a machine of this kind, or something like it, in wide usage. We certainly hope it is put in private and independent schools so that maximum usage without political control can be encouraged.

A SLOUGH OF LAWS

We can't live legally because
Of millions of conflicting laws.
Some say do this and some say don't;
We're fined if we will and fined if we won't.
Some say we can't; some say we can.
Some of those laws are crazy, man!
So many laws and edicts are passed
That we, as a nation, are sinking fast
Into a stinking, bottomless slough
Of laws a lawyer can't see through;
Of laws that cramp our every move,
Laws by which any judge can prove
We're criminals all and ought to hang.
No wonder most of us don't give a dang.

It is a deplorable situation in which the "greatest nation on earth" finds itself today. We are bound, hog - tied, restrained and immobilized because our lawmaking machinery functions all too well. We continue to elect lawmakers long, long after our need for them has ended. And a lawmaker considers it his bounden duty to MAKE LAWS. Since all the "good" laws were passed in the first few sessions of Congress and the state legislatures they now find it necessary to pass bad ones. As our editor recently pointed out, we are encumbered by 35 million laws and another 35 million presidential and bureaucratic edicts which carry the force of laws. Seventy million laws to enforce the Ten Commandments!

It is bad enough to have the legally elected lawmakers drowning us in a sea of laws. But why was it necessary for them to grant lawmaking privileges to the heads of bureaus, from whose whimsicalities there is no appeal?

Many of the laws and edicts under which we are forced to live are fanciful, facetious and futile; trifling, trivial and terrible. And we can look forward to the passing of millions more of the same kind. Laws tend to double themselves at a faster rate than does the population. They multiply like rabbits.

The founding fathers never pictured such a morass of laws that we are floundering in today. They distinctly empowered the Congress to make ALL laws — and even that has proved to be a mistake. Who NEEDS 35 million laws? But the fathers of this republic never intended that the people should be flooded with a plethora of edicts, rules and regulations that take the place of laws from the executive or the judicial departments of the government — and, least of all, from bureaucrats who are, themselves, beyond all law.

Beginning in 1933 Congress began a retreat from its sworn responsibilities as lawmakers and has gradually let others usurp their powers. So much so that we could send Congress home and the executive, the Supreme Court and the various bureaucrats would continue to enact laws faster than a college - trained computer could count them. Before it does any more harm, Congress should outlaw itself and go home. But instead of that, congressmen keep raising their salaries and expense allowances. Not only that, they keep right on passing laws.

Quite a few years ago Bruce Barton, noted writer, was elected to Congress from New York state on a pledge to repeal a law a day so long as he served. He was elected, but failed to have even one law repealed although he did try at first. But he wound up by voting for a lot of new laws, himself.

The power to make laws is like any other power — it goes to the head. A guy might feel very humble when he is first elected to office. But it isn't long until he outgrows his humbleness and dons a cloak of arrogance, believing himself to be fit to tell his constituents how they should behave. It must be tough on the novices today. So many laws have been passed that they are hard put to find something to pass more laws about. That is the reason we are being swamped by all these pesky, gad-fly type of laws that, like a swarm of gnats, are driving us to distraction.

But the peculiar part of the whole business is the way we crown some political brows with laurel and dub them "great lawmakers" when all they have done is spend their lifetimes passing harmful, hindering and hideous laws that will one day prove our undoing.

NEWS DISTORTION

To the Editor:

I write this in partial answer to a letter in Sunday's Gazette Telegraph, concerning action of church groups, and action of some ministers. First, let me say that I appreciated the letter of Mr. John E. Kreiser — for it may do a lot of good. He wrote well, and his remarks are pertinent.

It should be said, though, that most of the present controversy concerning political action of some large church group stems from an article, of outright misstatements, given out to the various newspapers in the country by United Press International.

UPI had interviewed only two men, and in so doing asked their own PERSONAL view on some of the present political candidates. Somehow, when finally given out to the papers, the views were quoted as BEING THE VIEWS OF THE CHURCH BODY ITSELF. Nothing could be further from the truth.

I have here before me a letter, sent to me and to all ministers of our churches (the United Church of Christ), which letter says, "The UPI had no basis in fact and no representation from any member of the United Church of Christ to justify this lead paragraph. . .or a succeeding sentence in the story. The report stops just short of an endorsement of President Johnson."

The letter goes on to say, "The three opening paragraphs distort the position of the Council for Christian Social Action . . .We have never supported a candidate as such . . ."

The opening statement of the UPI article — (which I repeat is completely false and without any basis in fact) reads as follows:

"WASHINGTON, Sept. 18 (UPI) A major Protestant denomination told its 2 million members today that Senator Barry Goldwater 'has set himself against the overwhelming consensus of Christian social doctrines enunciated by the churches.'"

I repeat, that there may be no mistake, the above, sent to papers by the UPI, is completely false, not sanctioned by any church body, and in my own personal opinion is another example of the undoubted news management of the present administration.

In fact, so disturbed are the leaders of the United Chruches of Christ that just this next week many of us (and I am one) have been called to a meeting in Denver to discuss ways and means of combatting this obviously deliberate distortion of the news. In case of doubt in the mind of anyone reading the article in Open Parliament, I hold the letter on file for their reading at any time.

Now for some of the rest of Mr. Kreiser's letter:

It is unfortunately true that there are ministers — of many denominations — who by their own odd-ball interpretations are doing much harm to the cause of Jesus Christ. All of these out of the way teachings — against the Virgin Birth, the miracles of Jesus, the resurrection of Christ — seem so foolish (and sometimes almost stupid) to me. Anyone — Christian or not, minister or not — need only consider the fact of creation itself to know that only the answer of a supreme being could have done what has been done. I have often used in a sermon the fact that Man has, and does do marvelous things. We have conquered the air and the sea, to some extent. We believe that we hold in our hands the terrible power and force of the atom. We, as Men, in our own conceit often do as do these misguided ministers. We speak, and think, and strut upon the stages of the world (yes, and sometimes the pulpits) as though we were indeed the masters of all creation and yet this same man in all his so-called power, in all of his vaunted knowledge, in all of his scientific learning, cannot create so much as a single blade of green grass!

Yes, there are certain types among the churches — just as there are other Oswalds —who would cure the ills of the country with a bullet.

But these are in the minority, and thinking men and women, and especially thinking and believing Christians, are not misled by them. The words of our Lord — and His teachings are in Scripture for all to read (although few do read them), and neither the words nor the actions of a few misguided souls will alter the inevitable working of the Creator Mind.

We know that there will always be the teachings and the actions of the Demoniac for the Scriptures themselves tell us so. We must be aware of them, but not fear them for "all the legions of Hell shall not prevail."

One last piece of thought:

Mr. Kreiser spoke of the delinquents, the broken homes, the mental cases, and the other serious troubles of our society.

Let us consider: Combine all of our churches, our synagogues, and our temples, and they are outnumbered by our taverns by 175,000. In our nation, which is the supposedly most civilized, most Christian nation on earth, we now have over 37 million children who receive absolutely no religious education.

Juvenile crime is increasing five times faster than our growth of population.

In all fairness these things are not entirely the fault of the churches, or the denominations, or of the odd-ball ministers. The fault lies directly on one doorstep — the doorstep of the adults who do not care, who make the liquor laws — who do not educate their children, or see that they get religious training.

Here, in our little town of Cripple Creek, we have a population of 650 and we have a liquor outlet for every 81 persons in the area! We of the churches spend much money and time. We do everything in our power to honestly teach the young and we try to be of every possible service to the community. But until the adults of every community take an active interest in their young ones, until they are concerned enough to wonder where they are and what they are doing at two o'clock in the morning, until the adults are willing to take upon themselves the responsibilities of guarding the futures of the young people rather than leaving it all to the police, the schools, and the churches (to which they do not send them) — until such time we shall continue to have a soaring crime rate, a soaring delinquency rate, and a continued indifference to the teachings or the will of our God.

Yes, there are ministers at fault. Yes, there are churches at fault. But so long as we ourselves, the adults of these United States, allow corruption in high places, allow managed news, allow the government to take over paternally, just so long as we, the should-be-responsible adults, do not work according to our responsibility, just so long will we continue to be the Godless, the irresponsible, the immoral, and the rapidly failing nation that we presently are.

Yes, the ministers, and the churches, and the Word of God can help, and can change things, but only if we, the adults of this nation, accept our responsibilities and turn again to these opportunities for change.

Rough talk? Yes, but the Scriptures are plain, and it is time for us to forget the soft way — and get back to such plain thinking!

TERRIBLE POWER

To the Editor:

Khrushchev's monstrous new "terrible weapon" that can destroy all humanity in man "is a means of the destruction and extermination" and is "power without limit," sounds like Nikita has discovered Communism.

Nothing else has so killed the humanity in men, nothing else has destroyed 40 million people in the Soviet Union and another 20 million in Red China, and what is communism but power without limit?

There has never before been a "weapon" like unto communism which can exert so much power over so many and so much of the earth.

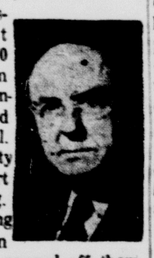
It's Up to You

The Road to Recognition

By H. E. KERSHNER, L.H.D.

Three virtuosos supported by an orchestra were giving a marvelous interpretation of a classical masterpiece not more than 10 feet from where I sat enraptured by their skill. The intensity of their effort was amazing. The evening was not warm but the sweat poured off them. With intense concentration, they seemed to be putting every ounce of their spiritual and physical abilities into the effort. There was marvelous intellectual and muscular coordination. No matter how talented, no one could do what these men did without prodigious and sustained effort over many years.



These men have very little competition because hard work has lifted them to the pinnacle of human capacity. There is little demand for shorter hours among professional men.

There are thousands of pianists, violinists, and cellists in our country but less than a score of them are equals with these three men. Even the orchestra composed of skillful musicians was not on the same plane of accomplishment. The very thought of equality in this setting appeared ludicrous. Is it not so in all professions? Why does the skilled doctor and lawyer have a large lucrative practice? Because his highly cultivated abilities and hard work enable him to serve his clients. Just tell a man whose life has been saved by a hair that all doctors are equal! Or a man who has survived a legal crisis by the exceptional skill of his attorney that there is equality among lawyers.

In lesser degree only, the same distinctions we have been considering, apply to all men and to all trades and professions.

In the first place, there is a vast difference between the mental and physical endowments of individuals. Their abilities are all different. No two are alike. In the second place, there is an equally great or greater difference between what people do with the talents they possess. Some, like the musicians referred to above, work very hard and very long hours acquiring thereby greatly superior skill. Even those who might have equal ability to start with, but who lack the will to strive unceasingly never attain equality with those who do.

Now let us suppose that our richly talented hard working were paid no more than their far less able fellows or that the differential in pay was not sufficiently marked or that the progressive income tax took from the skilled and the able an undue portion of their earnings. There would, of course, be less incentive for them to put in long hours of hard work in developing their capacities and the world would be deprived of a considerable part of their abilities. On the other hand, those with less skill and ability and less drive to pay the price of long hours and intensive effort would have much less incentive to strive. If the man who works hard is paid but little more than the one who jogs along at a relaxed pace, the latter will be encouraged and quite content because he is not much penalized for taking life easy. Only the incentive of great reward will drive men to put their whole heart, mind, soul, body and strength into their work.

Any civilization which encourages and rewards its citizens to develop their capacities to the fullest possible extent will flourish and go on to higher and higher standards of living. Unfortunately, the converse also is true that any civilization which fails to encourage its extraordinary citizens and, in fact, all its citizens to develop their initiative and do their best, and fails to reward them in proportion to their efforts, must inevitably decline.

Post 'Endorses' LBJ

If you think you have all the troubles in the world trying to maintain a right-wing position, consider the plight of the Saturday Evening Post.

The Post, after suffering a serious plunge in circulation, embarked on what its editor described as a career of "genteel mud - raking" interlaced with increasing political liberalism.

Now the Post has endorsed Lyndon Johnson, the first time the venerable magazine has turned against a Republican presidential candidate.

The Post devotes an entire page to its announcement; but only seven of its 76 lines have anything to say about Lyndon. The remainder are devoted to anti-Goldwater.

Indeed, the Post says:

"The Post therefore urges the election of Lyndon B. Johnson as President.

"It urges, even more strongly, the defeat of Barry Goldwater."

It finds Goldwater to be "a grotesque burlesque of the conservative he pretends to be. . . a wild man. . .a stray. . .an unprincipled and ruthless political jujitsu artist like Joe McCarthy . . ."

The Post passes off Johnson in a few lines: a good man, knows how to get things passed by Congress, handled the situation in the Gulf of Tonkin well.

It seemed that the Post did not have too much enthusiasm for Lyndon, when you got right down to it. The attitude was almost entirely anti-Goldwater.

(Come, come. Liberals never are "negative" in their thinking.)

We began to appreciate the Post's dilemma when, in the same issue, we picked up the Washington Report of its capital editor and chief pundit Stewart Alsop.

Mr. Alsop doesn't say anything much for Lyndon except that he is "extraordinarily able" (to do what?) but he finds, rather inaccurately, we suspect, that LBJ has "one flaw."

"This," writes Alsop, "is the sin. . .of pride which is followed as night follows day. . . by excess and excess in turn leads to the final fatal fall. . ."

We are advised by the Post to vote for a man who, in the opinion of their own groundfloor observer in Washington, bears the sin of pride which invariably will lead to "excess" and eventually to the "final fatal fall. . ."

We are not sure who is going to "fall," Lyndon or the country of which he is President, but it's too much of a risk to take.

Mr. Alsop goes on to suggest that Lyndon's gauche attempts to disclaim a haughty spirit do not come off well. He accuses Lyndon of having "pride that apes humility."

We are interested in the quotation and found that Coleridge had written:

"And the devil did grin for his darling sin
"Is pride that apes humility."

Not a very nice thing to throw at a fellow you advocate for the presidency.

Our researches turned up a similar quotation from Southey:

"His favorite sin

And John Ruskin wrote:

"Pride is at the bottom of all great mistakes."

Old Testament, Proverbs, 6: 18:

"Pride goeth before destruction and a haughty spirit before a fall."

These are not comforting thoughts when applied to a fellow you're advocating for President.

We were rather shaken, too, by Alsop's analysis that President Johnson's overweening vainglory will lead to "excess."

Excess, somehow, sounds like it might be closely related to "extremism" and if there is one thing all good liberals are opposed to it is extremism, even in defense of liberty.

How can we maintain a consistently anti - extreme attitude when Our Leader is inevitably committed to "excess" because of his "pride that apes humility"? Perhaps the answer is that we will become excessively unextreme, or moderately excessive. Alsop and the Post don't go into the matter.

It is, in a way, revealing that Alsop, in his first and last paragraph, used the word "able" to describe Lyndon. It is, in fact, about the most nearly complimentary term he can think of. He doesn't accuse the President of great depth of intellect, honesty, integrity or fussiness of principles.

He says only he is "able." He doesn't even say what Lyndon is "able" to do.

Many people are able. Hitler, Stalin and Khrushchev were long on ability. It takes a little more spelling out.

Well, as we started to remark, if there is any comfort to be derived from the Post's new venture in liberal politics it can be found in the obvious discomfiture of a journal which has determined to support a man it doesn't like very much.

The Post is, of course, more against someone than for his opponent. In its hatred of Goldwater it has thrown in with a man it advertises as being rather unprincipled in that he pretends to be humble when, actually, he is afflicted with a fatal pride which will lead to "excess" and, eventually, "a fatal fall."

Indeed, how uncomfortable a position in which to be.

How Scarcity Spurs Production

By OSCAR COOLEY
Professor of Economics
Ohio Northern University

Scarcity is not the same as poverty. Poverty is hard to define but it comes close to say that poverty is the condition of a person who is satisfying so few of his wants that he is in actual pain or distress.

Now a person may have scarcity but scarcity is the gap between what a person has and what he wants. He may have a great deal — be rich, in fact— and still have many unfilled wants; therefore, he has great scarcity.

The American people as a whole are in this class. They have a lot but they want much more. They have great scarcity. This is proven by their feverish activity.

CAN'T BE MEASURED

Just how much scarcity people have is impossible to say, because we do not know how much they want. Only they know. It is safe to say, however, that the American people have more scarcity than do the people of the Congo, or of other relatively poor countries, because as a people consume more their horizon expands and they come to see many wants that a poorer people cannot even imagine.

For example, assume that a savage people live on raw meat. Then they discover fire and they find that meat tastes better after being cooked. Now they are not satisfied with raw meat; they must have fuel to make a fire and a pot to cook the meat in. They have wants for fuel and pot, and lacking these they suffer scarcity, a scarcity which was not present in the period when they ate their meat raw.

For another example, the American Indians traveled afoot or horseback. No roads, only trails, were necessary. Then came the white men, who had discovered the wheel and traveled in wagons and on roads wide and firm enough to bear these vehicles.

Then gasoline engines were placed in the vehicles, greatly increasing their speed. Now the roads had to be smooth, hard ribbons of concrete. The Indian had no want of concrete roads. By our standard, the Indian was poverty - stricken, but he did not suffer from scarcity of concrete roads, service stations, and motels We, on the other hand, spend huge sums of energy to get these things, proving they are a scarcity to us.

NO END TO THE ROAD

Economics is the science of overcoming scarcity. But let us not make the mistake of assuming that the road of overcoming scarcity has an end at which we shall arrive some time, and that that time will be an "age of abundance," when there will no longer be any scarcity to overcome. There is no prospect of this. Rather, the richer a people become, the more unfilled wants, or scarcity, they have. Hence, we never come to the end of the economics road.

Recently, I mentioned the "Ad Hoc Committee," which has issued a pamphlet stating that man's machines are now so productive that he no longer need work, hence wages should be divorced from work and men should be paid whether they work or not.

These people say that man has at last arrived in an age of abundance when he no longer, like Adam, must eat bread "in the sweat of thy face." Labor being unnecessary (machines having taken its place), we no longer need pay people to labor. All can just lean back and consume the products of the machines.

In short, according to this "Ad Hoc Committee," there IS an end to the economics road, and we are there—Eureka!

Men are constantly satsifying wants, but this does not mean they come to the end of their wants — to a time when they no longer have wants.

What the "Ad Hoc Committee" is really saying is that men OUGHT not to have more wants — that they OUGHT to be satisfied at this point (why at THIS point?) and stop expanding production, distributing the present product among all.

But who is this "Ad Hoc Committee" to make any such decision? Do not people decide for themselves whether they shall strive to satisy more wants or not? Of course they do.

And America, teeming with productive activity, demonstrates that the people have already decided that they have not reached an age of abundance — that they aim to go right on satisfying wants.

The people of Asia, Africa and Latin America also are becoming conscious of having great unsatisfied wants and are bestirring themselves to produce want-satisfying wealth.

These nations are called "under-developed," but they are under-developed only in a relative sense. They have less wealth than we have, and they also have fewer wants. As they get more wealth, they will also get more wants. As they want more, they will be spurred to produce more. Then their productivity will accelerate.

Scarcity, or the excess of wants over wealth, is a great stimulus.

Vatican Council To Delve Into Marriage Rule

By BENNET M. BOLTON

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican Ecumenical Council rapidly moving today toward the end of theological discussions at its third session, will soon take up a topic on marriage that could result in easing the written promises of non-Catholics in mixed marriages.

The council schema on marriage will delve into complicated questions of impediments to Catholic marriages, church courts handling the dissolution of marriages, the ceremony and nature of marriage as a sacrament and the obligations of partners in mixed marriages.

The schema will not resolve the question of birth control. This is part of a separate schema on the Church in the modern world and a subject on which Pope Paul VI has promised a new study taking into account recent medical and theological investigations.

The Roman Catholic Church has long required the non-Catholic partner in a mixed arriage to sign a pledge that any children will be baptized and educated as Catholics.

Many bishops, especially from countries like the United States where catholicism is not the dominant religion, share the view of British Archbishop John C. Heenan that it should be possible for non-Catholics to agree on the Catholic upbringing of children without signing a promise.

"Some people have an actual objection to the physical act of signing a promise — willing to say 'yes' and agree, but not liking the written promise," the British prelate said recently.

"Now that kind of objection could easily be met. What I would not be prepared to say is that the council will decree that it no longer matters about promising to bring up the children as Catholics. I cannot imagine the council will say that," Heenan said.

The council also might open the way for a mixed marriage to be blessed by non-Catholic ministers as well as by the Catholic priest who solemnizes the nuptials.

Both issues — the written promise and the restriction of blessing of mixed marriages by the Catholic Church alone — are obstacles to Christian unity.

The Catholic attitude gradually has changed in recent decades. At one time mixed marriages were customarily performed only in the parish rectory. Today they are celebrated in the church itself, though without a nuptial mass.

Other changes are likely to speed up the long delays in dissolving marriages involving Catholics. The Sacred Roman Rota, supreme tribunal of catholicism in settling marriage cases, may be extended in scope beyond the Vatican so that lesser rotas could be created in individual nations.

No matter what changes the council approves, the Church is expected to stand by its view that mixed marriage should be avoided if possible, an attitude shared by many non-Catholic ministers.

An American Catholic theologian warned recently: "If you want a happy marriage, there is one class of people you should avoid — and that is Catholics. Steer clear of them. If you are not a Catholic and you marry a Catholic, you are getting into a boat with someone who rows altogether differently from you.

"Any marriage can sprout a couple of disagreements a day, but disagreements over religion are the bitterest of all."

State to Give Funds To Higher Learning

DENVER (UPI)—State Planning Director William Williams said today 19 public and private institutions of higher learning in Colorado would get $2.6 million during the current fiscal under the federal Higher Education Facilities Act.

Williams said the funds, made on a matching basis with the state, would include $2,101,157 for four-year colleges and universities and $488,804 for junior colleges. The federal contribution is 33⅓ per cent for four-year schools, and 40 per cent for junior colleges.

There currently are eight state-supported four-year colleges and universities in the state, and five private schools. Local junior college districts support six junior colleges.

King of Kings

And there is no finer name for the Great Teacher. He speaks and His words come with authority. There is no court to refer His words for judgement . . . for He is the judgement. He has blessed mankind so richly that we have sought other words to do Him honor; the Great Physician, Shepherd of Souls and Lord of Life. But Handel's Messiah keeps ringing in our ears . . . "King of Kings and Lord of lords. And He shall reign forever and ever." Isaiah looked forward to the coming of this "Wonderful Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace."

The artist has done us a service in the picture. Christ is destined to reign over His people, over His church, over His world. His throne was a cross spelling sacrifice. His vehicle is the church and His army a company of devout followers. His dominance is within the hearts of men and His forces are Truth, and Goodness and Love. He will triumph through our loyalty and devotion. They stop where you are! Is He regnant in your heart? He is looking to His church, imperfect as it may be, to bring in His Kingdom and to save the world. Won't you join His army, His church today . . . for He is the King of Kings.

Mrs. Evelyn Strawn

Sunday through Wednesday, Oct. 28, at the Seventh-day Adventist Church School, 1033 N. Franklin St.

The four-week course of lectures and demonstrations will have sessions on Sunday and Wednesday evenings, with the first class scheduled to meet at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Foods to be demonstrated will be typical of what one might find in a vegetarian diet, according to Mrs. Evelyn Strawn, director of the cooking school.

The eight meetings will cover preparation of whole grain breads, boxed lunches, salads, vegetables, gluten entrees, soy beans, casseroles, and desserts.

Mrs. Strawn said that the "Food for Healthful Living" course is open to all persons who are interested in preparing balanced, tasty, and healthful meals that will meet all daily nutritional needs and do it within a small budget.

Lectures will help also to correct certain "food falacies," according to Mrs. Strawn, by answering such questions as:

Is honey nutritionally better than sugar?

Is food poisoned when it is stored in an open can?

Are foods cooked in aluminum kettles poisonous?

Are vegetables grown in poor soils lacking in vitamins?

Are foods grown with the use of chemical fertilizers harmful?

Mrs. Strawn holds a Bachelor of Science degree in foods and nutrition from Southern Missionary College near Chattanooga, Tenn. She has taught home economics food laboratory there and at Walla Walla College, Walla Walla, Wash. She is the wife of Don Strawn, Principal of the Seventh-day Adventist Church School.

Mrs. Strawn will be assisted by Mrs. Marjorie Paine, who holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in home economics from Stephen F. Austin State College, Nacogdoches, Tex., and Mrs. Barbara Sturges, R. N.

The cooking school is offered as a public service of the health and welfare group of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Non-Sectarian Centers Are Said Growing

CHICAGO (AP) — Opus Dei, a scholarly Roman Catholic lay association devoted simply to making man's life better, reported today it is attracting members at a phenomenal pace.

Organized in the United States in 1949, the unheralded association now operates nearly 30 nonsectarian retreats, meeting houses and student centers across the country. Its membership, only a handful 15 years aship, only a handful 15 years ago, is now estimated in the thousands by association officials.

"There's a lot of people who are striving to do things — to help others," Father James Pranell, Midwest counsellor of Opus Dei, said in an interview Thursday. "We just give them a chance."

Opus Dei, or God's Work, was founded 36 years ago in Spain by Msgr. Jose Maria Escriva de Balaguer, who still directs the association from its Rome headquarters.

It is officially described by the Vatican as a secular institute attempting to "spread the life of evangelic perfection among all classes of civil society, especially among the intellectuals."

Opus Dei officials said they prefer to describe the group as an "association of faithful." Lay members, most of them from nearby communities, wear civilian clothes and rarely live in the retreats or residences.

Now with an estimated 50,000 members in more than 60 countries, Opus Dei began its work in the United States with a small student boarding house at the University of Chicago.

Typical of the current expansion, Opus Dei has just completed the three-story Northview Cultural Center on Chicago's Far North Side. For a nominal fee, high school students can register for evening and Saturday courses in science, art, history, mathematics, and English that are designed to supplement their present school work

EAGER COMMONS VISITORS

LONDON (AP) — Britons are so eager to see where their laws are made that carpets in the House of Commons have had to be replaced twice since 1951, when the chamber was rebuilt after wartime bombing.

Richard Sharples, parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Public Building and Works, told Parliament in answer to a question "at least four million members of the public have visited the building since the chamber was rebuilt.

"The carpet in the chamber has been replaced twice and carpets in lobbies once since the war, at a cost of 3,500 pounds. ($9,000)"

Cleaning of the public parts and corridors of the Houses of Parliament costs $89,000 a year.

Church of Christ Honors Dorothy Mierow

The United Church of Christ, 20 E. St. Vrain St., has planned a pot luck supper at 6:30 Sunday evening in the Founder's Room, honoring Miss Dorothy Mierow.

Miss Mierow has been with the Peace Corps in Nepal for two years. To prepare herself for the work, she spent months studying the history, geography, economic, political, and cultural background of Nepal at George Washington University. She also devoted hours to learning the language and customs of the country, and then underwent a rigorous trial and error development of physical stamina at Marble, Colo.

Miss Mierow spent a year teaching at the Tri - Chandra College in Kathmandu and in Pokhara, ninety miles away. She assisted in the general science workshop at the College of Education in Kathmandu and also prepared visual aids, material for textbook use, and designed a museum for the College in Pokhara. Some of her paintings will be on exhibit in the YWCA throughout the month of October.

The church extends an invitation to Miss Mierow's friends and all those interested to attend the Sunday evening event.

Cooking Classes Slated at Adventist School

How to eat well, stay healthy, and still go easy on the checkbook will be demonstrated at a free cooking school to be held

Mrs. Evelyn Strawn

Sunday through Wednesday, Oct. 28, at the Seventh-day Adventist Church School, 1033 N. Franklin St.

The four-week course of lectures and demonstrations will have sessions on Sunday and Wednesday evenings, with the first class scheduled to meet at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Foods to be demonstrated will be typical of what one might find in a vegetarian diet, according to Mrs. Evelyn Strawn, director of the cooking school.

The eight meetings will cover preparation of whole grain breads, boxed lunches, salads, vegetables, gluten entrees, soy beans, casseroles, and desserts.

Mrs. Strawn said that the "Food for Healthful Living" course is open to all persons who are interested in preparing balanced, tasty, and healthful meals that will meet all daily nutritional needs and do it within a small budget.

Lectures will help also to correct certain "food falacies," according to Mrs. Strawn, by answering such questions as:

Is honey nutritionally better than sugar?

Is food poisoned when it is stored in an open can?

Are foods cooked in aluminum kettles poisonous?

Are vegetables grown in poor soils lacking in vitamins?

Are foods grown with the use of chemical fertilizers harmful?

Mrs. Strawn holds a Bachelor of Science degree in foods and nutrition from Southern Missionary College near Chattanooga, Tenn. She has taught home economics food laboratory there and at Walla Walla College, Walla Walla, Wash. She is the wife of Don Strawn, Principal of the Seventh-day Adventist Church School.

Mrs. Strawn will be assisted by Mrs. Marjorie Paine, who holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in home economics from Stephen F. Austin State College, Nacogdoches, Tex., and Mrs. Barbara Sturges, R. N.

The cooking school is offered as a public service of the health and welfare group of the Seventh-day Adventist Church.

More than 500,000 retired Americans belong to the American Association of Retired Persons, a non-profit, national fellowship founded in 1958.

Non-Sectarian Centers Are Said Growing

CHICAGO (AP) — Opus Dei, a scholarly Roman Catholic lay association devoted simply to making man's life better, reported today it is attracting members at a phenomenal pace.

Organized in the United States in 1949, the unheralded association now operates nearly 30 nonsectarian retreats, meeting houses and student centers across the country. Its membership, only a handful 15 years ago, is now estimated in the thousands by association officials.

"There's a lot of people who are striving to do things — to help others," Father James Pranell, Midwest counsellor of Opus Dei, said in an interview Thursday. "We just give them a chance."

Opus Dei, or God's Work, was founded 36 years ago in Spain by Msgr. Jose Maria Escriva de Balaguer, who still directs the association from its Rome headquarters.

It is officially described by the Vatican as a secular institute attempting to "spread the life of evangelic perfection among all classes of civil society, especially among the intellectuals."

Opus Dei officials said they prefer to describe the group as an "association of faithful." Lay members, most of them from nearby communities, wear civilian clothes and rarely live in the retreats or residences.

Now with an estimated 50,000 members in more than 60 countries, Opus Dei began its work in the United States with a small student boarding house at the University of Chicago.

Typical of the current expansion, Opus Dei has just completed the three-story Northview Cultural Center on Chicago's Far North Side. For a nominal fee, high school students can register for evening and Saturday courses in science, art, history, mathematics, and English that are designed to supplement their present school work.

EAGER COMMONS VISITORS

LONDON (AP) — Britons are so eager to see where their laws are made that carpets in the House of Commons have had to be replaced twice since 1951, when the chamber was rebuilt after wartime bombing.

Richard Sharples, parliamentary secretary of the Ministry of Public Building and Works, told Parliament in answer to a question "at least four million members of the public have visited the building since the chamber was rebuilt.

"The carpet in the chamber has been replaced twice and carpets in lobbies once since the war, at a cost of 3,500 pounds. ($9,000)"

Cleaning of the public parts and corridors of the Houses of Parliament costs $89,000 a year.

More Teeth Asked for Fair Housing Law

DENVER (UPI) — A special committee set up to put more teeth in Colorado's Fair Housing act got off to a quick start Thursday with an agreement on four essential points.

Chairman Bert Gallegos said members agreed:

—That the enforcement section should be strengthened;

—That coverage should be extended to all housing;

—That penalties for violations should be considered;

—That the Colorado anti-Discrimination Commission perhaps should be given the power to seek injunctions in disputed property transfers.

The state's present Housing Act was weakened by a Colorado Supreme Court ruling in 1962 which found the law applied only to vacant homes, rental property or homes in which persons other than the owner was living.

Funeral Homes In New York City Struck

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike by employes at about 100 funeral parlors in the New York City area went into its second day today, but there were no reports of any inconvenience to bereaved families.

A spokesman for the employers said the strike has been "an inconvenience only to the undertakers."

The City Health Department said it was maintaining contact with struck funeral parlors to make sure burials are conducted within four days after death, the time set by the department.

About 400 embalmers and other employes struck Thursday for higher wages and pensions, a shorter work-week and more sick leave. They belong to Local 407 of the Funeral Directors, Embalmers and Undertakers Union.

Negotiators met until almost midnight Thursday night and more sessions were scheduled for today.

European Unity Planners at Odds

BONN, Germany (AP) — Dutch and West German leaders remain at odds on a plan for European political unity but agree that efforts toward this goal should continue at full strength.

Dutch Prime Minister Victor Marijnen and Foreign Minister Joseph Luns completed two days of talks Thursday with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. Informed sources said the Dutch officials refused to commit themselves on a West German plan calling for regular meetings of the government heads of the six Common Market nations.

The West German proposal leaves the door open for Britain and other European nations outside the Common Market to join in the unity move later. Holland wants a more active approach to enlist the British — an approach opposed by French President Charles de Gaulle — and has said it will make no decision on the unity proposal before the British election Oct. 15.

Politicians in Hawaii Are Saving Please

By JIM BECKER

HONOLULU (AP) — The politicians say please in Hawaii. And at election time they say it by signboard.

You can hardly see a hibiscus in the weeks before election for all the home-made banners and signs boosting candidates.

"Please re-elect Spark Matsunaga," a sign will read. "Or please vote for Wilbur Chung." Or, "Patsy Mink." Or "Anna Kahanamoku," to select a few at random.

Ordinarily sign boards are about as welcome in Hawaii as a plague of ukulele termites. There are laws against them, and a vigilant group known as the outdoor circle sees to it that the law is enforced.

But the law is winked at come election time.

That could be because tacking a poster to a palm tree is almost the only fun left in an Hawaiian election.

Time was when the candidates used to dress in their brightest aloha shirts and travel in packs to the various beaches along with troupes of entertainers.

The entertainers would dance the hula and sing, and the politicians would take turns giving the standard speech, like this. First, three sentences of badly pronounced Hawaiian, followed by the candidate's name, and the request, "Please give me your kokua."

Kokua means "help" in Hawaiian.

Highlight of every campaign was the Hawaiian speech by a candidate who was half-Chinese and half-Scotch Irish to a crowd that was half Japanese and half Filipino.

Television ruined all that.

Young Woman Faces Charges of Assault

OGDEN, Utah (UPI)—Formal charges of assault with a deadly weapon were filed Wednesday against a young Colorado woman who police said shot a friend, then held officers at bay for more than three hours before surrendering.

The woman, Rose Marie Valdez, 22, of Grand Junction, was charged in connection with the shooting of Diane Cafarelli, 20, of Kearns, Utah, Monday.

Police said the charge was a "mere formality" to legalize Miss Valdez's admittance to the Provo State Hospital for mental tests. Officials said the young woman would not be arraigned until after the tests were completed.

The victim of the shooting was reported in "serious but improved" condition today at St. Benedict's Hospital where the incident occurred.

Police said Miss Valdez had been dismissed from the nurses training program ut the hospital a few days before the shooting. After wounding the Cafarelli girl, described as a close friend of hers, Miss Valdez held her at gunpoint for more than three hours, detectives said.

No reason was given for the shooting.

Disabled Movie Ship Towed Into Port

MAZATLAN, Mexico (AP) — A movie company's disabled ship with 35 persons aboard was towed safely into the harbor of this Pacific Coast resort Thursday night after being stranded at sea in a tropical storm.

Actress Maria Schell and actor Stanley Baker arrived earlier in a 14-foot fishing boat which rescued them from the 225-foot Hirundo. The Hirundo lost its rudder when the storm struck and anchored seven miles off the coast.

Miss Schell and Baker were among 110 persons who went to sea aboard the Hirundo Wednesday to film scenes for the movie "Who Has Seen the Wind?" Fishing boats took off all but 35 of the group.

D.C. Wash

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — The State Department announcement today that Red China may soon explode a nuclear device suggests that this approaching atomic capability is a big surprise.

It is, of course, no such thing. The Administration as well as our allies have known for a long time that Peking's intensive atomic efforts would reach the stage of a bomb test either late this year or early next.

Why then did Secretary of State Rusk decide to make a formal statement at this time to the effect that "such an explosion might occur in the near future?"

There was as much domestic politics involved in the announcement as an Asian policy decision. It was the latest instance of the ruthless and efficient team play within the Administration in behalf of President Johnson's election in November.

What happened was along this line. It was realized that if Red China made an atomic test before the election, without the Administration noting in advance that this was possible, Barry Goldwater could charge that LBJ had either concealed intelligence information from the public or that the CIA had fallen down on the job.

It is always smart to anticipate a move by a political adversary. This has now been done in an effective defensive maneuver.

The way LBJ has operated in this area — making use of all the built-in advantages of an incumbent President — has been most frustrating to Goldwater right along.

Johnson's technique in this respect has to be admired. Sure, it gives him an unfair political advantage. But as Richard M. Nixon said in the winter of 1961 after his defeat in 1960, he had no inclination to run again in 1964 against the then President Kennedy because any White House incumbent is almost impossible to beat.

BARRY CHARGED REPORTS WERE SUPPRESSED

LBJ may be no great shakes on the stump, but he is superb in the political in-fighting so far in this campaign.

Goldwater, on his first swing through the South, called the President "whitewash Lyndon" and charged that various reports, which could be damaging politically to him, were being suppressed.

At New Orleans on Sept. 17, Goldwater bemoaning "violence on city streets," asked why the President had failed to make public the FBI's report on the outbreaks.

The GOP candidate also wanted to know what had happened to the Senate committee's report on the Billie Sol Estes graft case and another Senate report on Cuban subversion.

Well, the FBI report on "violence on city streets" has now come out, with its findings that the race issue was not fundamental. The Senate's Estes report is out also. And the White House obviously gave it the green light on the basis it would not reflect on LBJ.

The President has also succeeded in cutting the ground away from other issues Goldwater had hoped to press, or has fuzzed up the issues so that his GOP opponent has been put on the defensive.

JOHNSON HAS THE EDGE ON DEFENSE MATTERS

This is particularly true in the area of defense, Johnson came back at Goldwater on the issue of military capabilities with his announcements of an anti-satellite defense system and "over-the-horizon" radar. And Thursday, the press was given a look-see at amazing A-11 interceptor plane.

It is almost impossible for the GOP candidate to make an attack which annoys the President without provoking a shrewd, contrived response. Goldwater's frustrations have been well expressed. As he complained last week in St. Louis, the President has the support not only of Cabinet members "issuing more and more political statements from their high offices but even the support of highly classified defense information which he feels free to use, as he sees fit, in a purely political manner."

Regardless of Barry's fuming, an incumbent President would be a fool if he failed to muster every resource at his command. And Goldwater also knows that it would be impossible to prove a case that "highly classified defense information" secrecy requirements have been violated.

It is a cinch that LBJ has revealed nothing without first getting a go-ahead from the Pentagon, State Department or CIA.

ASSURING THE ASIANS ABOUT PEKING'S BOMB

The State Department is obviously sensitive to any charge that it has been playing even a little bit of domestic politics in its timing of the Red China nuclear warnings. The announcement, it was explained, was decided on because there was fear of the psychological impact of a bomb test by Peking on Southeast Asia.

Rusk's statement, on that basis, was aimed at assuring Asians outside of the Communist yoke that we knew what was going to happen in Red China and were not concerned because the device to be tested was primitive and did not mean that a new competitive nuclear power had risen in Asia.

It would make more sense if this new propaganda effort had started long before this. The Administration has known for years, through its spy apparatus, the exact program Red China has been making toward nuclear weaponry.

The education effort to prevent any psychological impact should now be over instead of just beginning. What our intelligence system has ascertained is that the bomb about to be exploded in Red China's first test is most primitive.

Peking propaganda will, of course, claim that Red China has developed vast nuclear capabilities which could threaten any neighbor resisting Red infiltration. But the fact is that it will take at least five years for the Communists to develop an effective nuclear weapons system, which requires not only the weapon itself but the air power to deliver it.

More Teeth Asked for Fair Housing Law

DENVER (UPI) — A special committee set up to put more teeth in Colorado's Fair Housing act got off to a quick start Thursday with an agreement on four essential points.

Chairman Bert Gallegos said members agreed:

—That the enforcement section should be strengthened;

—That coverage should be extended to all housing;

—That penalties for violations should be considered;

—That the Colorado anti-Discrimination Commission perhaps should be given the power to seek injunctions in disputed property transfers.

The state's present Housing Act was weakened by a Colorado Supreme Court ruling in 1952 which found the law applied only to vacant homes, rental property or homes in which persons other than the owner was living.

Funeral Homes In New York City Struck

NEW YORK (AP) — A strike by employes at about 100 funeral parlors in the New York City area went into its second day today, but there were no reports of any inconvenience to bereaved families.

A spokesman for the employers said the strike has been "an inconvenience only to the undertakers."

The City Health Department said it was maintaining contact with struck funeral parlors to make sure burials are conducted within four days after death, the time set by the department.

About 400 embalmers and other employes struck Thursday for higher wages and pensions, a shorter work-week and more sick leave. They belong to Local 407 of the Funeral Directors, Embalmers and Undertakers Union.

Negotiators met until almost midnight Thursday night and more sessions were scheduled for today.

European Unity Planners at Odds

BONN, Germany (AP) — Dutch and West German leaders remain at odds on a plan for European political unity but agree that efforts toward this goal should continue at full strength.

Dutch Prime Minister Victor Marijnen and Foreign Minister Joseph Luns completed two days of talks Thursday with Chancellor Ludwig Erhard. Informed sources said the Dutch officials refused to commit themselves on a West German plan calling for regular meetings of the government heads of the six Common Market nations.

The West German proposal leaves the door open for Britain and other European nations outside the Common Market to join in the unity move later. Holland wants a more active approach to enlist the British — an approach opposed by French President Charles de Gaulle — and has said it will make no decision on the unity proposal before the British election Oct. 15.

Politicians in Hawaii Are Saving Please

By JIM BECKER

HONOLULU (AP) — The politicians say please in Hawaii. And at election time they say it by signboard.

You can hardly see a hibiscus in the weeks before election for all the home-made banners and signs boosting candidates.

"Please re-elect Spark Matsunaga," a sign will read. "Or please vote for Wilbur Chung." Or, "Patsy Mink." Or "Anna Kahanamoku," to select a few at random.

Ordinarily sign boards are about as welcome in Hawaii as a plague of ukulele termites. There are laws against them, and a vigilant group known as the outdoor circle sees to it that the law is enforced.

But the law is winked at come election time.

That could be because tacking a poster to a palm tree is almost the only fun left in an Hawaiian election.

Time was when the candidates used to dress in their brightest aloha shirts and travel in packs to the various beaches along with troupes of entertainers.

The entertainers would dance the hula and sing, and the politicians would take turns giving the standard speech, like this. First, three sentences of badly pronounced Hawaiian, followed by the candidate's name, and the request, "Please give me your kokua."

Kokua means "help" in Hawaiian.

Highlight of every campaign was the Hawaiian speech by a candidate who was half-Chinese and half-Scotch Irish to a crowd that was half Japanese and half Filipino.

Television ruined all that.

Young Woman Faces Charges of Assault

OGDEN, Utah (UPI)—Formal charges of assault with a deadly weapon were filed Wednesday against a young Colorado woman who police said shot a friend, then held officers at bay for more than three hours before surrendering.

The woman, Rose Marie Valdez, 22, of Grand Junction, was charged in connection with the shooting of Diane Cafarelli, 20, of Kearns, Utah, Monday.

Police said the charge was a "mere formality" to legalize Miss Valdez's admittance to the Provo State Hospital for mental tests. Officials said the young woman would not be arraigned until after the tests were completed.

The victim of the shooting was reported in "serious but improved" condition today at St. Benedict's Hospital where the incident occurred.

Police said Miss Valdez had been dismissed from the nurses training program ut the hospital a few days before the shooting. After wounding the Cafarelli girl, described as a close friend of hers, Miss Valdez held her at gunpoint for more than three hours, detectives said.

No reason was given for the shooting.

Disabled Movie Ship Towed Into Port

MAZATLAN, Mexico (AP) — A movie company's disabled ship with 35 persons aboard was towed safely into the harbor of this Pacific Coast resort Thursday night after being stranded at sea in a tropical storm.

Actress Maria Schell and actor Stanley Baker arrived earlier in a 14-foot fishing boat which rescued them from the 225-foot Hirundo. The Hirundo lost its rudder when the storm struck and anchored seven miles off the coast.

Miss Schell and Baker were among 110 persons who went to sea aboard the Hirundo Wednesday to film scenes for the movie "Who Has Seen the Wind?" Fishing boats took off all but 35 of the group.

D.C. WASH

By TED LEWIS

WASHINGTON — The State Department announcement today that Red China may soon explode a nuclear device suggests that this approaching atomic capability is a big surprise.

It is, of course, no such thing. The Administration as well as our allies have known for a long time that Peking's intensive atomic efforts would reach the stage of a bomb test either late this year or early next.

Why then did Secretary of State Rusk decide to make a formal statement at this time to the effect that "such an explosion might occur in the near future?"

There was as much domestic politics involved in the announcement as an Asian policy decision. It was the latest instance of the ruthless and efficient team play within the Administration in behalf of President Johnson's election in November.

What happened was along this line. It was realized that if Red China made an atomic test before the election, without the Administration noting in advance that this was possible, Barry Goldwater could charge that LBJ had either concealed intelligence information from the public or that the CIA had fallen down on the job.

It is always smart to anticipate a move by a political adversary. This has now been done in an effective defensive maneuver.

The way LBJ has operated in this area — making use of all the built-in advantages of an incumbent President — has been most frustrating to Goldwater right along.

Johnson's technique in this respect has to be admired. Sure, it gives him an unfair political advantage. But as Richard M. Nixon said in the winter of 1961 after his defeat in 1960, he had no inclination to run again in 1964 against the then President Kennedy because any White House incumbent is almost impossible to beat.

BARRY CHARGED REPORTS WERE SUPPRESSED

LBJ may be no great shakes on the stump, but he is superb in the political in-fighting so far in this campaign.

Goldwater, on his first swing through the South, called the President "whitewash Lyndon" and charged that various reports, which could be damaging politically to him, were being suppressed.

At New Orleans on Sept. 17, Goldwater bemoaning "violence on city streets," asked why the President had failed to make public the FBI's report on the outbreaks.

The GOP candidate also wanted to know what had happened to the Senate committee's report on the Billie Sol Estes graft case and another Senate report on Cuban subversion.

Well, the FBI report on "violence on city streets" has now come out, with its findings that the race issue was not fundamental. The Senate's Estes report is out also. And the White House obviously gave it the green light on the basis it would not reflect on LBJ.

The President has also succeeded in cutting the ground away from other issues Goldwater had hoped to press, or has fuzzed up the issues so that his GOP opponent has been put on the defensive.

JOHNSON HAS THE EDGE ON DEFENSE MATTERS

This is particularly true in the area of defense, Johnson came back at Goldwater on the issue of military capabilities with his announcements of an anti-satellite defense system and "over-the-horizon" radar. And Thursday, the press was given a look-see at amazing A-11 interceptor plane.

It is almost impossible for the GOP candidate to make an attack which annoys the President without provoking a shrewd, contrived response. Goldwater's frustrations have been well expressed. As he complained last week in St. Louis, the President has the support not only of Cabinet members "issuing more and more political statements from their high offices but even the support of highly classified defense information which he feels free to use, as he sees fit, in a purely political manner."

Regardless of Barry's fuming, an incumbent President would be a fool if he failed to muster every resource at his command. And Goldwater also knows that it would be impossible to prove a case that "highly classified defense information" secrecy requirements have been violated.

It is a cinch that LBJ has revealed nothing without first getting a go-ahead from the Pentagon, State Department or CIA.

ASSURING THE ASIANS ABOUT PEKING'S BOMB

The State Department is obviously sensitive to any charge that it has been playing even a little bit of domestic politics in its timing of the Red China nuclear warnings. The announcement, it was explained, was decided on because there was fear of the psychological impact of a bomb test by Peking on Southeast Asia.

Rusk's statement, on that basis, was aimed at assuring Asians outside of the Communist yoke that we knew what was going to happen in Red China and were not concerned because the device to be tested was primitive and did not mean that a new competitive nuclear power had risen in Asia.

It would make more sense if this new propaganda effort had started long before this. The Administration has known for years, through its spy apparatus, the exact progress Red China has been making toward nuclear weaponry.

The education effort to prevent any psychological impact should now be over instead of just beginning. What our intelligence system has ascertained is that the bomb about to be exploded in Red China's first test is most primitive.

Peking propaganda will, of course, claim that Red China has developed vast nuclear capabilities which could threaten any neighbor resisting Red infiltration. But the fact is that it will take at least five years for the Communists to develop an effective nuclear weapons system, which requires not only the weapon itself but the airpower to deliver it.

Wasson Wins Thriller; Palmer Succumbs

Smith Leads Final Drive That Produces Clutch Win

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO — Splendid Jim Smith, a 142, package of high school dynamite, exploded beneath stunned Pueblo Central here Friday night to guide a p7lsating drive in the final minutes that produced a 20-19 victory for Wasson's Thunderbirds in a frantic South Central League struggle before 3,000 fans at Public Schools Stadium.

The high - voltage Smith, cool as a whiff of Artic breeze under pressure, yanked his Thunderbirds up from an opposing 19-13 deficit with just 4:18 remaining in the contest and marched the Colorado Springs team 62 yards to the Central goal before swinging across from less inches away with the tying points with just 54 seconds showing on the clock.

Then as the tense crowd immersed the stadium in noise, the Thunderbird star provided the clincher by taking an extra point pass from Rod Wells in the end zone off a fake kick formation.

Ironically, the T-Birds' climactic opportunity came as the result of a recovered vumble, the same misfortune that has plagued this Wasson team throughout the season. Central, after stalling a frantic Thunderbird effort near midfield with just over five minutes left, appeared in complete command until Rick Clark came up with the Wildcat bobble at his own 38.

Smith, who seemingly keys best to dramatic situations, then swung into action with devastating effictiveness. As his team battled both the clock and the determined Wildcats, he guided the club through two vital first down situations, the second coming on a 12 yard pass to Mike Martin that carried to the Central 34 with 2:19 to go. Two plays later Smith, who is one continuous wiggle with the football in his grasp, slipped around right end and struck to the Cats 23.

Again, with the drive apparently stymied on third down at the 22, he scampered through the muddled Wildcat defense for a first down at the six, then plunged to the one as the clock swung under the minute mark. On the next play, the Wasson quarterback attempted a sneak through the right side, but finding no room, squirmed down the line to an opening and fell across the goal.

The Central line fired through on an apparent kick attempt and was penalized half the distance for offsides. On the second try, Wells, who started the season as quarterback, straightened up with the ball and floated it to he left side of the end zone where Smith gathered it in for the point that meant victory.

Smith's scampers around the Wildcat flanks provided 121 yards of real estate during the evening as the T - Birds rushed for a total of 256 in the spectacular offensive show. In contrast, Central struck its crushing blows through the air, gaining 138 yards overhead.

Wasson controlled the early play, rolling with the opening kick from its own 26 to the Central 15 where an old nemisis, the fumble, met the T-Birds. Richard Price came up with it for the Wildcats and the first threat was halted.

Late in the period the Thunderbirds fielded a punt at their own 43 and put in motion the drive that was to provide them with a lead. A 10 yard sprint through numerous tacklers by Smith provided the initial first down and seconds later Toof scrambled another 10 yards, carrying a tackler with him. Then, with the ball at the Central 19, Smith slipped away to the left side and soared a pass to Charlie Steel who was a lonesome figure in the end zone. Steel added the extra point.

A 37 yard scamper by the sensational Smith gave the 'Birds another scoring opporutnity midway through the period but that one stalled at the Wildcats' 24. From that point Central immediately stoked up a drive that soared downfield in 13 plays with Emil Lengrand zipping the final 8 yards on a shot through the right side. The kick attempt failed, however, and with just 1:36 left in the opening half the 'Birds found themselves nursing just a 7-6 margin.

The Wildcats wasted no time in igniting the second half display. After racing the kickoff back to the 38, Central struck on a beautifully executed pass play from slick quarterback Dave Struthers to Howard Hill, who had threaded his way through the Wasson secondary. Hill snatched the ball at the Wasson 36 and sped unmolested to the end zone. Lengrand added the extra point.

The T-Birds retaliated near the end of the period after recovering a Central fumble at the Wildcat 30. After an exchange of penalties, Bob Oyler darted to the 23 and Wells then darted through the right side to the 12. Smith scampered to he four on the next play and scored from the one four downs later. Steel's kick attempt was blocked, leaving the score at 13-13.

The Wildcats seemingly iced it with a quick rush back downfield that consumed just eight plays in traveling 78 yards. A pair of Struthers' passes for 16 and 36 yards were the keys.

SIGHTING THE GOAL—Pueblo Centennial fullback John Schiechl rambles around left end for one of the three Bulldogs touchdowns in their 20-10 upset of Palmer, Friday night at Wasson Stadium. Although the referees appera to be guiding the way, it was the blockink of players like Scott Eslinger (88) and others that provided the big holes in the Terror line. Bulldog Intercept Kills Tribe, 20-10

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Palmer High doesn't try its passing game often—but Friday night the Terrors tried once too many.

A Key interception of one of the six passes thrown by the Terrors sparked Pueblo Centennial to a 20-10 upset and threw the South Central League into an early wild scramble.

Twice lightning-footed halfback Jim Brummett scampered for long touchdowns runs for the defending SCL champions and fullback John Schiechl rambled around end for the clincher in the final period of play at Wasson Stadium.

In other action Friday night. Wasson of the Springs came through with a second straight last-minute 20-19 victory over Pueblo Central in Steel City to stay atop the SCL race, while Pueblo South was springing another surprise in upending Trinidad on the Miners own field. 13-12.

That gave Wasson the lead with 2-0 record, while Centennial, Trinidad and South each are tied at 1-1, and Central has a 0-2 mark. It was Palmer's league opener and East is to play a non-league game tonight against East Denver.

Falling behind by three points on a third period score by Centennial, Palmer started to drive on the kickoff and worked almost to midfield. But on first down from his own 44, quarterback Larry Williams elected to try a jump pass over the line and Centennial guard Bob McKinney batted the ball and then caught it at the line of scrimmage for the key play of the contest.

From there, the aroused Bulldogs marched right in for another score, moving the 45 yards in nine plays and it all but put the victory on ice with less than eight minutes remaining and the Terrors trailing by 10 points. Schiechl cut over left tackle and then darted for the sideline to pick up the final 16 yards and the touchdown.

This was the same type play that had been kind to the Bulldogs all evening as the Palmer team was unable to adjust and defend against the massive end sweep blocking from the Pueblo visitors. The other two touchdowns were also a result of the weakness found in the Terrors flanks.

In all, it was undoubtedly the low point of the still young season for Palmer as Coach Bill Westbay's usually scrappy squad was obviously flat for this one. Gone was the rugged defensive play of the line which had held up so well in posting a 2-1-1 record in non-league action before Friday.

Also lacking was the sharp blocking on offense which previously had opened goodly holes for the Palmer runners, and most of the yardage picked up without much assistance to the backs.

Actually, the home team appeared to have an ever-so-slight chance of pulling it out or at least trimming the margin. But with 7:48 left in the game after Centennial had scored for the final time, the Terrors were content to stick strictly to the ground and the last drive consumed every last second of that time without results.

Although it was the one stray pass by the Terrors that proved the turning point of the contest, the aerial game paid off for their lone touchdown. After both teams were stalled near the middle of the field in the first period, Palmer started to drive from their own 25 and in 9 downen plays they had reached pay dirt.

Following a crucial fourth down play that gave the Tribe new life at the Centennial 26. Williams found halfback Dennis Bair all alone in the right flat and hit him with the first pass of the game. Bair went for the flag untouched and Claude Spears kicked to give the Springs' club a 7-0 lead.

But the swift Bulldogs came right back and on the kickoff they drove 73 yards in six plays to tie the score. They passed once, with a 16-yarder from Jerry Gutierrez to halfback Tony Navaro getting a first down at the Palmer 47. Two plays later Brummett, a 160-pound senior, galloped over left tackle, cut to the sidelines behind excellent blocking, and out-ran the Terrors secondary for the 42-yard tally.

Neither team could generate a threat through the rest of the second period, but soon after the second half got underway Palmer was going goalward again. After a first and goal to go at the Centennial 10, thanks to a personal foul by the Bulldogs, the Terrors could gain only two yards in three trips into the line and on fourth down Spears booted a 25-yard field goal for a 10-7 lead.

Scoring seemed to infuriate the Pueblo guests, however, and again they went all the way after the kickoff. This time it was a 65-yard march in 10 plays that lit the scoreboard, with Brummett going the final 21 yards on another sweep around right end with a bevy of blockers in front of him. The placement was blocked and Centennial led 13-10.

Then came the all-important pass interception by McKinney in the middle of the field and the eventual winning touchdown. On this drive, the Bulldogs appeared to be stopped when after going to the Palmer 15 they were penalized for clipping to the 36, but by this time they were handling the Terror line with little difficulty and scored with ease.

It was rather strange strategy for the Terrors to remain on the ground all the way on their final series — needing two touchdowns in eight minutes — but after the success they had the last time in the air perhaps it was the natural thing just to run out the clock! The game ended with a Palmer fumble at the Centennial 12, recovered by Pueblo's Doug White.

Next weekend the Tribe travels to Pueblo for a Saturday night game with South, the team that upset Trinidad. Palmer has yet to win on the road this season . . . . losing to Golden 6-0 and gaining a tie with Lovelan and 19-19 in non - league play.

French Gals Take Two Stroke Lead in Tourney

PARIS (AP) — Catherine Lacoste, France's 19-year-old star, just missed tying her own record at St. Germain Friday and paced the French team into a two-stroke lead over the United States in the first Women's World Amateur Golf Championship.

Miss Lacoste, daughter of oldtime tennis star Rene Lacoste, shot a one-under-par 71 over the 5,993-yard St. Germain course. She missed an 18-inch putt on the 18th green that would have given her a tie with her own course record of 70.

Her 71 with a 75 by Claudine Cros gave the French team a 146 total for the day and a 293 score for the first two rounds of the 72-hole competition. The United States had 147 Friday and a total of 295. Great Britain was third with 297.

Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, the U.S. champion whose first round score of 80 Thursday didn't count in the team total, came back with a fine 73 and Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., recent winner of the British women's amateur title had a 74 for the United States. The third U.S. player, Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., slipped to 78 and her score wasn't counted.

Each of the 25 teams entered has three players, but only the two best scores for each team count in the daily totals, which are added together to decide the team championship.

England's scores were 74 by Ruth Porter and 75 by Marley Spearman to go with Thursday's 148.

Miss McIntire sank birdie putts of 12 and 18 feet on the first and ninth holes. She was over par on three holes, including the 17th where her drive went into the woods and she had to play down an adjoining fairway.

Miss Sorenson had only one birdie and three bogeys and on the back nine she missed at least five putts by less than two inches. She also took a penalty stroke on the seventh when her ball moved while she was addressing an 18-inch putt.

Miss White drove into the woods off the first tee and drove out of bounds at the 10th in a round of 38-40—78.

Behind Miss Lacoste's 143 in the individual standings Miss Sorenson 75-74—149; Canada's Gail Harvey 73-77—150; Mrs. Spearman 75-75—150; Miss White 72-78A151; Miss Cros 76-75—151; Brigitte Varangot, France, 75-76—151; Bridget Jackson, Britain, 73-78—151; Diana Thomas, Australia, 75-76—151; Liv Forsell, Sweden, 77-75—152, and Miss McIntire 80-73—153.

McCallister Paces Fresno Open

By P. D. ELDRED
Associated Press Sports Writer

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Big Bob McCallister broke loose Friday with a four-under-par 68 and 36-hole total of 137 to grab a three-stroke lead in the $35,000 Fresno Open Golf Tournament.

The 190-pounder from Corona, Calif., won a PGA event atCosta Mesa, Calif., in 1961 and paired with Los Angeles Angeles' outfielder Albie Pearson to capture pro-amateur honors in Bing Crosby's 1962 event.

Since then he hasn't collected a winning check.

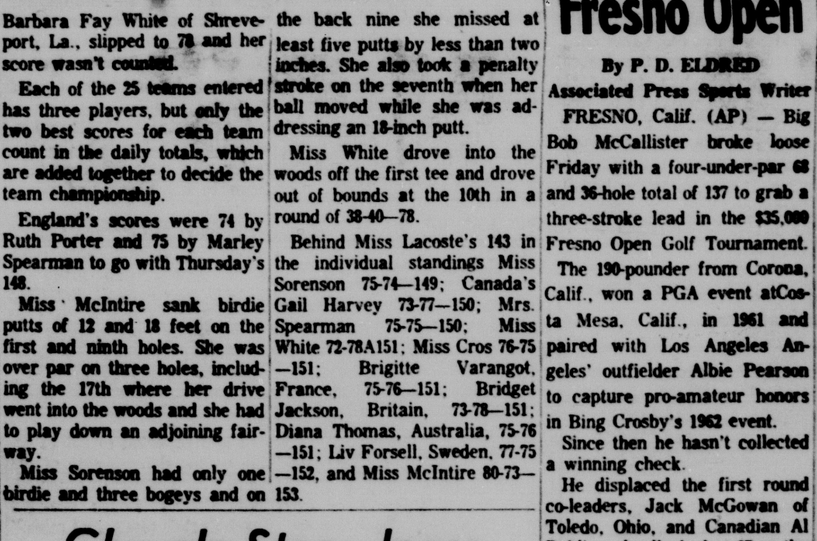
He displaced the first round co-leaders, Jack McGowan of Toledo, Ohio, and Canadian Al Balding, deadlocked at 67 on the opening day. Both fell back of Gadrner Dickson of Florida, who charged into second place with his second straight 70 and a midway 140.

McGowan carded a 74 to drop into a three-way third place tie at 141 with Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., who put a 71 with his opening 70, and veteran Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., who had a 69 second round.

Chuvalo Stops Jones

NEW YORK (AP) — George Chuvalo stopped Doug Jones at 1:28 of the 11th round at Madison Square Garden Friday night and became a leading contender for the heavyweight title the World Boxing Association has declared vacant.

The end to the scheduled 12-rounder, opening the Garden's new series of non-televised boxing, came suddenly. Jones, a 194-pound New Yorker and the favorite, was ahead by a comfortable 6-3-1 margin when the Canadian champion from Toronto brought about the unexpected ending.



QUARTERBACK UNDERCUT—Palmer quarterback Larry Williams (11) tries to find running room through the right side of the Terrors line in Friday night's battle with Pueblo Centennial, but is cut down by a low tackle from a Centennial lineman. Running along side Williams is fullback Ben Bryant. The Bulldogs won, 20-10, in a slight upset as the Terrors opened South Central League action. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Playing the Game

It's not whether you win or lose, but how you play the game.

That axiom has long been preached to young athletes as the ideal of sportsmanship. Kids are encouraged to play fair and square (certainly a virtue) then are sent off while Dad urges Lew Burdette to moisten the horsehide or the Phillies and Braves get into an argument over an umpire's decision.

Obviously, winning and losing is a major part of all sports. Why keep score if the main object is to show how good a sport everyone is? They didn't pay Babe Ruth for the number of Bible verses he could quote.

Yet sportsmanship has a certain market value. Stan Musial probably was one of the best-loved baseball players because he acted like a gentleman.

Papers emphasized the difference between Paul Hornung's acceptance of the facts and Alex Karras' determination to fight when both were supended for betting on football games. Hornung was a hero, even though he tarnished his Golden Boy image. Karras was the villain until he acquiesced and accepted punishment.

But there is more to "playing the game" than sportsmanship.

Basic scoring methods determine the winners of various sporting events. Football has its touchdown. Baseball has its runs. Tennis has a series of complicated points.

Sports are popular because no one is absolutely sure who is going to win. The weakest team can beat the strongest because of one exceptional play by even a fluke. So the strongest team doesn't always win.

Football, of all sports, relies so much more on statistics to explain the ways and wherefores of the game. The score often is not indicative of how the teams played.

As one of many possible examples, take the 1957 Air Force victory over Colorado. The Falcons won, 28-14, but were outfirst downed, 28-5, and outgained 459-169. Or take this year's 7-0 defeat of Palmer by Golden. In that case, Palmer had a 249-146 yardage advantage, but still couldn't score.

By the same token, a wide score may not show a closely-played game. Oklahoma once whacked Notre Dame and Golden Boy Hornung, 49-0, but outgained the Irish by only 17 yards.

Ties or close scores don't necessarily indicate a close game. When Colorado and Missouri tied, 14-14, in 1958, Missouri had a 351-141 offensive lead.

Palmer (then Colorado Springs High) dropped East Denver, 6-0, in the 1956 state semifinals. But the Terrors outgained the Angels, 351-13. Two years later the Terrors lost to Pueblo Centennial, 26-20, but still had the offensive edge, 330-223.

It takes only an hour or so thumbing through files to come up with many examples like that.

Reasons for the discrepancies between scores and statistics may be attributed to any or all of several things. Fumbles are the greatest cause of discrepancies. A team might move well between the 20-yard lines, but be unable to penetrate. A couple of blocked punts might provide a punchless team with all the scoring it would need.

That doesn't mean a new scoring system should be set up, one to include the performance of the team as well as the score. It only means that the unpredictable is part of sports.

The thrill of watching a halfback scamper 65 yards with seconds left to play, or seeing the pitcher hit a game-winning homerun doesn't leave room for analyzing statistics.

It is only in retrospect that it seems useful to tear apart a game, check the strengths and weaknesses of the combatants and discover why a team lost when it had the game sewn up. Even then the information is useful only as a guide to determining how the teams will perform the next time. It won't change the score.

Wasson Wins Thriller; Palmer Succumbs

Smith Leads Final Drive That Produces Clutch Win

By TOM CUSHMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

PUEBLO — Splendid Jim Smith, a 142, package of high school dynamite, exploded beneath stunned Pueblo Central here Friday night to guide a p7lsating drive in the final minutes that produced a 20-19 victory for Wasson's Thunderbirds in a frantic South Central League struggle before 3,000 fans at Public Schools Stadium.

The high - voltage Smith, cool as a whiff of Artic breeze under pressure, yanked his Thunderbirds up from an opposing 19-13 deficit with just 4:18 remaining in the contest and marched the Colorado Springs team 62 yards to the Central goal before swinging across from less inches away with the tying points with just 54 seconds showing on the clock.

Then as the tense crowd immersed the stadium in noise, the Thunderbird star provided the clincher by taking an extra point pass from Rod Wells in the end zone off a fake kick formation.

Ironically, the T-Birds' climactic opportunity came as the result of a recovered vumble, the same misfortune that has plagued this Wasson team throughout the season. Central, after stalling a frantic Thunderbird effort near midfield with just over five minutes left, appeared in complete command until Rick Clark came up with the Wildcat bobble at his own 38.

Smith, who seemingly keys best to dramatic situations, then swung into action with devastating effictiveness. As his team battled both the clock and the determined Wildcats, he guided the club through two vital first down situations, the second coming on a 12 yard pass to Mike Martin that carried to the Central 34 with 2:19 to go. Two plays later Smith, who is one continuous wiggle with the football in his grasp, slipped around right end and struck to the Cats 23.

Again, with the drive apparently stymied on third down at the 22, he scampered through the muddled Wildcat defense for a first down at the six, then plunged to the one as the clock swung under the minute mark. On the next play, the Wasson quarterback attempted a sneak through the right side, but finding no room, squirmed down the line to an opening and fell across the goal.

The Central line fired through on an apparent kick attempt and was penalized half the distance for offsides. On the second try, Wells, who started the season as quarterback, straightened up with the ball and floated it to he left side of the end zone where Smith gathered it in for the point that meant victory.

Smith's scampers around the Wildcat flanks provided 121 yards of real estate during the evening as the T - Birds rushed for a total of 256 in the spectacular offensive show. In contrast, Central struck its crushing blows through the air, gaining 138 yards overhead.

Wasson controlled the early play, rolling with the opening kick from its own 26 to the Central 15 where an old nemisis, the fumble, met the T-Birds. Richard Price came up with it for the Wildcats and the first threat was halted.

Late in the period the Thunderbirds fielded a punt at their own 43 and put in motion the drive that was to provide them with a lead. A 10 yard sprint through numerous tacklers by Smith provided the initial first down and seconds later Toof scrambled another 10 yards, carrying a tackler with him. Then, with the ball at the Central 19, Smith slipped away to the left side and soared a pass to Charlie Steel who was a lonesome figure in the end zone. Steel added the extra point.

A 37 yard scamper by the sensational Smith gave the 'Birds another scoring opporutnity midway through the period but that one stalled at the Wildcats' 24. From that point Central immediately stoked up a drive that soared downfield in 13 plays with Emil Lengrand zipping the final 8 yards on a shot through the right side. The kick attempt failed, however, and with just 1:36 left in the opening half the 'Birds found themselves nursing just a 7-6 margin.

The Wildcats wasted no time in igniting the second half display. After racing the kickoff back to the 38, Central struck on a beautifully executed pass play from slick quarterback Dave Struthers to Howard Hill, who had threaded his way through the Wasson secondary. Hill snatched the ball at the Wasson 36 and sped unmolested to the end zone. Lengrand added the extra point.

The T-Birds retaliated near the end of the period after recovering a Central fumble at the Wildcat 30. After an exchange of penalties, Bob Oyler darted to the 23 and Wells then darted through the right side to the 12. Smith scampered to he four on the next play and scored from the one four downs later. Steel's kick attempt was blocked, leaving the score at 13-13.

The Wildcats seemingly iced it with a quick rush back downfield that consumed just eight plays in traveling 78 yards. A pair of Struthers' passes for 16 and 36 yards were the keys.

Bulldog Intercept Kills Tribe, 20-10

By LOY HOLMAN
Gazette Telegraph Sports Editor

Palmer High doesn't try its passing game often—but Friday night the Terrors tried once too many.

A Key interception of one of the six passes thrown by the Terrors sparked Pueblo Centennial to a 20-10 upset and threw the South Central League into an early wild scramble.

Twice lightning-footed halfback Jim Brummett scampered for long touchdowns runs for the defending SCL champions and fullback John Schiechl rambled around end for the clincher in the final period of play at Wasson Stadium.

In other action Friday night. Wasson of the Springs came through with a second straight last-minute 20-19 victory over Pueblo Central in Steel City to stay atop the SCL race, while Pueblo South was springing another surprise in upending Trinidad on the Miners own field. 13-12.

That gave Wasson the lead with 2-0 record, while Centennial, Trinidad and South each are tied at 1-1, and Central has a 0-2 mark. It was Palmer's league opener and East is to play a non-league game tonight against East Denver.

Falling behind by three points on a third period score by Centennial, Palmer started to drive on the kickoff and worked almost to midfield. But on first down from his own 44, quarterback Larry Williams elected to try a jump pass over the line and Centennial guard Bob McKinney batted the ball and then caught it at the line of scrimmage for the key play of the contest.

From there, the aroused Bulldogs marched right in for another score, moving the 45 yards in nine plays and it all but put the victory on ice with less than eight minutes remaining and the Terrors trailing by 10 points. Schiechl cut over left tackle and then darted for the sideline to pick up the final 16 yards and the touchdown.

This was the same type play that had been kind to the Bulldogs all evening as the Palmer team was unable to adjust and defend against the massive end sweep blocking from the Pueblo visitors. The other two touchdowns were also a result of the weakness found in the Terrors flanks.

In all, it was undoubtedly the low point of the still young season for Palmer as Coach Bill Westbay's usually scrappy squad was obviously flat for this one. Gone was the rugged defensive play of the line which had held up so well in posting a 2-1-1 record in non-league action before Friday.

Also lacking was the sharp blocking on offense which previously had opened goodly holes for the Palmer runners, and most of the yardage picked up without much assistance to the backs.

Actually, the home team appeared to have an ever-so-slight chance of pulling it out or at least trimming the margin. But with 7:48 left in the game after Centennial had scored for the final time, the Terrors were content to stick strictly to the ground and the last drive consumed every last second of that time without results.

Although it was the one stray pass by the Terrors that proved the turning point of the contest, the aerial game paid off for their lone touchdown. After both teams were stalled near the middle of the field in the first period, Palmer started to drive from their own 25 and in a dozen plays they had reached paydirt.

Following a crucial fourth down play that gave the Tribe new life at the Centennial 26. Williams found halfback Dennis Bair all alone in the right flat and hit him with the first pass of the game. Bair went for the flag untouched and Claude Spears kicked to give the Springs' club a 7-0 lead.

But the swift Bulldogs came right back and on the kickoff they drove 73 yards in six plays to tie the score. They passed once, with a 16-yarder from Jerry Gutierrez to halfback Tony Navaro getting a first down at the Palmer 47. Two plays later Brummett, a 160-pound senior, galloped over left tackle, cut to the sidelines behind excellent blocking, and out-ran the Terrors secondary for the 42-yard tally.

Neither team could generate a threat through the rest of the second period, but soon after the second half got underway Palmer was going goalward again. After a first and goal to go at the Centennial 10, thanks to a personal foul by the Bulldogs, the Terrors could gain only two yards in three trips into the line and on fourth down Spears booted a 25-yard field goal for a 10-7 lead.

Scoring seemed to infuriate the Pueblo guests, however, and again they went all the way after the kickoff. This time it was a 65-yard march in 10 plays that lit the scoreboard, with Brummett going the final 21 yards on another sweep around right end with a bevy of blockers in front of him. The placement was blocked and Centennial led 13-10.

Then came the all-important pass interception by McKinney in the middle of the field and the eventual winning touchdown. On this drive, the Bulldogs appeared to be stopped when after going to the Palmer 15 they were penalized for clipping to the 36, but by this time they were handling the Terror line with little difficulty and scored with ease.

It was rather strange strategy for the Terrors to remain on the ground all the way on their final series — needing two touchdowns in eight minutes — but after the success they had the last time in the air perhaps it was the natural thing just to run out the clock! The game ended with a Palmer fumble at the Centennial 12, recovered by Pueblo's Doug White.

Next weekend the Tribe travels to Pueblo for a Saturday night game with South, the team that upset Trinidad. Palmer has yet to win on the road this season . . . . losing to Golden 6-0 and gaining a tie with Loveland 19-19 in non - league play.

French Gals Take Two Stroke Lead in Tourney

PARIS (AP) — Catherine Lacoste, France's 19-year-old star, just missed tying her own record at St. Germain Friday and paced the French team into a two-stroke lead over the United States in the first Women's World Amateur Golf Championship.

Miss Lacoste, daughter of oldtime tennis star Rene Lacoste, shot a one-under-par 71 over the 5,993-yard St. Germain course. She missed an 18-inch putt on the 18th green that would have given her a tie with her own course record of 70.

Her 71 with a 75 by Claudine Cros gave the French team a 146 total for the day and a 293 score for the first two rounds of the 72-hole competition. The United States had 147 Friday and a total of 295. Great Britain was third with 297.

Barbara McIntire of Colorado Springs, the U.S. champion whose first round score of 80 Thursday didn't count in the team total, came back with a fine 73 and Carol Sorenson of Janesville, Wis., recent winner of the British women's amateur title had a 74 for the United States. The third U.S. player, Barbara Fay White of Shreveport, La., slipped to 78 and her score wasn't counted.

Each of the 25 teams entered has three players, but only the two best scores for each team count in the daily totals, which are added together to decide the team championship.

England's scores were 74 by Ruth Porter and 75 by Marley Spearman to go with Thursday's 148.

Miss McIntire sank birdie putts of 12 and 18 feet on the first and ninth holes. She was over par on three holes, including the 17th where her drive went into the woods and she had to play down an adjoining fairway.

Miss Sorenson had only one birdie and three bogeys and on the back nine she missed at least five putts by less than two inches. She also took a penalty stroke on the seventh when her ball moved while she was addressing an 18-inch putt.

Miss White drove into the woods off the first tee and drove out of bounds at the 10th in a round of 38-40—78.

Behind Miss Lacoste's 143 in the individual standings Miss Sorenson 75-74—149; Canada's Gail Harvey 73-77—150; Mrs. Spearman 75-75—150; Miss White 72-78A151; Miss Cros 76-75—151; Brigitte Varangot, France, 75-76—151; Bridget Jackson, Britain, 73-78—151; Diana Thomas, Australia, 75-76—151; Liv Forsell, Sweden, 77-75—152, and Miss McIntire 80-73—153.

Chuvalo Stops Jones

NEW YORK (AP) — George Chuvalo stopped Doug Jones at 1:28 of the 11th round at Madison Square Garden Friday night and became a leading contender for the heavyweight title the World Boxing Association has declared vacant.

The end to the scheduled 12-rounder, opening the Garden's new series of non-televised boxing, came suddenly. Jones, a 184-pound New Yorker and the favorite, was ahead by a comfortable 6-3-1 margin when the Canadian champion from Toronto brought about the unexpected ending.

McCallister Paces Fresno Open

By P. D. ELDRED
Associated Press Sports Writer

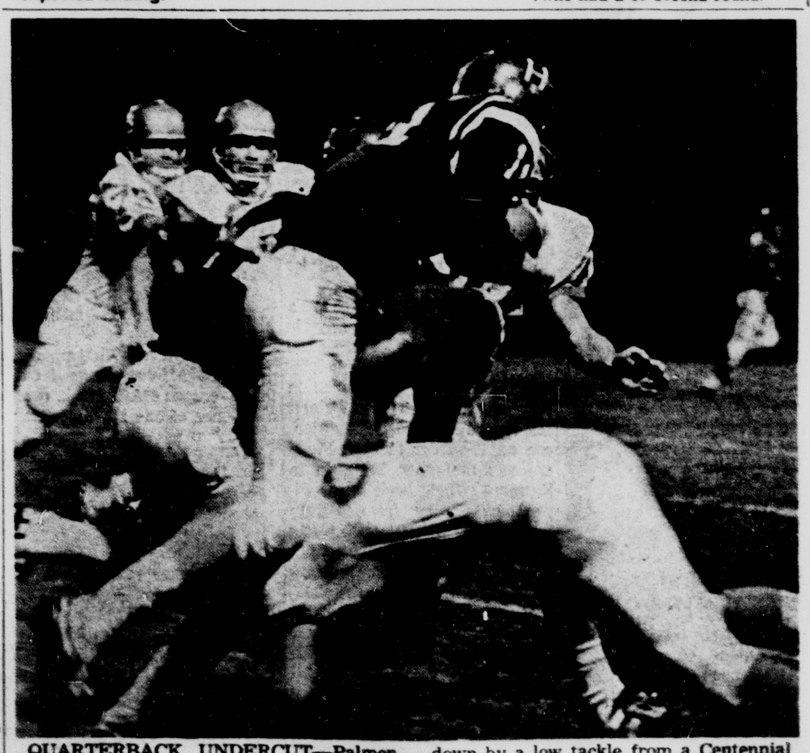
FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Big Bob McCallister broke loose Friday with a four-under-par 68 and 36-hole total of 137 to grab a three-stroke lead in the $35,000 Fresno Open Golf Tournament.

The 190-pounder from Corona, Calif., won a PGA event at Costa Mesa, Calif., in 1961 and paired with Los Angeles Angeles' outfielder Albie Pearson to capture pro-amateur honors in Bing Crosby's 1962 event.

Since then he hasn't collected a winning check.

He displaced the first round co-leaders, Jack McGowan of Toledo, Ohio, and Canadian Al Balding, deadlocked at 67 on the opening day. Both fell back of Gadrner Dickson of Florida, who charged into second place with his second straight 70 and a midway 140.

McGowan carded a 74 to drop into a three-way third place tie at 141 with Jerry Steelsmith of Glendale, Calif., who put a 71 with his opening 70, and veteran Jay Hebert of Lafayette, La., who had a 69 second round.



QUARTERBACK UNDERCUT—Palmer quarterback Larry Williams (11) tries to find running room through the right side of the Terrors line in Friday night's battle with Pueblo Centennial, but is cut down by a low tackle from a Centennial lineman. Running along side Williams is fullback Ben Bryant. The Bulldogs won, 20-10, in a slight upset as the Terrors opened South Central League action. (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Fountain Battles To Beat Fowler

FOUNTAIN — Fountain's Trojans found themselves in an unexpectedly-close game Friday night, but extra points proved the difference as they took a 14-12 Pikes Peak League victory from Fowler.

Quarterback Brian O'Niell and halfback Joe Martinez each scored a touchdown for the Trojans. Martinez and Steve Gerliman added the extra points on runs.

Fowler scored in the second period as quarterback Don Tillotson broke for 20 yards. A pass for extra point failed. In the final quarter Jim Kirgan scored from 25 yards out. A run for the point after also failed.

The win was Fountain's fourth of the year and second in PPL play. The Trojans face Salida, 13-6 loser to Florence, Friday night at Salida. Fowler hosts Buena Vista Friday.

Florence Upends Spartans

FLORENCE — Salida, preseason favorite to win the Pikes Peak League championship, fell before a 13-point second quarter by Florence Friday night to suffer a 13-6 defeat and fall a game behind in the title race.

Florence won its homecoming game as Dave Zamarrippa charged two yards for a touchdown and Ray Moore scooted four yards in the same period.

Quarterback Norman Williams scored Salida's only TD in the fourth quarter on a three yard run. Another TD drive was stopped by the final gun on the Florence nine.

Dick Shadwell, star Florence back was injured during the first half and sat out the rest of the game. Salida relied on the running of Bob Trujillo. Ray Moore and Virgil Lawson to seek its second PPL victory.

Salida seeks to knock another contender out of the top spot as the Spartans host undefeated Fountain Friday. Florence travels to Leadville Saturday.

Jets Put Evans On Active List

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets of the American Football League put Jim Evans, rookie flanker back and split end, on their active list Friday and placed flanker Alphonzo Lawson on waivers.

Evans, from Texas Western signed with the Dallas Cowboys then joined the Jets after he was released by the National Football League club. He remained inactive until he recovered from a cut hand suffered in an automobile accident.

Chamberlain Remains In Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fears that Wilt Chamberlain might have a serious heart ailment were dispelled Friday, but the 7-foot-1 star of the San Francisco Warriors remained hospitalized for further tests.

A spokesman for the National Basketball Association club said an electrocardiogram examination did disclose a slight heart irregularity. It was, however, an irregularity Chamberlain has had since school days in Philadelphia.

Chamberlain came to the Warriors training camp with complaints of indigestion and stomach pains. He played in an exhibition against the U.S. Olympic team, then was hospitalized on Sept. 29.

Already having undergone 10 days of tests, he will remain in the hospital for more extensive checks on his liver, pancreas and gall bladder.

Kadets Slip Past Canon City, 7-6

By DICK FOSTER

CANON CITY — Air Force Academy's frisky Kadets turned to ball control to squeeze out a 7 - 6 decision over the Canon City Tigers here Friday. It puts Coach Terry Mackey's Academy High group among the leaders of the newly formed Will Rogers League.

If this opening contest was an indication of how the new loop will function it will be rough for any member team to cruise easily throught the season.

The Kadets and Canon City were buried in ground combat throughout the first half and the majority of the second was also ground play. It was in that category that Air Academy managed to pull out an edge.

After a turf grinding first half the scoreboard had not been dented by either side but the Academy had managed to outcontrol Canon City. The Kadets were the first to get on the scoring sheets when Jon Sparks threw an 11 - yard pass to Rudy Hallenbeck in the endzone.

Tony Blanchard added the crucial point after to give the Kadets their game winning margin. This scoring play was the result of a 61-yard romp downfield by Bill Wood. Wood caught the second half kick-off on his five and returned it through a host Tiger tacklers to the Canon City 29. Five plays later the Kadets went across.

Later in that same frame Canon City's Dennis Meese broke out of the tangled line play that characterized the contest and shot 46 yards for a touchdown that was called back due to a backfield in motion penalty.

The Tigers final tallied early in the fourth period on a 14-yard pass from Dan Scavarda to Dave Eslick. Canon City's drive came as the result of a fumbled Academy punt return which the Tigers recovered on the Kadets' 19.

The point after touchdown was good but the Tigers were assested five yards for offside and a second attempt failed. Academy was content to play time consuming ball after that but when a series of long runs by fullback Roger Karolick moved the ball well into Tiger territory. They had hopes of another six points. The ball rested on Canon City's two-yard line as the game ended.

Academy amassed 263 yards on the ground to the Tigers' 116 and this was the point of decision. The Kadets had fumble troubles all night losing three and they were outpassed by Canon City. Wood and Karolick led the Kadets' ground gain with 153 and 77 yards gained respectively.

Japan's Baseball Series Squared Up

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Gene Bacque, former minor league player in America, pitched the Hanshin Tigers to a 5-2 victory over the Nankai Hawks Friday, squaring Japan's version of the World Series at one game each.

Bacque, 29-9 for the season, gave up eight hits, fanned six and gave two walks as he went the distance for the Tigers, winners of the Central League championship.

The Hawks, Pacific League champions, won the opener of the best-of-seven series 2-0 on Thursday.

Reeser Leads Tigers

Warner Reeser, the starting quarterback for the Colorado College Tigers, almost didn't go out for football when he registered as a freshman.

The Denver youth, only a sophomore, was given the nod for the signal - calling slot just a few days before the opening game Sept. 19 when Dave Welch was informed by doctors that he couldn't play. Welch is a senior and had been expected to lead the Tigers offense this year.

In the first two games of the season Reeser recorded 12 completions in 20 pass attempts for a percentage of 60. Last week in the game against Hastings College he completed nine of 13 attempts for a total of 102 yards.

A graduate of Abraham Lincoln High in Denver, the six-footer also quarterbacked their team in his junior and senior years.

He came to Colorado College because of its academic reputation. Reeser had made no plans to play football. But head coach Jerry Carle learned of his record at Lincoln High and got him to change his mind. Reeser tried out in his freshman year and was second string quarterback.

"I had expected to get in action on the defense side of the game," Reeser commented, "but Dave's injury changed Coach Carle's plans, and mine."

The Denver youth also made a name for himself in college sports last year as a freshman pitcher on the Tiger baseball team. In 56 innings pitched he racked up 54 strike - outs and an earned run average of only 4.8.

The team ended the season with a 12-7 record and Reeser with a 4-3 record. He is the son of Captain and Mrs. Warner K. Reeser, 2540 South Lowell in Denver.

Manitou Springs Gets 33-12 PPL Triumph

Manitou Springs scored at least once in every quarter Friday night in dumping visiting Buena Vista, 33-12, and retaining a tie for first place in the Pikes Peak League.

Fullback Danny Wheeler led the way with two touchdowns and three extra points. Quarterback John Fletcher scored one TD and passed 75 yards to Larry McIntyre for another. John Moore scored the final Mustangs TD.

Demon quarterback Neal Nachtrieb passed to Mike Denny for one of Buena Vista's scores and ran one yard for the other.

Manitou is tied with Fountain and Florence for first place in the PPL. Buena Vista suffered its second league loss.

The Mustangs seek to make their league record 3-0 when they host Crowley County Friday night. Buena Vista, holding a 1-2-1 season record, hosts winless Fowler Saturday.

Canadian Housewife Hits Big Payoff

DETROIT (AP) — A 23-year-old housewife from Windsor, Ont., who was at a thoroughbred track for the first time in her life, was reported Friday by the Detroit Race Course to have been the holder of Thursday's twin-double worth $48,5555.40.

The track identified her as them mother of a 2-year-old son and said she was paid by check, but it refused to disclose her name. The track's publicity department said the decision was made "higher up," after she requested her name not be divulged.

The track allowed the U. S. Internal Service to take $7,283 in income taxes, but quoted the woman as saying the remainder would not be taxable as a capital gain in Canada.

The woman's winning combination, made up of four long shots, was 5-3-6-3.

The track quoted her as saying "We paid our taxes last week and had just $5.50 left in our bank account. I've been doing work at home as a typist to earn a little extra money. I was tired of the routine and decided to give myself the day off."

Cincinnati Grid Team Defeats Detroit, 19-0

DETROIT (AP) — Spearheaded by Bob Steinhauser, a strong Cincinnati defense powered the Bearcats past the University of Detroit football Titans 19-0 Friday night.

Al Nelson scored two Cincinnati touchdowns on short runs. Erroll Prisby got the other after a pass interception by Bob Kopic gave the Bearcats the ball at mid-field in the third quarter.

Steinhauser stopped two Titan drives. The first came on a pass interception at the Cincinnati 27. The other came when he recovered a fumble on the Bearcat 28.

Quarterback Brig Owens directed all three Bearcat drives, setting up two of the touchdowns with runs of 21 and 14 yards.

Frankie Frisch Praises Fired Sox Manager

WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — Frankie Frisch, an experienced practitioner of the baseball manager's trade, criticized Friday the firing of Boston Red Sox Manager Johnny Pesky.

"Pesky's done a good job," Frisch said in an interview at his home.

Frisch, who managed the St. Louis cardinals, 1933-38; Pittsburgh Pirates, 1940-46, and Chicago Cubs, 1949-51, said the two years Pesky held the job weren't long enough to show what he could do.

"Boston isn't a good club," he said, "and a manager needs at least four years to develop his players. The lousiest part of being a manager now is that you never know where you're going."

Rather than getting the sack, the Fordham Flash said Pesky "should get the Manager of the Year award for all the static he's put up with."

Cramblit Shines For Winning Tribe

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Cheyenne Mountain had to overcome seven fumbles and a pass interception, but otherwise took an easy 33,0 victory Friday night over home-standing Harrison. The win gave the Indians a share of the Will Rogers League lead after the first week of district action.

Greg Cramblit, Cheyenne's 193-pound fullback, lived up to all expectations as he rushed 133 yards, scored two touchdowns and even intercepted a pass. Cramblit also acted as a decoy for halfback Doug Heyliger, who turned Harrison's defensive noses away from the bruising fullback for 85 yards and a touchdown.

Cheyenne had little trouble throughout the game from Harrison. But its own miscues cost several promising touchdowns. The Indians lost five fumbles and pounced on two others themselves. In one almost-funny four minutes at the end of the first half, the ball exchanged hands seven times via punts, fumbles and pass interceptions.

Harrison's Panthers, coached by ex-Cheyenne mentor Bob Irving, could not do more than get started against the large and talented Indian defense. By halftime, the Panthers had gained only 28 yards on the ground.

Neither team could do much the first quarter as cold settled like a fresh bedsheet over the stands. But Cheyenne started its first touchdown drive in that first period and carried it over to the second quarter, when Cramblit bulled two yards for six points. The kick failed, but the Indians were on the warpath.

Cheyenne gave its hosts four downs then launched another scoring effort for 34 yards, ending when halfback Rich McCurdy slammed over from the five. Again the kick failed and the wild exchange began.

Harrison controlled the ball for four plays, when it punted. But Cheyenne lost the kick on a fumble and the Panthers took over again. Harrison fumbled two plays later, and on the first down following, back Larry Mast picked off a Cheyenne pass. Two more plays and Indian end Bill Massarand stole a Harrison pass. But Cheyenne followed the "new rules" and fumbled back two downs later. Harrison managed to hold onto the ball until the gun sounded.

It only took Harrison three minutes to score in the second half. Cramblit intercepted a Harrison pass. Three plays later Heyliger let Cramblit fake into the line. took a reverse from quarterback Ted Garcia and danced 41 yards to paydirt. This time Garcia converted and the Indians had a 19-0 lead.

Harrison was forced to punt again and this time Cheyenne marched 78 yards in 10 plays with Garcia going the final 20 and converting again.

After that Harrison enjoyed its longest drive as the Panthers marched 50 yards and controlled the ball into the fourth quarter. But they were forced to punt against the stony Indian defense. On the first following play Cramblit took the ball, we up the middle and faked himself out of range of the Harrison safety for a 45-yard scoring run. The kick again was good and the scoring ended.

Cheyenne travels to Air Academy High next week in what probably will decide the WRL championship. Harrison will host Widefield.

Rice One-TD Favorites to Top West Virginia

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rice Owls, despite showing little in the way of an offense in their opening game, are two-touchdown favorites for Saturday night's invasion by the West Virginia Mountaineers

Rice had a net offense of only 73 yards while losing to Louisiana State on a late field goal, 3-0, last Saturday. The Mountaineers averaged 325 yards while taking early Southern Conference victories over Richmond and the Citadel.

Paul Piper, Rice's top running back, missed the LSU game with a broken hand but took part in a Wednesday scrimmage and is expected to play against the Mountaineers.

The Owls otherwise are in good physical condition, but West Virginia probably will be without the services of two backs, Tom Yeater and Dick Rader, and the team's kicking specialist, Chuck Kinder.

GW Rolls To 20-0 Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Washington's erratic but spirited sophomores walloped Furman 34-14 Friday night in a muddy southern conference football battle.

GW completely dominated the first half and held a 20-0 lead before Furman scored. The South Carolina team didn't cross midfield or make a first down before halftime.

GW rolled up 10 first downs in the first half, but was penalized 47 yards. The lone Colonial score before the half came on a 16-yard pass from Steve Welpott to Tom Metz, first of two for Metz.

The Colonials moved to a three-touchdown lead early in the third quarter, scoring on one-yard plunges by Jon Razzano and Harry Haught. In both cases, passes by Welpott put the ball in scoring position, one an 18-yarder to Paul Flowers and the other 12 yards to Furman struck back on a 54-yard pass play from Jimmy Wyche to Bill Carty, with Carty grabbing the ball about midfield, shaking off two tacklers and racing over the goal.

A GW fumble recovered on the Colonial 34, set up the second Furman touchdown on a 22-yard pass from Wyche to Bill Chastain.

GW took the next kickoff and marched back for a touchdown, scoring on five-yard toss from Welpott to Metz.

Defensive back Fred D'Orazio shot off a late Furman threat by intercepting a pass and racing 75 yards for GW's final touchdown.

Jet-Powered 'Wingfoot Express' Sets World Record

Utah (AP) — Walt Arfons' jet-powered car, the "Wingfoot Express," broke a world speed record Friday with a clocking of 413.20 miles per hour on these western Utah salt flats.

The mark of 407.65 m.p.h. was set last year on the flats by Craig Breedlove, also in a jet-powered car.

Tom Green of Wheaton, Ill., drove the Arfons' designed car that averaged 415.60 m.p.h. over a distance of one kilometer and 413.20 m.p.h. over the distance of one mile.

Breedlove's 407.65 was over the one-mile distance.

The cars are timed going and coming over the route.

Green's first run over the mile was 406.55 m.p.h. On the return it was 420.07.

The average of those two speeds was 413.31, but the computed average, taking into consideration wind and timing, was 413.20.

Great Britain's speed ace Donald Campbell has a mark of 403.130 m.p.h., set on the dry salt bed of Lake Eyre in southern Australia last July. His car's engine was directly connected to the wheels. The wheels were directly turned by the engine and some claim that is the real land speed record.

In the slim and sleek four-wheeled "Wingfoot Express" the jet engine does not have a direct connection with the wheels.

But Green and Arfons consider their speed a record for a land vehicle, despite the technicality.

The United States Auto Club timed the runs Friday.

Both of Campbell's runs were at speeds of 402.1 m.p.h. over a measured mile. Breedlove reached 426 p.p.h. on one of his runs here last year.

Green was clocked at 402.55 on his mile-run to the north at 4:06 p.m., MST, and at 420.07 on his return run at 4:47 p.m.

Clocked over the shorter kilometer course, Green reached 415.63 on the first run and 414.15 on the return. The average was 415.60 — greater than the measured-mile average but not comparable with the records set by Campbell and Breedlove because both were calculated over the one-mile distance.

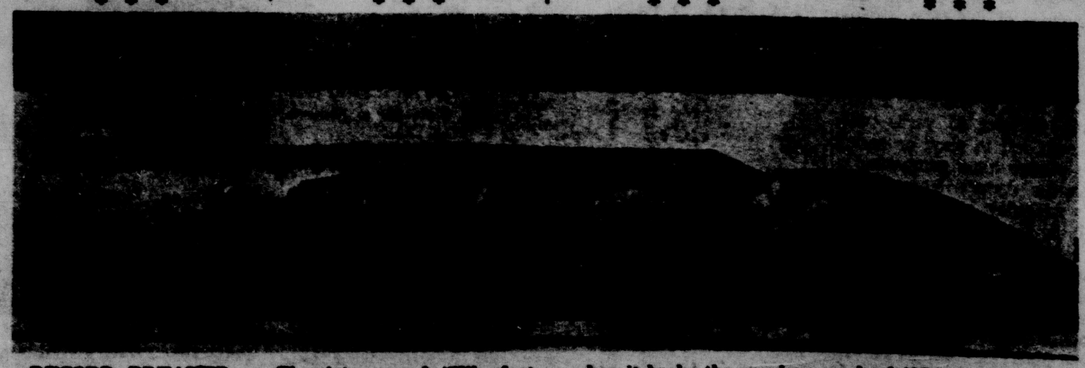
Breedlove set his mark Aug. 5, 1963. Campbell set his July 18, 1962.

Breedlove, of Los Angeles, plans to try again on the flats here later this month.

The jet engines in Breedlove's and Arfons' cars have about 5,000 horsepower.

Art Arfons, a brother of Walt, has the flats this coming week and will try to break Green's mark of 43.20. Art Arfons will use a similar jet car but with 17,000 rated horsepower. Its name is "Green Monster." He figures he will hit 500 m.p.h.

Walt Arfons designed the "Wingfoot Express," and tried last year to break the record, but couldn't. He's 47 years old and this year turned over the wheel to his younger colleague, Green, 36.



RECORD BREAKER — The jet-powered "Wingfoot Express" set a world speed record of 413.20 miles per hour Friday over a measured mile course at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Western Utah. Tom Green of Wheaton, Ill., was at the wheel of Walt Arfons' car when it broke the previous mark of 407.65 mph set last year at Bonneville by Craig Breedlove, also in a jet-powered vehicle. The "Wingfoot Express" is shown during practice runs on the salt flats earlier this week.

Fountain Battles To Beat Fowler

FOUNTAIN — Fountain's Trojans found themselves in an unexpectedly-close game Friday night, but extra points proved the difference as they took a 14-12 Pikes Peak League victory from Fowler.

Quarterback Brian O'Niell and halfback Joe Martinez each scored a touchdown for the Trojans. Martinez and Steve Gerliman added the extra points on runs.

Fowler scored in the second period as quarterback Don Tillotson broke for 20 yards. A pass for extra point failed. In the final quarter Jim Kirgan scored from 25 yards out. A run for the point after also failed.

The win was Fountain's fourth of the year and second in PPL play. The Trojans face Salida, 13-6 loser to Florence, Friday night at Salida. Fowler hosts Buena Vista Friday.

Florence Upends Spartans

FLORENCE — Salida, preseason favorite to win the Pikes Peak League championship, fell before a 13-point second quarter by Florence Friday night to suffer a 13-6 defeat and fall a game behind in the title race.

Florence won its homecoming game as Dave Zamarrippa charged two yards for a touchdown and Ray Moore scooted four yards in the same period.

Quarterback Norman Williams scored Salida's only TD in the fourth quarter on a three yard run. Another TD drive was stopped by the final gun on the Florence nine.

Dick Shadwell, star Florence back was injured during the first half and sat out the rest of the game. Salida relied on the running of Bob Trujillo, Ray Moore and Virgil Lawson to seek its second PPL victory.

Salida seeks to knock another contender out of the top spot as the Spartans host undefeated Fountain Friday. Florence travels to Leadville Saturday.

Jets Put Evans On Active List

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Jets of the American Football League put Jim Evans, rookie flanker back and split end, on their active list Friday and placed flanker Alphonzo Lawson on waivers.

Evans, from Texas Western signed with the Dallas Cowboys then joined the Jets after he was released by the National Football League club. He remained inactive until he recovered from a cut hand suffered in an automobile accident.

Chamberlain Remains In Hospital

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fears that Wilt Chamberlain might have a serious heart ailment were dispelled Friday, but the 7-foot-1 star of the San Francisco Warriors remained hospitalized for further tests.

A spokesman for the National Basketball Association club said an electrocardiogram examination did disclose a slight heart irregularity. It was, however, an irregularity Chamberlain has had since school days in Philadelphia.

Chamberlain came to the Warriors training camp with complaints of indigestion and stomach pains. He played in an exhibition against the U.S. Olympic team, then was hospitalized on Sept. 29.

Already having undergone 10 days of tests, he will remain in the hospital for more extensive checks on his liver, pancreas and gall bladder.

Cheyenne, Academy High Post WRL Wins

Kadets Slip Past Canon City, 7-6

By DICK FOSTER

CANON CITY — Air Force Academy's frisky Kadets turned to ball control to squeeze out a 7 - 6 decision over the Canon City Tigers here Friday. It puts Coach Terry Mackey's Academy High group among the leaders of the newly formed Will Rogers League.

If this opening contest was an indication of how the new loop will function it will be rough for any member team to cruise easily throught the season.

The Kadets and Canon City were buried in ground combat throughout the first half and the majority of the second was also ground play. It was in that category that Air Academy managed to pull out an edge.

After a turf grinding first half the scoreboard had not been dented by either side but the Academy had managed to outcontrol Canon City. The Kadets were the first to get on the scoring sheets when Jon Sparks threw an 11 - yard pass to Rudy Hallenbeck in the endzone.

Tony Blanchard added the crucial point after to give the Kadets their game winning margin. This scoring play was the result of a 61-yard romp downfield by Bill Wood. Wood caught the second half kick-off on his five and returned it through a host Tiger tacklers to the Canon City 29. Five plays later the Kadets went across.

Later in that same frame Canon City's Dennis Meese broke out of the tangled line play that characterized the contest and shot 46 yards for a touchdown that was called back due to a backfield in motion penalty.

The Tigers final tallied early in the fourth period on a 14-yard pass from Dan Scavarda to Dave Eslick. Canon City's drive came as the result of a fumbled Academy punt return which the Tigers recovered on the Kadets' 19.

The point after touchdown was good but the Tigers were assested five yards for offside and a second attempt failed. Academy was content to play time consuming ball after that but when a series of long runs by fullback Roger Karolick moved the ball well into Tiger territory. They had hopes of another six points. The ball rested on Canon City's two-yard line as the game ended.

Academy amassed 263 yards on the ground to the Tigers' 116 and this was the point of decision. The Kadets had fumble troubles all night losing three and they were outpassed by Canon City. Wood and Karolick led the Kadets' ground gain with 153 and 77 yards gained respectively.

Japan's Baseball Series Squared Up

OSAKA, Japan (AP) — Gene Bacque, former minor league player in America, pitched the Hanshin Tigers to a 5-2 victory over the Nankai Hawks Friday, squaring Japan's version of the World Series at one game each.

Bacque, 29-9 for the season, gave up eight hits, fanned six and gave two walks as he went the distance for the Tigers, winners of the Central League championship.

The Hawks, Pacific League champions, won the opener of the best-of-seven series 2-0 on Thursday.

Reeser Leads Tigers

Warner Reeser, the starting quarterback for the Colorado College Tigers, almost didn't go out for football when he registered as a freshman.

The Denver youth, only a sophomore, was given the nod for the signal - calling slot just a few days before the opening game Sept. 19 when Dave Welch was informed by doctors that he couldn't play. Welch is a senior and had been expected to lead the Tigers offense this year.

In the first two games of the season Reeser recorded 12 completions in 20 pass attempts for a percentage of 60. Last week in the game against Hastings College he completed nine of 13 attempts for a total of 102 yards.

A graduate of Abraham Lincoln High in Denver, the six-footer also quarterbacked their team in his junior and senior years.

He came to Colorado College because of its academic reputation. Reeser had made no plans to play football. But head coach Jerry Carle learned of his record at Lincoln High and got him to change his mind. Reeser tried out in his freshman year and was second string quarterback.

"I had expected to get in action on the defense side of the game," Reeser commented, "but Dave's injury changed Coach Carle's plans, and mine."

The Denver youth also made a name for himself in college sports last year as a freshman pitcher on the Tiger baseball team. In 56 innings pitched he racked up 54 strike - outs and an earned run average of only 4.8.

The team ended the season with a 12-7 record and Reeser with a 4-3 record. He is the son of Captain and Mrs. Warner K. Reeser, 2540 South Lowell in Denver.

Defensive back Fred D'Orazio shut off a late Furman threat by intercepting a pass and racing 75 yards for GW's final touchdown.

Manitou Springs Gets 33-12 PPL Triumph

Manitou Springs scored at least once in every quarter Friday night in dumping visiting Buena Vista, 33-12, and retaining a tie for first place in the Pikes Peak League.

Fullback Danny Wheeler led the way with two touchdowns and three extra points. Quarterback John Fletcher scored one TD and passed 75 yards to Larry McIntyre for another. John Moore scored the final Mustangs TD.

Demon quarterback Neal Nachtrieb passed to Mike Denny for one of Buena Vista's scores and ran one yard for the other.

Manitou is tied with Fountain and Florence for first place in the PPL. Buena Vista suffered its second league loss.

The Mustangs seek to make their league record 3-0 when they host Crowley County Friday night. Buena Vista, holding a 1-2-1 season record, hosts winless Fowler Saturday.

Canadian Housewife Hits Big Payoff

DETROIT (AP) — A 23-year-old housewife from Windsor, Ont., who was at a thoroughbred track for the first time in her life, was reported Friday by the Detroit Race Course to have been the holder of Thursday's twin-double worth $48,5555.40.

The track identified her as them mother of a 2-year-old son and said she was paid by check, but it refused to disclose her name. The track's publicity department said the decision was made "higher up," after she requested her name not be divulged.

The track allowed the U. S. Internal Service to take $7,283 in income taxes, but quoted the woman as saying the remainder would not be taxable as a capital gain in Canada.

The woman's winning combination, made up of four long shots, was 5-3-6-3.

The track quoted her as saying "We paid our taxes last week and had just $5.50 left in our bank account. 'I've been doing work at home as a typist to earn a little extra money. I was tired of the routine and decided to give myself the day off."

Cincinnati Grid Team Defeats Detroit, 19-0

DETROIT (AP) — Spearheaded by Bob Steinhauser, a strong Cincinnati defense powered the Bearcats past the University of Detroit football Titans 19-0 Friday night.

Al Nelson scored two Cincinnati touchdowns on short runs. Erroll Prisby got the other after a pass interception by Bob Kopic gave the Bearcats the ball at mid-field in the third quarter.

Steinhauser stopped two Titan drives. The first came on a pass interception at the Cincinnati 27. The other came when he recovered a fumble on the Bearcat 26.

Quarterback Brig Owens directed all three Bearcat drives, setting up two of the touchdowns with runs of 21 and 14 yards.

Frankie Frisch Praises Fired Sox Manager

WESTERLY, R.I. (AP) — Frankie Frisch, an experienced practitioner of the baseball manager's trade, criticized Friday the firing of Boston Red Sox Manager Johnny Pesky.

"Pesky's done a good job," Frisch said in an interview at his home.

Frisch, who managed the St. Louis cardinals, 1933-38; Pittsburgh Pirates, 1940-46, and Chicago Cubs, 1949-51, said the two years Pesky held the job weren't long enough to show what he could do.

"Boston isn't a good club," he said, "and a manager needs at least four years to develop his players. The lousiest part of being a manager now is that you never know where you're going."

Rather than getting the sack, the Fordham Flash said Pesky "should get the Manager of the Year award for all the static he's put up with."

Cramblit Shines For Winning Tribe

By MORRIS FRASER
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

Cheyenne Mountain had to overcome seven fumbles and a pass interception, but otherwise took an easy 33-0 victory Friday night over home-standing Harrison. The win gave the Indians a share of the Will Rogers League lead after the first week of district action.

Greg Cramblit, Cheyenne's 193-pound fullback, lived up to all expectations as he rushed 133 yards, scored two touchdowns and even intercepted a pass. Cramblit also acted as a decoy for halfback Doug Heyliger, who turned Harrison's defensive noses away from the bruising fullback for 85 yards and a touchdown.

Cheyenne had little trouble throughout the game from Harrison. But its own miscues cost several promising touchdowns. The Indians lost five fumbles and pounced on two others themselves. In one almost-funny four minutes at the end of the first half, the ball exchanged hands seven times via punts, fumbles and pass interceptions.

Harrison's Panthers, coached by ex-Cheyenne mentor Bob Irving, could not do more than get started against the large and talented Indian defense. By halftime, the Panthers had gained only 28 yards on the ground.

Neither team could do much the first quarter as cold settled like a fresh bedsheet over the stands. But Cheyenne started its first touchdown drive in that first period and carried it over to the second quarter, when Cramblit bulled two yards for six points. The kick failed, but the Indians were on the warpath.

Cheyenne gave its hosts four downs then launched another scoring effort for 34 yards, ending when halfback Rich McCurdy slammed over from the five. Again the kick failed and the wild exchange began.

Harrison controlled the ball for four plays, when it punted. But Cheyenne lost the kick on a fumble and the Panthers took over again, Harrison fumbled two plays later, and on the first down following, back Larry Mast picked off a Cheyenne pass. Two more plays and Indian end Bill Massarand stole a Harrison pass. But Cheyenne followed the "new rules" and fumbled back two downs later. Harrison managed to hold onto the ball until the gun sounded.

It only took Harrison three minutes to score in the second half. Cramblit intercepted a Harrison pass. Three plays later Heyliger let Cramblit fake into the line, took a reverse from quarterback Ted Garcia and danced 41 yards to paydirt. This time Garcia converted and the Indians had a 19-0 lead.

Harrison was forced to punt again and this time Cheyenne marched 78 yards in 10 plays with Garcia going the final 20 and converting again.

After that Harrison enjoyed its longest drive as the Panthers marched 50 yards and controlled the ball into the fourth quarter. But they were forced to punt against the stony Indian defense. On the first following play Cramblit took the ball, we up the middle and faked himself out of range of the Harrison safety for a 45-yard scoring run. The kick again was good and the scoring ended.

Cheyenne travels to Air Academy High next week in what probably will decide the WRL championship. Harrison will host Widefield.

Rice One-TD Favorites to Top West Virginia

HOUSTON (AP) — The Rice Owls, despite showing little in the way of an offense in their opening game, are two-touchdown favorites for Saturday night's invasion by the West Virginia Mountaineers

Rice had a net offense of only 73 yards while losing to Louisiana State on a late field goal, 3-0, last Saturday. The Mountaineers averaged 325 yards while taking early Southern Conference victories over Richmond and the Citadel.

Paul Piper, Rice's top running back, missed the LSU game with a broken hand but took part in a Wednesday scrimmage and is expected to play against the Mountaineers.

The Owls otherwise are in good physical condition, but West Virginia probably will be without the services of two backs, Tom Yeater and Dick Rader, and the team's kicking specialist, Chuck Kinder.

Jet-Powered 'Wingfoot Express' Sets World Record

Utah (AP) — Walt Arfons' jet-powered car, the "Wingfoot Express," broke a world speed record Friday with a clocking of 413.20 miles per hour on these western Utah salt flats.

The mark of 407.65 m.p.h. was set last year on the flats by Craig Breedlove, also in a jet-powered car.

Tom Green of Whaton, Ill., drove the Arfons' designed car that averaged 415.09 m.p.h. over a distance of one kilometer and 413.20 m.p.h. over the distance of one mile.

Breedlove's 407.65 was over the one-mile distance.

The cars are timed going and coming over the route.

Green's first run over the mile was 406.55 m.p.h. On the return it was 420.07.

The average of those two speeds was 413.31, but the computed average, taking into consideration wind and timing, was 413.20.

Great Britain's speed ace Donald Campbell has a mark of 403.139 m.p.h., set on the dry salt bed of Lake Eyre in southern Australia last July. His car's engine was directly connected to the wheels. The wheels were directly turned by the engine and some claim that is the real land speed record.

In the slim and sleek four-wheeled "Wingfoot Express" the jet engine does not have a direct connection with the wheels.

But Green and Arfons consider their speed a record for a land vehicle, despite the technicality.

The United States Auto Club timed the runs Friday.

Both of Campbell's runs were at speeds of 403.1 m.p.h. over a measured mile. Breedlove reached 426 p.p.h. on one of his runs here last year.

Green was clocked at 406.55 on his mile-run to the north at 4:06 p.m., MST, and at 420.07 on his return run at 4:47 p.m.

Clocked over the shorter kilometer course, Green reached 415.63 on the first run and 414.15 on the return. The average was 415.09 — greater than the measured-mile average but not comparable with the records set by Campbell and Breedlove because both were calculated over the one-mile distance.

Breedlove set his mark Aug. 5, 1963. Campbell set his July 18, 1963.

Breedlove, of Los Angeles, plans to try again on the flats here later this month.

The jet engines in Breedlove's and Arfons' cars have about 5,000 horsepower.

Art Arfons, a brother of Walt, has the flats this coming week and will try to break Green's mark of 43.20. Art Arfons will use a similar jet car but with 17,000 rated horsepower. Its name is "Green Monster." He figures he will hit 500 m.p.h.

Walt Arfons designed the "Wingfoot Express," and tried last year to break the record, but couldn't. He's 47 years old and this year turned over the wheel to his younger colleague, Green, 34.

RECORD BREAKER — The jet-powered "Wingfoot Express" set a world speed record of 413.20 miles per hour Friday over a measured mile course at the Bonneville Salt Flats in Western Utah. Tom Green of Wheaton, Ill., was at the wheel of Walt Arfons' car when it broke the previous mark of 407.65 mph set last year at Bonneville by Craig Breedlove, also in a jet-powered vehicle. Orioles Eliminated From AL Chase

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles crushed the Detroit Tigers 10-4 Friday night but were eliminated from the American League pennant race as the first-place New York Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians.

The night's action left Baltimore 2½ games behind the Yanks. The Orioles have one game remaining and the Yanks two.

Brooks Robinson, in a strong closing bid to become the league's most valuable player, knocked in four runs while banging out his 28th homer and two singles.

The four RBI increased Robinson's league leading total to 117, and his batting average jumped to .317 — only six points behind league leader Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins.

Jerry Adair drove in three Oriole runs with a bases-loaded double during a six-run second inning off loser Joe Sparma.

Earlier in the inning, a fly ball by Jack Brandt was lost in the heavy fog and it fell for a run-scoring double. Detroit scored a run in the second when Bill Freehan's fly also was lost in the fog.

Freehan singled home two more runs in the fourth and pinch hitter Don Demeter homered in the fifth.

Robin Roberts, with relief help from Harvey Haddix over the last four innings, won his 13th game of the season and the 271st of his major league career.

Roberts moved ahead of Burleigh Grimes into 17th place on the all-time list of winners. Grimes, now an Oriole scout, watched the game from the press box.

Giants Keep Alive In NL Race

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Bolin struck out 11 Chicago Cubs Friday night in a three-hit 9-0 shutout that kept the San Francisco Giants mathematically alive in the tight National League pennant race.

The fourth-place Giants moved to within two games of first-place St. Louis Cardinals, who lost 1-0 to New York. However, a St. Louis victory or a Giant loss would eliminate San Francisco from the race.

The victory was Bolin's sixth against nine defeats. Dick Ellsworth, the first of six Cub pitchers who were pounded for 14 hits, took the loss.

Rookie Jim Hart gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his 31st homer.

Bolin helped himself by starting a two-run third inning rally with a one-out double down the right field line. Ellsworth walked Harvey Kuenn and Hal Lanier, 0-for-22, singled Bolin home. Then Willie Mays singled Kuenn home.

The Giants made it 6-0 in the fourth on a three-run homer by Tom Haller. It was Haller's 16th of the season and his fourth in as many games.

The Giants added two more runs in the seventh on singles by Lanier and Mays, a walk to Orlando Cepeda and a bases-loaded single by Jim Davenport.

Phils Dump Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — The once-potent Philadelphia Phillies came alive Friday night and handed Cincinnati's National League pennant chances a severe blow, edging the Reds 4-3 on a four-run rally in the eighth inning.

The Reds remained one-half game behind the first-place St. Louis Cardinals, who lost 1;0 to the last-place New York Mets.

But in other for Cincinnati to win the pennant, the Reds must defeat the Phillies in their last game Sunday while the Cardinals must drop their last two contests with the Mets. The Reds and Phillies do not play Saturday.

A Cincinnati victory and a Cardinal split would end the regular season in a tie for the top.

The Phillies appeared headed for their 11th straight defeat, losing 3-0 with the help of their sloppy defense.

But then they struck in the eighth against Jim O'Toole, who had limited them to three hits.

Pinch hitter Frank Thomas beat out a one-hit back of second. Johnny Briggs ran for Thomas and moved to second as O'Toole walked Cookie Rojas. Tony Taylor then singled, scoring Briggs and sending Rojas to third.

Acting Cincinnati Manager Dick Sisler acted quickly, bringing in Billy McCool for O'Toole. McCool fanned Johnny Callison for the second out, but Richie Allen followed with a triple to the right field corner, scoring Rojas and Taylor with the tying runs.

Alex Johnson, whose outstanding catch in the fourth inning started a triple play, stroked a single to center field, and Allen scampered across with the winning run.

Sammy Ellis relieved McCool and got Vic Power on an inning-ending grounder.

Jack Baldschun pitched last two innings for the Phillies, retiring all six Reds he faced.

Mets Blank Cards To Deal NL Pennant Seekers Setback

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The last place New York Mets dealt St. Louis' National League pennant hopes a setback Friday night by blanking the Cardinals 1-0 on left-hander Al Jackson's five-hitter and Ed Kranepool's run-scoring single in the third inning.

The loss, which ended an eight-game St. Louis winning streak, dropped the Cardinals into a temporary first-place tie with Cincinnati, pending the outcome of the Reds' game against Philadelphia.

The Cardinals have two games remaining, both with the Mets, and the Reds have one left, against the Phillies Sunday.

Kranepool's two-out hit decided a brilliant duel between Jackson, 11-16, and right-hander Bob Gibson, 18-12, as the Mets snapped an eighth-game losing string and set a club record of 52 season victories.

With one out in the third, ex-Cardinal George Altman stroked his second straight single, stole second and went to third on Joe Christopher's ground out. Kranepool then lashed a single to left, scoring Altman with the run.

Jackson checked the Cardinals on two hits until the eighth when they bunched three singles but failed to score.

With two out, Ed Spiezio batted for Gibson and singled to left. Dal Maxvill, running for Spiezio, raced to third on Curt Flood's single.

An amazing twist then developed when Lou Brock, lined what appeared to be a sure-out drive at short, but the ball bounced off Umpire Ed Vargo and bounced away. Brock was credited with a hit, but the run did not score because the umpires ruled a run can score in such a situation only if the ball reaches the outfield. Dick Groat then flied out, retiring the side.

The Mets, aided by three Cardinal errors in the first four innings, appeared to have Gibson, who had beaten them in three previous decisions, on the ropes early.

With one down in the first, Altman got his first hit and Christopher followed with another single. Kranepool was safe when Bill White threw low to second, but the first-balling Gibson fanned Jim Hickman and Jesse Gonder.

The Mets loaded the bases with none out in the fourth, but failed to score.

Charlie Smith led off with a single and Roy McMillan was safe when Dick Groat kicked his grounder for the Cards' third error. Jackson ripped a single to left, Smith holding at third. Gibson bore down, striking out Bobby Klaus and Christopher, and getting Altman on a fly ball to left.

Jackson, meantime, retired the Cardinals in order over the first three inning. Curt Flood led off with a double in the fourth but Jackson got out of the jam.

With two out in the fifth, the Cards got their second man on when Mike Shannon beat out a high bounder over Jackson's head. McCarver, however, flied to Altman, who dashed in to make a shoe-string catch.

Yankees Clinch at Least American Loop Pennant Tie

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant Friday night, defeating Cleveland 5-2 behind the four-hit pitching of Whitey Ford.

The Yankees need only a victory in one of their two remaining games with the Indians or a Chicago defeat to win their fifth straight pennant. The Yankees play the Indians Saturday and Sunday while the White Sox play Kansas City on those days.

New York's triumph over the Indians eliminated the third-place Baltimore Orioles from the race.

The Indians grabbed a 2-0 lead after two innings, but Ford settled down and held Cleveland hitless the rest of the way for his 17th victory against six defeats.

Ford allowed only one baserunner after the second — Joe Azcue, who walked with two out in the fourth. The 35-year-old Yankee ace retired the last 16 batters he faced.

The Yankees struck for five runs in the third inning. Singles by Phil Linz and Bobby Richardson and an intentional walk to Mickey Mantle with two out loaded the bases against Jack Kralick.

Howard lined a double just inside the third base line, sending Linz and Richardson home with the tying runs. Tresh, up next, socked his 16th home run into the lower left field stands.

The Indians quickly jumped on Ford. Chico Salmon opened the game with a single, moved to third on a single by Dick Howser and scored as Leon Wagner flied out.

Ford gave up another run in the second. Azcue lined a double to right center and raced home when Joe Pepitone lost Howard's throw on Kralick's infield single.

Angels Tumble Twins

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Felix Torres drove in three runs with a pair of singles as the Los Angeles Angels defeated Minnesota 5-4 Friday and clinched a tie for fifth place in the American League.

Torres singled home two unearned runs in the first inning after losing pitcher Jim Kaat's error opened the door for the Angels. Torres singled in one of two runs in the third and Bob Rodgers' eighth inning homer completed the Angels' scoring.

Harmon Killebrew's 49th homer off reliever ill Kelso in the seventh got the Twins on the scoreboard and they roughed up Angels' ace Dean Chance for three runs in the ninth.

Sisler Red About Reds' Loss

By HAROLD HARRISON

CINCINNATI (AP) — Dick Sisler, acting manager of the Cincinnati Reds, took a swift kick at a chair in his office Friday night after his team had dropped a 4-3 decision to the Philadelphia Phillies and lost a chance to take over first place in the National League.

Even before the Reds went to bat in the final inning, they knew the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals had lost to the New York Mets 1-0.

After Sisler kicked the chair he settled down a bit and said, "it was a game we thought we had in the bag but we didn't."

He said he felt that Cincinnati pitcher Jim O'Toole made a bad pitch to Tony Taylor when Taylor singled in the Phils' first run in a four-run uprising in the eighth inning.

"But you can't get on him," he said, "because he had pitched a beautiful game. But he should have known better than to do that."

He said he left Billy McCool in to pitch to Richie Allen, who tripled home two runs in that inning, because McCool has had success against Allen in previous games this season. The Reds had a 3-0 lead until the eighth inning.

Over in the Philadelphia clubhouse, where the Phils were celebrating the end of a 10-game losing streak, Manager Gene Mauch said, "as long as the pencil doesn't get us, we have a chance," referring to the mathematical position of the Phils.

The Phillies pulled off their third triple play of the season ending a Cincinnati threat in the fourth.

Orioles Eliminated From AL Chase

By GORDON BEARD
Associated Press Sports Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles crushed the Detroit Tigers 10-4 Friday night but were eliminated from the American League pennant race as the first-place New York Yankees defeated the Cleveland Indians.

The night's action left Baltimore 2½ games behind the Yanks. The Orioles have one game remaining and the Yanks two.

Brooks Robinson, in a strong closing bid to become the league's most valuable player, knocked in four runs while banging out his 28th homer and two singles.

The four RBI increased Robinson's league leading total to 117, and his batting average jumped to .317 — only six points behind league leader Tony Oliva of the Minnesota Twins.

Jerry Adair drove in three Oriole runs with a bases-loaded double during a six-run second inning off loser Joe Sparma.

Earlier in the inning, a fly ball by Jack Brandt was lost in the heavy fog and it fell for a run-scoring double. Detroit scored a run in the second when Bill Freehan's fly also was lost in the fog.

Freehan singled home two more runs in the fourth and pinch hitter Don Demeter homered in the fifth.

Robin Roberts, with relief help from Harvey Haddix over the last four innings, won his 13th game of the season and the 271st of his major league career.

Roberts moved ahead of Burleigh Grimes into 17th place on the all-time list of winners. Grimes, now an Oriole scout, watched the game from the press box.

Giants Keep Alive In NL Race

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Bolin struck out 11 Chicago Cubs Friday night in a three-hit 9-0 shutout that kept the San Francisco Giants mathematically alive in the tight National League pennant race.

The fourth-place Giants moved to within two games of first-place St. Louis Cardinals, who lost 1-0 to New York. However, a St. Louis victory or a Giant loss would eliminate San Francisco from the race.

The victory was Bolin's sixth against nine defeats. Dick Ellsworth, the first of six Cub pitchers who were pounded for 14 hits, took the loss.

Rookie Jim Hart gave the Giants a 1-0 lead in the second inning with his 31st homer.

Bolin helped himself by starting a two-run third inning rally with a one-out double down the right field line. Ellsworth walked Harvey Kuenn and Hal Lanier, 0-for-22, singled Bolin home. Then Willie Mays singled Kuenn home.

The Giants made it 6-0 in the fourth on a three-run homer by Tom Haller. It was Haller's 16th of the season and his fourth in as many games.

The Giants added two more runs in the seventh on singles by Lanier and Mays, a walk to Orlando Cepeda and a bases-loaded single by Jim Davenport.

Phils Dump Reds

CINCINNATI (AP) — The once-potent Philadelphia Phillies came alive Friday night and handed Cincinnati's National League pennant chances a severe blow, edging the Reds 4-3 on a four-run rally in the eighth inning.

The Reds remained one-half game behind the first-place St. Louis Cardinals, who lost 1;0 to the last-place New York Mets.

But in other for Cincinnati to win the pennant, the Reds must defeat the Phillies in their last game Sunday while the Cardinals must drop their last two contests with the Mets. The Reds and Phillies do not play Saturday.

A Cincinnati victory and a Cardinal split would end the regular season in a tie for the top.

The Phillies appeared headed for their 11th straight defeat, losing 3-0 with the help of their sloppy defense.

But then they struck in the eighth against Jim O'Toole, who had limited them to three hits.

Pinch hitter Frank Thomas beat out a one-hit back of second. Johnny Briggs ran for Thomas and moved to second as O'Toole walked Cookie Rojas. Tony Taylor then singled, scoring Briggs and sending Rojas to third.

Acting Cincinnati Manager Dick Sisler acted quickly, bringing in Billy McCool for O'Toole. McCool fanned Johnny Callison for the second out, but Richie Allen followed with a triple to the right field corner, scoring Rojas and Taylor with the tying runs.

Alex Johnson, whose outstanding catch in the fourth inning started a triple play, stroked a single to center field, and Allen scampered across with the winning run.

Sammy Ellis relieved McCool and got Vic Power on an inning-ending grounder.

Jack Baldschun pitched last two innings for the Phillies, retiring all six Reds he faced.

Braves Split Twin Bill

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves ran their winning streak to eight games by edging Pittsburgh 3-2 in 10 innings Friday night before the Pirates rebounded for a 5-4 victory in the second game of the doubleheader with the help of homers by Gene Alley and Roberto Clemente.

Milwaukee right-hander Tony Cloninger drove in two runs and fired a five-hitter in out duelling count Wilbur Wood for his 19th victory against 14 defeats in the opener.

FIRST INNING JITTERS—Joe Christopher of the New York Mets slides safely into second base in the first inning Friday night after Bill White, St. Louis Cardinals first baseman, threw low trying for the force out. White had fielded a grounder by Ed Kranepool. Shortstop Dick Groat blocked the ball with his chest. The Mets loaded the bases but failed to score. Mets Blank Cards To Deal NL Pennant Seekers Setback

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The last place New York Mets dealt St. Louis' National League pennant hopes a setback Friday night by blanking the Cardinals 1-0 on left-hander Al Jackson's five-hitter and Ed Kranepool's run-scoring single in the third inning.

The loss, which ended an eight-game St. Louis winning streak, dropped the Cardinals into a temporary first-place tie with Cincinnati, pending the outcome of the Reds' game against Philadelphia.

The Cardinals have two games remaining, both with the Mets, and the Reds have one left, against the Phillies Sunday.

Kranepool's two-out hit decided a brilliant duel between Jackson, 11-16, and right-hander Bob Gibson, 18-12, as the Mets snapped an eighth-game losing string and set a club record of 52 season victories.

With one out in the third, ex-Cardinal George Altman stroked his second straight single, stole second and went to third on Joe Christopher's ground out. Kranepool then lashed a single to left, scoring Altman with the run.

Jackson checked the Cardinals on two hits until the eighth when they bunched three singles but failed to score.

With two out, Ed Spiezio batted for Gibson and singled to left. Dal Maxvill, running for Spiezio, raced to third on Curt Flood's single.

An amazing twist then developed when Lou Brock, lined what appeared to be a sure-out drive at short, but the ball bounced off Umpire Ed Vargo and bounced away. Brock was credited with a hit, but the run did not score because the umpires ruled a run can score in such a situation only if the ball reaches the outfield. Dick Groat then flied out, retiring the side.

The Mets, aided by three Cardinal errors in the first four innings, appeared to have Gibson, who had beaten them in three previous decisions, on the ropes early.

With one down in the first, Altman got his first hit and Christopher followed with another single. Kranepool was safe when Bill White threw low to second, but the first-balling Gibson fanned Jim Hickman and Jesse Gonder.

The Mets loaded the bases with none out in the fourth, but failed to score.

Charlie Smith led off with a single and Roy McMillan was safe when Dick Groat kicked his grounder for the Cards' third error. Jackson ripped a single to left, Smith holding at third. Gibson bore down, striking out Bobby Klaus and Christopher, and getting Altman on a fly ball to left.

Jackson, meantime, retired the Cardinals in order over the first three inning. Curt Flood led off with a double in the fourth but Jackson got out of the jam.

With two out in the fifth, the Cards got their second man on when Mike Shannon beat out a high bounder over Jackson's head. McCarver, however, flied to Altman, who dashed in to make a shoe-string catch.

Next at 69 came Warren Smith of Cherry Hills, Don Fox of Loveland, Bob Hold of Rolling Hills, Gene Root of Lakewood, Bill Blanton of Green Gables and Dave Nelson of Columbia.

The leader nailed an eagle-3 on the par-5 seventh hole and birdies on the 11th, 12th and

ARM OF CONFIDENCE—August A. Busch Jr., president of the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals, puts his arm around manager Johnny Keane in a show of confidence before Friday night's game against the New York Mets. Keane had been rumored on the way out but the late surge by the Cardinals is believed to have saved his job. However that was earlier Friday before the Cards succumbed to the Mets, 1-0

Yankees Clinch at Least American Loop Pennant Tie

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees clinched at least a tie for the American League pennant Friday night, defeating Cleveland 5-2 behind the four-hit pitching of Whitey Ford.

The Yankees need only a victory in one of their two remaining games with the Indians or a Chicago defeat to win their fifth straight pennant. The Yankees play the Indians Saturday and Sunday while the White Sox play Kansas City on those days.

New York's triumph over the Indians eliminated the third-place Baltimore Orioles from the race.

The Indians grabbed a 2-0 lead after two innings, but Ford settled down and held Cleveland hitless the rest of the way for his 17th victory against six defeats.

Ford allowed only one baserunner after the second — Joe Azcue, who walked with two out in the fourth. The 35-year-old Yankee ace retired the last 16 batters he faced.

The Yankees struck for five runs in the third inning. Singles by Phil Linz and Bobby Richardson and an intentional walk to Mickey Mantle with two out loaded the bases against Jack Kralick.

Howard lined a double just inside the third base line, sending Linz and Richardson home with the tying runs. Tresh, up next, socked his 16th home run into the lower left field stands.

The Indians quickly jumped on Ford. Chico Salmon opened the game with a single, moved to third on a single by Dick Howser and scored as Leon Wagner flied out.

Ford gave up another run in the second. Azcue lined a double to right center and raced home when Joe Pepitone lost Howard's throw on Kralick's infield single.

Angels Tumble Twins

MINNEAPOLIS - ST. PAUL (AP) — Felix Torres drove in three runs with a pair of singles as the Los Angeles Angels defeated Minnesota 5-4 Friday and clinched a tie for fifth place in the American League.

Torres singled home two unearned runs in the first inning after losing pitcher Jim Kaat's error opened the door for the Angels. Torres singled in one of two runs in the third and Bob Rodgers' eighth inning homer completed the Angels' scoring.

Harmon Killebrew's 49th homer off reliever ill Kelso in the seventh got the Twins on the scoreboard and they roughed up Angels' ace Dean Chance for three runs in the ninth.

Tigers to Meet Fort Lewis Still Seeking First Win

DURANGO — Colorado College takes another stab at its first football victory of 1964 here this afternoon when the Tigers meet Fort Lewis College at 1:30 p.m.

CC, which dropped its first two starts to a pair of Nebraska opponents, will be a touchdown underdog in this third contest of the eight game campaign.

Head coach Jerry Carle and line coach Frank Flood have effected a number of shifts in Tiger personnel during the past several days in an attempt to put some life in the dormant CC offense. Also improved for this afternoon is the physical condition of the squad which has been near disasterous. CC injuries were at a point last week where it appeared the Tigers might have to play their next contest in a hospital ward.

Quarterback Warner Reeser, who saw lengthy action last weekend despite an injured hand, has improved to the point where he will definitely get the starting call today. Mike Mestek, 180 pound senior who has also been below full speed, will open at left-halfback with Bob Stapp at right half and Ray Jones at fullback. All except Mestek are sophomores.

In the line star end Lee Muller is scheduled to return to action. Muller, an All-Rocky Mountain Conference selection in 1963, missed the first two games due to injuries but will be back at his familiar post today. His return should bolster the CC offense.

Other starters will include Ed Loosli at the opposite end, Roger Williams and Dave Hayes at tackles. Harry Intemann and Tom Wolf at guards, and Jim Garcia at center.

Fort Lewis, a 27-7 loser to the Tigers a year ago, has split in two contests to date this season. The victory was by a 13-7 margin over Colorado State College, a member of the Rocky Mountain Conference which CC escaped after last year. Fort Lewis is the school most frequently mentioned as a replacement for CC in the historic conference.

The Tigers, who are burdened with a three-game losing string which extends back to the final game of last season, dropped their opener to Concordia Lutheran of Seward, Neb., 12-0, and last week were defeated by an excellent Hastings, Neb. team, 21-12.

The Raiders will field a big team, with players ranging as large as 265 pound Dick Bender, a tackle from Davenport, Iowa. Bender, however, is on the doubtful list for today after suffering a bad facial cut in last week's loss to the College of Southern Utah. Tackle Julian Harvey, one of the team's mainstays will definetly miss the game due to an infected foot and Butch Prior, another starter, is sidelined with a badly sprained ankle.

Returning to the squad will be Wayne Woodhouse, a 210 pound tackle from Cedaredge, Colo. who was out last week with a severe chest cold.

Following today's game the Tigers remain on the road, traveling to Nebraska Wesleyan University for a 7:30 p.m. game next Friday. They then return home to meet California Lutheran of Thousand Oaks, Calif. in the 1964 Homecoming clash.

FLYING TIGER—Tony McGinnis, former Wasson High School player, is expected to see frequent action on defense when the Colorado College Tigers meet Fort Lewis College at Durango this afternoon. CC will be seeking its first victory of the season after dropping games the past two weekends.

Can Thomas Win?

By BERT NELSON
For The Associated Press

Never has the United States come home from an Olympic Games without a medal in the high jump and the gold medal in the pole vault. But the results could be different in Tokyo.

Two Russians, Robert Shavlakadze 7-1½ and Valery Brumel 7-4¼, upset young world record holder John Thomas in the 1960 Games. Both are back, Brumel as the reigning world record holder and virtually unbeatable since the Rome meet.

In fact Brumel has never been outjumped since Rome although losing a few times on the countback system while clearing the same height.

Shavlakadze's star was eclipsed shortly after Rome but he has returned better than ever. He went 7-1½, a lifetime best, recently to edge Brumel, who made the same height.

Poland has come up with a great jumper in Edward Czernik, 7-2⅝. Consistency is a virtue for him.

Tony Sneazwell, 7-0, of Australia went 7-2⅝ in Tokyo last October and has the stuff to do it again. Another jumper of promise is Mahamat Idriss, 7-1, of Chad while Sweden's Stig Pettersson, 7-0¼, is a reliable veteran.

The United States sends a trio of seven footers in John Rambo, 7-1¼, John Thomas, 7-1, and junior college star Ed Caruthers, 7-1. All have the stuff to win a medal but hardly figure to press the great Brumel.

My pick: Brumel, Czernik, Sneazwell, Rambo, Shavlakadze, and Thomas.

Only 11 of the 42 Olympic pole vault medals awarded since 1896 have escaped the monopolistic clutches of the American vaulters. Form says the United States should dominate the skyclimbing event once again, but by a lesser margin.

In fact the victory string could be broken, most likely by a German. Wolfgang Reinhardt, 21, upped the European record to 16-9¼ this year but soon lost the mark to his veteran countryman, Manfred Preussger, 32, who cleared 16-10¾.

This is approaching the magic 17-foot mark, negotiated so far only by two of the American entries. Fred Hansen has pushed the world mark up to 17-4, taking it away from John Pennel, who did 17-0¾ last year with a 1964 best of 16-8½.

Bucs Touted 'Outlaws' Face Stern Test Against Mullen

By CHARLIE DREUX
Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — The St. Mary's touted defensive unit the "Outlaws," which has been a contributing factor in the Colorado Springs team's 3-0 won-loss record thus far in the Denver Parochial League, will receive an acid test of their ability to stop the pre-season DPL favorites Mullen here today.

Game time is set for 2 p.m. at Mullen Stadium.

Last year the Pirates defeated the Mullen gridders but succumbed to the loop's perennial champion Regis and scrappy St. Joseph's deadlocked Mullen for second place. Regis clinched the championship last year.

The small but aggressive St. Joseph's team battled the larger Mullen team and the Mustangs had to settle for a 6-0 squeaker. In non-league games this season, the Mustangs have racked up decisive victories by overwhelming scores.

This is a crucial encounter for Chuck Haering's young Buccaneers in their search for a second DPL title; the St. Mary's 1962 grid edition won the first league championship in the school's 50 years of competition.

St. Mary's has been outstanding on defense this season and stopped the 1963 State Double-A champion Cheyenne Mountain to open its football campaign on a happy note. Since then the Pirates have scored victories over Machebeuf, Mt. Carmel and Annunciation to lead the DPL standings.

The "Outlaws" have proven themselves on the gridiron, despite the fact that Haering only had five returning lettermen from last year's squad, and the Pirates' defensive unit has contained the opposition to a mere 270 net yards rushing in four games. This is quite an achievement for the "Outlaws" and the Bucs offensive unit has compiled 813 net yards rushing.

Haering will count heavily on his ace fullback Sam Zavatti, who leads the Pirates in rushing via 273 yards, to pace the St. Mary's offense against the Mustangs in today's outing. Zavatti also anchors the "Outlaws" at the middle linebacker slot and is equally outstanding on defense.

Veteran quarterback Jerry Knauf is scheduled to direct the Pirates' forward attack with Chris White starting at the slot back position.

Haering indicated during practice this week that Gary Dobson, the Bucs' pint-size running back who is the team's second leading rusher with 207 net yards, may be sidelined from today's game. Dobson has a hip-pointer and Haering didn't know whether or not the 125-pound speedster would be able to play.

For the Mustangs, Steve Onorofskie will be the lad the Pirates will have to stop. Onorofskie scored the single touchdown last week against St. Joseph's to spearhead the 6-0 win. Onorofskie runs from the fullback slot and he picked up 35 yards last week via 12 carries.

Earlier this season Onorofskie went on a rampage against Sheridan Union when he gained 202 yards on 15 carries.

Should the Pirates manage to defeat Mullen, the Springs team is faced with stopping Regis; something the Bucs have failed to accomplish since they have been in the DPL the last seven years. The St. Mary's-Regis game is scheduled for Oct. 18 at Wasson Stadium in Colorado Springs.

PIRATES' TOP RUNNER—Sam Zavatti, St. Mary's consistent ground gaining fullback, will be a key factor in today's crucial game against Mullen. Zavatti leads the Pirates in rushing with 273 net yards. In addition to his offensive skills, Zavatti anchors the defensive unit the "Outlaws" at the middle linebacker slot.

100,000th Fan Expected At RMKC Oval Tonight

"I feel sure, that we will have the opportuniey of welcoming the 100,000th fan tonight," said general Manager Al Binns of the Colorado Springs' Rocky Mountain Kennel Club.

"Judging from our attendance the past weekends the 100,000th fan will pass through the turnstiles sometime during the early part of the evening. It is happening earlier than in past seasons but we had expected this as our attendance is showing a steady increase," Binns concluded.

Greyhound racing all over the United States is showing more gain in attendance figures than any other spectator sport.

The local oval, (this is the 16th year of operation for RMKC), is showing attendance gains that are somewhat above the national percentage. In 1963, the 100,000th fan appeared on the 43rd night of the meet as compared with the anticipated 37th this year and in 1962 it was on the 40th night but not until the 46th night in 1961 and the 49th in 1960.

The 100,000th fan has always been afforded special honors at RMKC and this year will be awarded a new, crisp $50 bill on arrival, will be given seasons gradnstand seats as compliments of the RMKC management and will be the guest of honor at a steak dinner in the RMKC clubhouse on Wednesday, Oct. 14th, after which the 100,000th fan will make the presentation to the winner of the 1964 RMKC Puppy Stake Race.

Tonight sees the return of Pay Off Girl to the local oval in the 10th race, the first half of the Twin Quin. She will be keeping company with Betty Babe, Scrooge Mosher, Clive's Sugar, Avant Garde, Dan Onery, Ski Lady and Silk Angel as she goes for a money finish to make it a tally of 11 times out and 10 money finishes. She came in last in her last try which was the first time she had failed to make a money finish during the current season.

Herman To Guide Sagging Sox

By BOB JOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Billy Herman, who has waited 17 years for a second chance as a major league manager, was given a two-year contract Friday to improve the stgging fortunes of the Boston Red Sox.

Mike Higgins, vice president and general manager, announced officially at a news conference that incumbent Johnny Pesky had been fired and Herman would replace him. It has been baseball's poorest kept secret for several weeks.

Herman's salary, not disclosed, is estimated at $25,000 a year.

Herman was named for William Jennings Bryan, the silver-tongued orator, and played a gilt-edged second base in the National League, 1931-46.

His job now is to improve an eighth-place ball club which has finished in the second division six straight seasons.

He took charge immediately.

El Paso Umpires Meeting Set Monday

The El Paso County Umpires Association (NBC-chartered) will hold its final baseball meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. at Memorial Park.

All NBC cardholders and prospective members are invited to attend.

Stock Car Racing At Sportsman's

Stock car racing from throughout Colorado moves to Sportsman's Raceway Park east of Colorado Springs this Sunday afternoon for the 1964 Colorado Stock Car Championships. The races will be on an open competition basis, except that supermodified sprint cars, also known as Jet Coupes, will not be allowed to run for prize money.

With Englewood Speedway outside Denver now closed for the season, and with the track in Pueblo closing for this Sunday, the largest field of modified and late model stock cars of the year is expected to enter the Championship program.

Dale DeWitt, popular Colorado Springs driver, is the current high point driver in the modified division at Sportsman's, and a Main Event win Sunday could clinch him the track Championship.

The past several weeks, DeWitt's strongest competion has come from two other Springs drivers, Bob Moberly and Gary Wayne, as well as Denver drivers Bob Harrington, Sammy Sauer, L. A. Mock, and Bart Manley.

In the late model division, Colorado Springs driver John Talley, driving his 1956 Ford, is the present high point leader, with another Springs driver, Mike Wooley, running a very close second.

Last Sunday afternoon, Wooley, driving his bright yellow 1955 Chev, won the featured event by two car lengths at the state fairgrounds' half-mile dirt track in Pueblo. Second place in that contest went to one of Pueblo's top drivers, Ronnie McDowell, who is expected to give both Wooley and Talley some strong competition this Sunday.

All of these drivers, plus many more are expected to enter Sunday's Championship events.

Track officials have also announced that Miss Cindy Layne, popular vocalist and comedienne at a Colorado Springs Night Club, will make the trophy presentations this Sunday, which will see the big program get underway with the time trials beginning at 1 and the races at 2 p.m.

Gun Bow Favored At Aqueduct Today

By ORLO ROBEERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday is The Day for Kelso. The 7-year-old gelding from Mrs. Richard S. duPont's Bohemia Stable has reached the time where he came become the world's leading money winning race horse by taking the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct.

Five others, including the fleet Gun Bow and the hard-hitting 3-year-old Quadrangle, were named Friday to oppose the four-time Horse of the Year in the 1¼-mile race. If all start, the Woodward will gross $100,200 with $70,000 earmarked for the winner. Kelso needs only $38,738 to top Round Table's $1,749,889. It's got to be a victory, second place money will not be enough.

Colts-Rams Game Tops NFL Slate; Bills Favored in AFL

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas and Baltimore's new-found running punch will provide the acid test for that bruising defensive unit of the Los Angeles Rams in one of the most interesting games on the weekend pro football program.

The Colts, who have not lost to the Rams in Baltimore since 1955, are coming off a 52-0 rout of the Chicago Bears that aroused title hopes in Baltimore. They lead the lead in scoring and have the No. 1 passer in Unitas, who has been intercepted only once and has thrown seven touchdowns.

Harland Svafe's front four on defense were likened to "Dempsey, Firpo, Ruth and Gehrig" by Minnesota's Dutch Van Brocklin last week after losing to the Rams 23-13. He didn't say which was which among Lamar Lundy, Merlin Olsen, Deacon Jones and Rosey Grier.

It will be interesting to see how this four make out in their rush on Unitas and how the Rams' deep defense which has intercepted eight passes operates against this old pro.

The batting average picked up last week with nine out of 11, making the NFL season total 11-8-2 and the American Football League total 7-4 for a combined 18-12-2.

With an eye for some upsets, let's try again, all Sunday games unless otherwise noted:

NFL

Baltimore 28, Los Angeles 24-Colts had better keep their guard up. They could use some of those 52 points from last week. Doubtful status of Dick Bass for Rams and Unitas' pin point accuracy in early games gives edge to Colts, but it will be tight.

Green Bay 24, Minnesota 13-With Tommy Mason a very doubtful starter, Vikings are still hurting for running backs and Packer defense is rough. Green Bay expects to have Bart Starr in action despite injury against Detroit. Packers will be playing their second in seven days.

Cleveland 31, Dallas 14 — Jim Brown in high gear and Frank Ryan clicking with passes against Cowboys who still are hobbled by Don Meredith's bad ankle.

Philadelphia 24, Pittsburgh 21 — Eagles won exhibition game from Steelers 24-13 and seem to have a rejuvenated Ollie Matson.

Bob Brown, Ray Poage and Earl Gros injured but due to play. Steelers get back Dan LaRose.

St. Louis 27, Washington 10 — Another defeat for the luckless Redskins who fumbled game away against New York last week. Cardinals clicking on Charley Johnson's passes and Jim Bakken's field goals.

San Francisco 17, Chicago 14 — An upset for the battered Bears, still groggy after that bombing in Baltimore. Not even George Halas' whip lasing can cure the aches and pains of Larry Morris, Mike Pyle, Joe Fortunato and Bill George. It will be up to Bill Wade's passes to do the job against leaky 49er defense.

New York 14, Detroit 13 — A battle of two proud defensive units. Favored Lions, smarting under publicized flaws and defeat by Packers, figure to be tough to handle. But one TD pass in three games is below par for Y.A. Tittle, even with sore ribs.

AFL

Buffalo 24, Oakland 10, Saturday night — The Bills are rolling high despite eight interceptions against Jack Kemp. Oakland bound to get started soon but not before another sellout crowd in Buffalo.

New York 24, San Diego 21, Saturday night — Handle this one gingerly. If injured Chargers are ready, it could be a romp for the champs. On the bunch that Lance Alworth, Paul Lowe and others will be below par, give the Jets the edge before that expected thing of 60,000.

Boston 28, Denver 6 — Mike Holovak's Patriots rule everybody's offense with their hitting tactics while Gino Cappelletti outdoes passes and kicks field goals. It will be the same story in Denver.

Texas-Army Tilt Highlights Today's College Grid Slate

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

Coaches who contend that platooning is responsible for the early-season wave of upsets in college football this year get another chance to test their theories Saturday when virtually all teams encounter top-flight opposition.

Since the rules were changed to allow free use of separate offensive and defense platoons this year, many coaches have had trouble deciding where to spot their best players. Some of them figured the defensive platoon required the first and most attention and as a result the neglected offenses haven't been able to produce winning points.

The outcome could be that such high-scoring and highly-ranked teams as Texas, Southern California and Alabama will encounter trouble this week when they run into rivals whose defenses have been primed for a big job.

Texas, the 1963 national champion which bounced back to the No. 1 ranking in this week's Associated Press poll, runs into Army, a team that has specialized in long scoring runs this season. Its a night game at Austin, Tex.

The question is whether the Longhorn defense can stop such runners as Army quarterback Rollie Stichweh and tailback Fred Barnisky, both of whom have had scoring runs longer than 80 yards. And can the Army defense platoon, known and the Bandits, contain the powerful Texas offense. Texas lost its starting quarterback, Jim Hudson, with a knee injury but Stichweh has been having trouble with an ankle.

Southern Cal., No. 2, plays Michigan State at East Lansing, Mich., and figures to have a big edge on the passing of Craig Fertig and the running of Mike Garrett. But Duffy Daugherty's boys still can be tough, even though they lost to North Carolina last week.

Alabama, No. 4 after a couple of lopsided victories, figures to score another against Vanderbilt, but its a different problem with third-ranked Illinois, which had some trouble winning its opener from California.

The Illini defense was penetrated more than once by passer Craig Morton. Now it has to try to stop Northwestern's twin threats — Tom Myers, another sharp passer, and Steve Murphy, a crunching fullback. Northwestern if off in front in the Big Ten race after a one-point victory over Indiana.

Two of the top ten teams, Navy, No. 6, and Michigan, No. 8, are paired at Ann Arbor, Mich. The Midshipmen hope talented Roger Staubach will repeat last year's feats when he accounted for more than 300 yards against Michigan.

Auburn, No. 7, may have the toughest assignment of any ranked team. The Plainsmen, with quarter-back Jimmy Sidle hampered by a bad shoulder, face Kentucky, the team that knocked Mississippi off the top spot last week.

One game, Duke at Tulane, has been blown off Saturday's schedule by Hurricane Hilda's threat to New Orleans. It was postponed indefinetly Friday.

The week's regional television fare is Syracuse at Holy Cross, Washington at Iowa, Arkansas at Texas Christian and Colorado State U. at Air Force. Washington earned 10th place in the AP rankings with last week's decisive victory over Baylor after falling to Air Force 3-2 in its opener.

Ohio State, ranked fifth, opens its Big Ten campaign against Indiana and Notre Dame, which earned the No. 9 ranking by whipping Wisconsin, tries to defend it in a backyard battle against Purdue.

Some of the other high spots on the program:

East — Columbia at Princeton and Penn at Brown in Ivy League openers; Oregon at Penn State; William & Mary at Pitt, VMI at Villanova, Cornell at Colgate, Boston U. at Dartmouth, Bucknell at Harvard; Lehigh at Yale.

South — Wake Forest at North Carolina, Maryland at N.C. State, Virginia Tech at Virginia, Clemson at Georgia Tech, Florida at Louisiana State, Mississippi State vs. Tennessee at Memphis, Georgia at South Carolina, Houston at Mississippi, New Mexico State at Florida State.

Midwest — Oklahoma State at Missouri, Nebraska at Iowa State, Kansas State at Colorado, Wyoming at Kansas, Western Michigan at Miami of Ohio, Southern Illinois at Tulsa.

Southwest — Texas Tech at Texas A&M, West Virginia at Rice, Oregon State at Baylor, Arlington State at Southern Methodist.

Far West — Minnesota at California, Stanford at UCLA, Washington State at Arizona, Wichita at Arizona State, Idaho at Utah, Utah State at Hawaii.

Clark Turns In Best Time During Trials

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — James Clark of Scotland, in a team Lotus, turned in the best practice time Friday for the Sunday running of the American Grand Prix auto race.

Clark's time of 1:13.28 for the 2.3 mile lap broke the record of 1:13.4 set by Graham Hill last year. The Lotus speed was 112.11 miles per hour compared to Hill's old record of 112.61.

John Surtees' Ferrari had the second best time in the first day of the two-day practice runs. Surtees, of England, covered the dry, winding course in 1:13.8 for a speed of 112.2 m.p.h.

CC Soccer Team Opens New Slate

The Colorado College soccer team opens its season Sunday afternoon against the University of Wyoming in Laramie.

Tiger coach Bill Boddington expects to repeat last year's 3-1 win over the Wyoming Cowboys. Game time is set for 2 p.m.

"We've had some very good scrimmages," Boddington said, "against such teams as Colorado University and Ent Air Force Base and the team looks very good this year. Dick Knight, our center half back, has been coordinating a front line attack that should score goals."

This is Boddington's second year as soccer coach at Colorado College. He previously was mentor of the squad from 1949 to 1953. All but one of the starting teams will be returning lettermen.

The co-captains of the eleven, Steve Prough and Tony Bryan, both will be starters.

Rafael Osuna Defeats Chuck McKinley

LOS ANGELE S(AP) — Mexico's Rafael Osuna broke Chuck McKinley's last two services, won four consecutive games and scored a 6-3, 3-7, 6-3 victory Friday in the quarterfinals of the Pacific Southwest Tennis Championships.

Osuna advanced to the semifinals along with Ray Emerson and Fred Stolle of Australia and Dennis Ralston, of Bakersfield, Calif.

Emerson, the world's No. 1 amateur, defeated Pierre Darmon of France 6-4, 6-4. Stolle defeated defending tournament champion Arthur Ashe of UCLA 6-3, 6-4 and Ralston defeated Nicola Pietrangeli of Italy 6-4, 7-5.

It will be Ralston vs. Stolle and Emerson vs. Osuna in Saturday's semifinals.

Tigers to Meet Fort Lewis Still Seeking First Win

DURANGO — Colorado College takes another stab at its first football victory of 1964 here this afternoon when the Tigers meet Fort Lewis College at 1:30 p.m.

CC, which dropped its first two starts to a pair of Nebraska opponents, will be a touchdown underdog in this third contest of the eight game campaign.

Head coach Jerry Carle and line coach Frank Flood have effected a number of shifts in Tiger personnel during the past several days in an attempt to put some life in the dormant CC offense. Also improved for this afternoon is the physical condition of the squad which has been near disasterous. CC injuries were at a point last week where it appeared the Tigers might have to play their next contest in a hospital ward.

Quarterback Warner Reeser, who saw lengthy action last weekend despite an injured hand, has improved to the point where he will definitely get the starting call today. Mike Mestek, 180 pound senior who has also been below full speed, will open at left-halfback with Bob Stapp at right half and Ray Jones at fullback. All except Mestek are sophomores.

In the line star end Lee Muller is scheduled to return to action. Muller, an All-Rocky Mountain Conference selection in 1963, missed the first two games due to injuries but will be back at his familiar post today. His return should bolster the CC offense.

Other starters will include Ed Loosli at the opposite end, Roger Williams and Dave Hayes at tackles. Harry Intemann and Tom Wolf at guards, and Jim Garcia at center.

Fort Lewis, a 27-7 loser to the Tigers a year ago, has split in two contests to date this season. The victory was by a 13-7 margin over Colorado State College, a member of the Rocky Mountain Conference which CC escaped after last year. Fort Lewis is the school most frequently mentioned as a replacement for CC in the historic conference.

The Tigers, who are burdened with a three-game losing string which extends back to the final game of last season, dropped their opener to Concordia Lutheran of Seward, Neb., 12-0, and last week were defeated by an excellent Hastings, Neb. team, 21-12.

The Raiders will field a big team, with players ranging as large as 265 pound Dick Bender, a tackle from Davenport, Iowa. Bender, however, is on the doubtful list for today after suffering a bad facial cut in last week's loss to the College of Southern Utah. Tackle Julian Harvey, one of the team's mainstays will definetly miss the game due to an infected foot and Butch Prior, another starter, is sidelined with a badly sprained ankle.

Returning to the squad will be Wayne Woodhouse, a 210 pound tackle from Cedaredge, Colo. who was out last week with a severe chest cold.

Following today's game the Tigers remain on the road, traveling to Nebraska Wesleyan University for a 7:30 p.m. game next Friday. They then return home to meet California Lutheran of Thousand Oaks, Calif. in the 1964 Homecoming clash.

FLYING TIGER—Tony McGinnis, former Wasson High School player, is expected to see frequent action on defense when the Colorado College Tigers meet Fort Lewis College at Durango this afternoon. CC will be seeking its first victory of the season after dropping games the past two weekends.

Gun Bow Favored At Aqueduct Today

By ORLO ROBEERTSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Saturday is The Day for Kelso. The 7-year-old gelding from Mrs. Richard S. duPont's Bohemia Stable has reached the time where he came become the world's leading money winning race horse by taking the $100,000-added Woodward at Aqueduct.

Five others, including the fleet Gun Bow and the hard-hitting 3-year-old Quadrangle, were named Friday to oppose the four-time Horse of the Year in the 1¼-mile race. If all start, the Woodward will gross $109,200 with $70,980 earmarked for the winner. Kelso needs only $38,738 to top Round Table's $1,749,869. It's got to be a victory, second place money will not be enough.

Can Thomas Win?

By BERT NELSON
For The Associated Press

Never has the United States come home from an Olympic Games without a medal in the high jump and the gold medal in the pole vault. But the results could be different in Tokyo.

Two Russians, Robert Shavlakadze 7-1½ and Valery Brumel 7-4¼, upset young world record holder John Thomas in the 1960 Games. Both are back. Brumel as the reigning world record holder and virtually unbeatable since the Rome meet.

In fact Brumel has never been outjumped since Rome although losing a few times on the countback system while clearing the same height.

Shavlakadze's star was eclipsed shortly after Rome but he has returned better than ever. He went 7-1½, a lifetime best, recently to edge Brumel, who made the same height.

Poland has come up with a great jumper in Edward Czernik, 7-2⅝. Consistency is a virtue for him.

Tony Sneazwell, 7-0, of Australia went 7-2⅝ in Tokyo last October and has the stuff to do it again. Another jumper of promise is Mahamat Idriss, 7-1, of Chad while Sweden's Stig Pettersson, 7-0¼, is a reliable veteran.

The United States sends a trio of seven footers in John Rambo, 7-1¼, John Thomas, 7-1, and junior college star Ed Caruthers, 7-1. All have the stuff to win a medal but hardly figure to press the great Brumel.

My pick: Brumel, Czernik, Sneazwell, Rambo, Shavlakadze, and Thomas.

Only 11 of the 42 Olympic pole vault medals awarded since 1896 have escaped the monopolistic clutches of the American vaulters. Form says the United States should dominate the sky-climbing event once again, but by a lesser margin.

In fact, the victory string could be broken, most likely by a German. Wolfgang Reinhardt, 21, upped the European record to 16-9¼ this year but soon lost the mark to his veteran countryman, Manfred Preussger, 32, who cleared 16-10¾.

This is approaching the magic 17-foot mark, negotiated so far only by two of the American entries. Fred Hansen has pushed the world mark up to 17-4, taking it away from John Pennel, who did 17-0¾ last year with a 1964 best of 16-8½.

Bucs Touted 'Outlaws' Face Stern Test Against Mullen

Gazette Telegraph Sports Writer

DENVER — The St. Mary's touted defensive unit the "Outlaws," which has been a contributing factor in the Colorado Springs team's 3-0 won-loss record thus far in the Denver Parochial League, will receive an acid test of their ability to stop the pre-season DPL favorites Mullen here today.

Game time is set for 2 p.m. at Mullen Stadium.

Last year the Pirates defeated the Mullen gridders but succumbed to the loop's perennial champion Regis and scrappy St. Joseph's deadlocked Mullen for second place. Regis clinched the championship last year.

The small but aggressive St. Joseph's team battled the larger Mullen team and the Mustangs had to settle for a 6-0 squeaker. In non-league games this season, the Mustangs have racked up decisive victories by overwhelming scores.

This is a crucial encounter for Chuck Haering's young Buccaneers in their search for a second DPL title; the St. Mary's 1962 grid edition won the first league championship in the school's 50 years of competition.

St. Mary's has been outstanding on defense this season and stopped the 1963 State Double-A champion Cheyenne Mountain to open its football campaign on a happy note. Since then the Pirates have scored victories over Machebeuf, Mt. Carmel and Annunciation to lead the DPL standings.

The "Outlaws" have proven themselves on the gridiron, despite the fact that Haering only had five returning lettermen from last year's squad, and the Pirates' defensive unit has con'ained the opposition to a mere 270 net yards rushing in four games. This is quite an achievement for the "Outlaws" and the Bucs offensive unit has compiled 813 net yards rushing.

Haering will count heavily on his ace fullback Sam Zavatti, who leads the Pirates in rushing via 273 yards, to pace the St. Mary's offense against the Mus'angs in today's outing. Zavatti also anchors the "Outlaws" at the middle linebacker slot and is equally outstanding on defense.

Veteran quarterback Jerry Knauf is scheduled to direct the Pirates' forward attack with Chris White starting at the slot back position.

Haering indicated during practice this week that Gary Dobson, the Bucs' pint-size running back who is the team's second leading rusher with 207 net yards, may be sidelined from today's game. Dobson has a hip-pointer and Haering didn't know whether or not the 125-pound speedster would be able to play.

For the Mustangs, Steve Onorofskie will be the lad the Pirates will have to stop. Onorofskie scored the single touchdown last week against St. Joseph's to spearhead the 6-0 win. Onorofskie runs from the fullback slot and he picked up 30 yards last week via 12 carries.

Earlier this season Onorofskie went on a rampage against Sheridan Union when he gained 202 yards on 15 carries.

Should the Pirates manage to defeat Mullen, the Springs team is faced with stopping Regis; something the Bucs have failed to accomplish since they have been in the DPL the last seven years. The St. Mary's-Regis game is scheduled for Oct. 18 at Wasson Stadium in Colorado Springs.

100,000th Fan Expected At RMKC Oval Tonight

"I feel sure, that we will have the opportuniey of welcoming the 100,000th fan tonight," said general Manager Al Binns of the Colorado Springs' Rocky Mountain Kennel Club.

"Judging from our attendance the past weekends the 100,000th fan will pass through the turnstiles sometime during the early part of the evening. It is happening earlier than in past seasons but we had expected this as our attendance is showing a steady increase," Binns concluded.

Greyhound racing all over the United States is showing more gain in attendance figures than any other spectator sport.

The local oval, (this is the 16th year of operation for RMKC), is showing attendance gains that are somewhat above the national percentage. In 1963, the 100,000th fan appeared on the 43rd night of the meet as compared with the anticipated 37th this year and in 1962 it was on the 40th night but not until the 46th night in 1961 and the 49th in 1960.

The 100,000th fan has always been afforded special honors at RMKC and this year will be awarded a new, crisp $50 bill on arrival, will be given seasons gradnstand seats as compliments of the RMKC management and will be the guest of honor at a steak dinner in the RMKC clubhouse on Wednesday, Oct. 14th, after which the 100,000th fan will make the presentation to the winner of the 1964 RMKC Puppy Stake Race.

Tonight sees the return of Pay Off Girl to the local oval in the 10th race, the first half of the Twin Quin. She will be keeping company with Betty Babe, Scrooge Mosher, Clive's Sugar, Avant Garde, Dan Onery, Ski Lady and Silk Angel as she goes for a money finish to make it a tally of 11 times out and 10 money finishes. She came in last in her last try which was the first time she had failed to make a money finish during the current season.

All NBC cardholders and prospective members are invited to attend.

Stock Car Racing At Sportsman's

Stock car racing from thruout Colorado moves to Sportsman's Raceway Park east of Colorado Springs this Sunday afternoon for the 1964 Colorado Stock Car Championships. The races will be on an open competition basis, except that supermodified sprint cars, also known as Jet Coupes, will not be allowed to run for prize money.

With Englewood Speedway outside Denver now closed for the season, and with the track in Pueblo closing for this Sunday, the largest field of modified and late model stock cars of the year is expected to enter the Championship program.

Dale DeWitt, popular Colorado Springs driver, is the current high point driver in the modified division at Sportsman's, and a Main Event win Sunday could clinch him the track Championship.

The past several weeks, DeWitt's strongest competion has come from two other Springs drivers, Bob Moberly and Gary Wayne, as well as Denver drivers Bob Harrington, Sammy Sauer, L. A. Mock, and Bart Manley.

In the late model division, Colorado Springs driver John Talley, driving his 1956 Ford, is the present high point leader, with another Springs driver, Mike Wooley, running a very close second.

Last Sunday afternoon, Wooley, driving his bright yellow 1955 Chev, won the featured event by two car lengths at the state fairgrounds' half-mile dirt track in Pueblo. Second place in that contest went to one of Pueblo's top drivers, Ronnie McDowell, who is expected to give both Wooley and Talley some strong competition this Sunday.

All of these drivers, plus many more are expected to enter Sunday's Championship events.

Track officials have also announced that Miss Cindy Layne, popular vocalist and comedienne at a Colorado Springs Night Club, will make the trophy presentations this Sunday, which will see the big program get underway with the time trials beginning at 1 and the races at 2 p.m.

Colts-Rams Game Tops NFL Slate; Bills Favored in AFL

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer

Johnny Unitas and Baltimore's new-found running punch will provide the acid test for that bruising defensive unit of the Los Angeles Rams in one of the most interesting games on the weekend pro football program.

The Colts, who have not lost to the Rams in Baltimore since 1955, are coming off a 52-0 rout of the Chicago Bears that aroused title hopes in Baltimore. They lead the lead in scoring and have the No. 1 passer in Unitas, who has been intercepted only once and has thrown seven touchdowns.

Harland Svafe's front four on defense were likened to "Dempsey, Firpo, Ruth and Gehrig" by Minnesota's Dutch Van Brocklin last week after losing to the Rams 22-13. He didn't say which was which among Lamar Lundy, Merlin Olsen, Deacon Jones and Rosey Grier.

It will be Ralston vs. Stolle and Emerson vs. Osuna in Saturday's semifinals.

Clark Turns In Best Time During Trials

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — James Clark of Scotland, in a team Lotus, turned in the best practice time Friday for the Sunday running of the American Gran Prix auto race.

Clark's time of 1:13.23 for the 2.3 mile lap broke the record of 1:13.4 set by Graham Hill last year. The Lotus speed was 113.11 miles per hour compared to Hill's old record of 112.81.

John Surtees' Ferrari had the second best time in the first day of the two-day practice runs. Surtees, of England, covered the dry, winding course in 1:13.8 for a speed of 112.2 m.p.h.

Oldest London Nude Show to Close Doors

By GRANVILLE J. WATTS

LONDON (AP) — London's strip clubs are succeeding where Adolf Hitler's bombers failed. They're ringing down the curtain Oct. 31 on the British capital's oldest nude show, the Windmill Theater.

Its perfect record of performance during the blitz earned it the proud motto "we never closed." But Sheila Van Damm, managing director of the 39-year-old theater, told newsmen that because of falling attendance she i sell to a firm which will make the Windmill a movie house.

"We began to lose business almost immediately after the strip clubs opened in London in 1956," Miss Van Damm told a news conference.

"The girls in the clubs can move. As a theater our nudes were bound by law to stand still."

Asked why she didn't change into a club, Miss Van Damm said: "I never wanted that. We had a tradition. I have nothing against strip clubs — but I wouldn't want to do it."

Miss Van Damm said she had broken the news to her 28 Windmill girls that very day.

"It was very sad. They all cried on my shoulder. After all, we've been more like a family than a show. The girls thought of the Windmill as home."

She said she hopes to keep some of the girls in business, perhaps as a touring troupe of dancers.

"I hope to find everyone a job, then I'll look for one myself," she said.

Miss Van Damm refused to say how much she had been paid for the theater by the Compton group, British film producers.

She took over the theater, a family business, when her father died four years ago.

Along with its lineup of girls, the Windmill turned out revue stars. Peter Sellers got his start there.

Miss Van Damm — she says "I'm less than 44" — told newsmen she is particularly sorry for the disappointment the closing will cause her regulars, business types with bowler hats and briefcases.

"I shall miss them," said Miss Van Damm.

"We've had a bloody good innings. And I'm proud of it."

Sister Mary Attends Vatican Council

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Sister Mary Luke, only American among the 15 Roman Catholic women named as observers for the Vatican Ecumenical Council, has attended her first session of the meeting.

"It was a joy," said Sister Mary Luke after the session. "It was a wonderful experience to meet so many bishops, ethologians and others connected with the council. I have heard so much about them. I want to meet as many as possible."

Sister Mary Luke, 56, is superior-general of the Sisters of Our Lady of Loreto, Nerinx, Ky.

Wall Street Report

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market eased irregularly late Friday afternoon as trading ened.

Volume for the day was estimated at 4.5 million shares compared with 4.46 million Thursday.

Leading issues showed gains or losses of fractions to a point, generally.

As the General Motors strike entered its second week, GM stock and Ford were fractional losers. Chrysler was off about a point.

Steels and rubbers were narrowly mixed.

A generally higher trend prevailed among aerospace issues, drugs, oils, tobaccos and, onferrous metals.

Prices were mixed as trading slackened on the American Stock Exchange.

Corporate bonds were firm. U.S. government bonds marked time in quiet dealings over the counter.

Grain Market

CHICAGO (AP)—Soybean futures moved sharply higher today for the second consecutive session, influenced by a private production estimate that forecast a smaller than expected bean crop.

Beans advanced as much as nine cents a bushel late in the session after the report became public.

Other grains moved higher, mainly on strength in the leader.

The private report estimated bean production at 678 million bushels compared with the government's September 1 estimate of 704 million bushels.

Carlot receipts were: Wheat 2 cars, corn 103, oats 15, rye none, barley 24 and soybeans 82.

More Federal Drought Aid Is Being Sought

DENVER (UPI)— The U.S. Agriculture Department was asked Wednesday to designate Adams, Arapahoe and Lincoln Counties as federal drought disaster areas.

Gov. John Love asked that the three counties be allowed to join the emergency grazing program until the emergency feed grain program. Twelve Colorado counties already are on the grazing plan and 10 are on the feed program.

The two federal plans allow ranchers and farmers to graze their cattle on soil bank lands and to buy surplus feed grain at 75 per cent of market value.

Arctic flowers bloom on Banks Island, Canada, in July.

TONY RANDALL IN LONDON FOR A CHRISTIE MYSTERY

HOLLYWOOD—Address Tony Randall's mail to the Dorchester in London, since that's where he'll be while making "The A B C Murders" With Robert Morley. Tony plays Agtha Christie's Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot. The big question is whether he'll be bald. Tony doesn't want to disappoint Christie fans who know that Poirot was a Yul Brynner type, but M-G-M thinks he'd be more attractive with hair. I reminded him it would be mighty cold in England I'd have to make him a nightcap if he shaved his head. "You promised me one when I did 'Dr. Lao,' " said Tony, "but you never made good."

Bill Dozier is preparing a picture at Twentieth Century-Fox from an original by Shimon Wincelberg, "Honor Thy Father." It's about a girl who falls in love with one of her three kidnapers, all brothers, and refuses to return to her domineering father after he pays the ransom. Bill has Natalie Wood and Steve McQueen in mind for it, but he also has his eye on Mia Farrow. He says she might just be ready for stardom when he starts the picture next spring.

Mary Martin meant it when she told me she and Richard Halliday would stay in Brazil a year. She's rented her beautiful New York apartment to Jennifer Jones and David Selznick for 12 months. Jennifer expects to do a Broadway play.

Buddy Ebsen has finished writing a play called "Champagne General" about Ulysses S. Grant, and has given up the yacht race to Hawaii to do it in the theater next summer. He'll play Abe Lincoln. I'm hoping Edwin Lester will be his producer.

Well, Bo Belinsky and Dean Chance, ham actors at heart, will get to show their talent, if any, with Bert Lahr and Allen Case in that baseball classic, "Damn Yankees," at Melodyland theater.

Peter Falk planned to linger in New York en route from "The Great Race" location. He called home to discover his wife was in the hospital, where she lost their expected baby, so he took the next plane to California.

Carol and Bob Goulet's baby may be born in Las Vegas, because she's coming west with him for his month's engagement at the Flamingo.

Remember Western Star Tim McCoy? He now lives near the Mexican border and is still in show business. He and his two sons tour the United States every season with a small circus.

Whether you like Neil Vanderbilt or not, he's a good news getter. He loathed the social life of his mother. When Sir Thomas Lipton challenged for America's yacht cup, he wasn't invited to the ball the Vanderbilts held in Newport ("he was in trade, you know — tea"). So Neil got a boat, went out to Sir Lipton's yacht, and spent the evening with him. When he was quite little and had to go yachting with his parents, he kept a diary of all their doings and made a newspaper out of it. When he came here to start his News Letter (again "trade, you know"), his family refused to help him.

Two Destroyers Were Involved In Tonkin Gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The destroyers Edwards und Morton were the two U.S. warships involved in the third Tonkin Gulf incident Sept. 18, the Defense Department said Thursday.

But the department again refused to speculate on whether any attacking PT boats were sunk. During the incident the destroyers opened fire when radar indicated that four vessels were approaching.

The ship names were released after the department was informed that a crewman aboard the Edwards had written his parents in Dubuque, Iowa, that his ship was involved.

The crewman said the ships "blew two PT boats out of the water and shot up a third," the department was told by a representative of the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

The Defense Department merely repeated previous statements "that the shapes on the radars of the two destroyers disappeared from the radar scope after being fired upon, subsequent to warning shots."

Since the first announcement, the incident has been treated in guarded fashion because of uncertainty as to exactly what occurred.

LONDON — A girl who would be a jockey has been officially barred from several English racetracks.

Home Says Treaty Drafted

LONDON (UPI) — Electioneering Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home said Friday that the United States and Britain have readied a draft treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons. He later was struck by an egg thrown by a heckler while making another campaign speech.

Douglas-Home said a "non-dissemination" treaty should include Communist China and France. It should be possible the idea, he said.

The prime minister spoke to an audience at Manchester in the campaign that was producing increasing incidents of violence, rowdyism and heckling.

Eggs started flying later while the prime minister was visiting the village of Limehurst on a swing through the midlands.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D.,Ph.D.

Marilyn's husband demands a blood test for he claims he is not the father of their baby. Yet Marilyn has been a model wife, except for her preoccupation with the new baby. Her husband simply cherishes a false notion about woman's sexual ardor, so send for the sex booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE T-487: Marilyn M., aged 25, is the mother of a new baby.

"Please help me, Dr. Crane," she pleaded tearfully, "for my husband is so jealous.

"He claims he is not the father of my baby and has even slapped our child cruelly on several occasions, probably to make me cry.

"But I have never even looked at any other man since I first became engaged to my husband!

"So why should he have such a false idea? He now is demanding that we take blood tests to prove if he is really our baby's daddy. Will blood tests do that, Dr. Crane?"

Blood tests can prove if a man is NOT the father of a certain baby.

But they do not prove if he is the infant's father.

A competent lie detector test (polygraph analysis) will usually eliminate such doubt within an hour or so.

But why should Marilyn's husband show such insane jealousy?

Marilyn is at least 50 per cent to blame though she thinks she is entirely innocent of any fault in the matter.

But she is a typical young wife who is not over 25 per cent erotic and 75 per cent maternal.

So when the baby arrived and she diverted that 75 per cent of her attention to its care, then her husband was shocked at the decline from 100 per cent to 25 per cent in her regard for him.

Because Marilyn was also inclined to be overly preoccupied with her new offspring, she may not have directed even 10 per cent of her attention to her mate.

What complicated her case further, was also the fact her husband had absorbed the widespread but false notion that a woman is ALWAYS wildly passionate if she loves a man.

That's not true at all! So millions of you males better get hep to the true facts about female psychology.

Human females are not much more erotic than cows or mares!

That may sound brutally frank but it is medically true.

Yet millions of men have been tutored by lewd older males who have been patrons of "red light" houses.

Those Don Juans then tell their credulous teen - age listeners that women are even MORE passionate than men. Many sheltered idealistic young men then marry with this false notion tucked into their subconscious minds.

So, after the arrival of the first baby, they are shocked to find their wives are diffident and often sexual procrastinators.

"But my wife MUST be wildly passionate," Marilyn's husband later affirmed in my office.

"So — since she is frigid with me, doesn't that prove she is having an affair with some other man?"

Yet Marilyn had never had an affair with any other man prior to marriage and had been true to her husband ever since their wedding!

You wives can eliminate such unmerited jealousy and also much of the cruelty of fathers toward their children. if you will banish mankind's false sex notion about women.

So send for my booklet "Sex Differences Between Men and Women," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Mrs. Rockefeller Deeply Grieved By Suit Defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller's lawyer says she is "deeply grieved" by loss of her suit for custody of the four children she gave up when she got a divorce 18 months ago to marry New York's governor.

The lawyer, Edward S. Greenbaum, said no decision was made immediately on whether to appeal the decision announced in suburban White Plains Thursday by State Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Gagliardi.

Counsel for Dr. James S. Murphy, father of the children and Mrs. Rockefeller's first husband, said Murphy was "highly gratified" that Gagliardi had not voided the custody agreement contained in the Idaho divorce decree.

Murphy's lawyer, David Kelly, also told a news conference here that "certain details as to visitation (rights) remain to be worked out with Mr. Greenbaum, but we anticipate no difficulties on this score."

Kelly said that, now that the case has been decided, Murphy "wishes for himself and his children to resume his private life as an ordinary citizen. Above all else, the children should be shielded from the glare of the public spotlight."

The children range in age from 4 to 13. The Idaho decree gave Mrs. Rockefeller liberal visiting rights. In recent months, 4-year-old Malinda has been living with the Rockefellers, who have a 4-month-old son of their own. The three older children have been living with Murphy and his second wife, whom he married last June.

Rockefeller's first wife divorced him in 1962 after 31 years of marriage. Their children were all grown.

Gagliardi, who barred the public and the press from the custody hearings, Thursday ordered that all testimony and the court file in the case be sealed "for the best interests of the children."

The judge ruled that it would be "a mistake of the first magnitude" to separate any of the four children from the others.

He found, in effect, that the parents were about equally able to provide love, security, education and other advantages for the children.

Therefore, he said, Mrs. Rockefeller should abide by the bargain she made when she gave up the children.

Action Ordered In Pollution Of River Suit

DOVE CREEK, Colo. (UPI)— The State of Colorado charged Thursday thut a Western Slope mining interest had failed to stop pollution of the Dolores River and that it was going ahead with a $30,000 damage suit in the case.

Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar said the Rico Argentine Mining Co. had failed to meet the Oct. 2 deadline set for correcting the problem.

"We've been very tolerant with the company," Dunbar said. "We've accepted their promises that they would clear it up, but whatever, they have done was not very effective. We made tests at four or five locations and the river is still bad."

A spokesman for the company said the firm was doing all it could to eliminate the pollution.

The state originally filed suit against the company in Dove Creek district court last August, but delayed taking action pending attempts to stop the alleged pollution.

Balinsky Comes Out At Last

MOSCOW (UPI) — Alexander Balinsky lived in a coffin for 19 years, the Soviet military newspaper Red Star said Friday.

Balinsky was 21 when he built the wooden coffin, placed it in his parents' attic, and hid inside it to escape service in the Red army, according to the newspaper.

That was in 1944. His parents told neighbors their son had enlisted and gone to war.

Invading Nazis came to his village of Chertok and beat his father so severely he nearly died.

"Only one person didn't come to his father's aid and that was Alexander," Red Star said. Alexander stayed in his coffin.

When the war ended, Balinsky was afraid he would be shot as a deserter. So he stayed in his coffin. His parents told neighbors their boy was missing in action.

But he was unhappy, Red Star said.

"He hated everything living around him," it said. "He envied everybody. He condemned his sisters for getting married because people were celebrating and drinking while brother was lying trembling in his coffin in the attic."

Balinsky left the attic only once when his father died. He ignored a government amnesty for all deserters. As his mother grew old, she found it more and more difficult to climb to the attic to feed him. He ate less.

When Balinsky was 40, one of his brothers-in-law happened to go into the attic.

"Alexander started whimpering," Red Star related.

"I will die of hunger," he told the relative. "Help me. Do anything but help me."

They took him out of the attic. They cut off his beard and clipped his hair with sheep shears. They fed him. But still he whimpered, "I have no wife and no children."

Red Star commented: "This disgusting and criminal deserter is now free to work as a free man," but it said he never could remove the shame of his years in the coffin.

Last year, hydrologists from the U.S. Geological Survey, cooperating with the Brazilian government, surveyed the Amazon's waters at various points and at different seasons. They discovered that the Amazon is about 12 times larger than the Mississippi. Previous estimates had placed the Amazon's volume of flow at about seven times that of the Mississippi.

TONY RANDALL IN LONDON FOR A CHRISTIE MYSTERY

HOLLYWOOD—Address Tony Randall's mail to the Dorchester in London, since that's where he'll be while making "The A B C Murders" With Robert Morley. Tony plays Agatha Christie's Belgian detective, Hercule Poirot. The big question is whether he'll be bald. Tony doesn't want to disappoint Christie fans who know that Poirot was a Yul Brynner type, but M-G-M thinks he'd be more attractive with hair. I reminded him it would be mighty cold in England I'd have to make him a nightcap if he shaved his head. "You promised me one when I did 'Dr. Lao,' " said Tony, "but you never made good."

Bill Dozier is preparing a picture at Twentieth Century-Fox from an original by Shimon Wincelberg, "Honor Thy Father." It's about a girl who falls in love with one of her three kidnapers, all brothers, and refuses to return to her domineering father after he pays the ransom. Bill has Natalie Wood and Steve McQueen in mind for it, but he also has his eye on Mia Farrow. He says she might just be ready for stardom when he starts the picture next spring.

Mary Martin meant it when she told me she and Richard Halliday would stay in Brazil a year. She's rented her beautiful New York apartment to Jennifer Jones and David Selznick for 12 months. Jennifer expects to do a Broadway play.

Buddy Ebsen has finished writing a play called "Champagne General" about Ulysses S. Grant, and has given up the yacht race to Hawaii to do it in the theater next summer. He'll play Abe Lincoln. I'm hoping Edwin Lester will be his producer.

Well, Bo Belinsky and Dean Chance, ham actors at heart, will get to show their talent, if any, with Bert Lahr and Allen Case in that baseball classic, "Damn Yankees," at Melodyland theater.

Peter Falk planned to linger in New York en route from "The Great Race" location. He called home to discover his wife was in the hospital, where she lost their expected baby, so he took the next plane to California.

Carol and Bob Goulet's baby may be born in Las Vegas, because she's coming west with him for his month's engagement at the Flamingo.

Remember Western Star Tim McCoy? He now lives near the Mexican border and is still in show business. He and his two sons tour the United States every season with a small circus.

Whether you like Neil Vanderbilt or not, he's a good news getter. He loathed the social life of his mother. When Sir Thomas Lipton challenged for America's yacht cup, he wasn't invited to the ball the Vanderbilts held in Newport ("he was in trade, you know — tea"). So Neil got a boat, went out to Sir Lipton's yacht, and spent the evening with him. When he was quite little and had to go yachting with his parents, he kept a diary of all their doings and made a newspaper out of it. When he came here to start his News Letter (again "trade, you know"), his family refused to help him.

Two Destroyers Were Involved In Tonkin Gulf

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The destroyers Edwards und Morton were the two U.S. warships involved in the third Tonkin Gulf incident Sept. 18, the Defense Department said Thursday.

But the department again refused to speculate on whether any attacking PT boats were sunk. During the incident the destroyers opened fire when radar indicated that four vessels were approaching.

The ship names were released after the department was informed that a crewman aboard the Edwards had written his parents in Dubuque, Iowa, that his ship was involved.

The crewman said the ships "blew two PT boats out of the water and shot up a third," the department was told by a representative of the Dubuque Telegraph-Herald.

The Defense Department merely repeated previous statements "that the shapes on the radars of the two destroyers disappeared from the radar scope after being fired upon, subsequent to warning shots."

Since the first announcement, the incident has been treated in guarded fashion because of uncertainty as to exactly what occurred.

LONDON — A girl who would be a jockey has been officially barred from several English racetracks.

Home Says Treaty Drafted

LONDON (UPI) — Electioneering Prime Minister Sir Alex Douglas-Home said Friday that the United States and Britain have readied a draft treaty to bar the spread of nuclear weapons. He later was struck by an egg thrown by a heckler while making another campaign speech.

Douglas-Home said a "nondissemination" treaty should include Communist China and France. It should be possible the idea, he said.

The prime minister spoke to an audience at Manchester in the campaign that was producing increasing incidents of violence, rowdyism and heckling.

Eggs started flying later while the prime minister was visiting the village of Limehurst on a swing through the midlands.

WORRY CLINIC

By George W. Crane, M.D., Ph.D.

Marilyn's husband demands a blood test for he claims he is not the father of their baby. Yet Marilyn has been a model wife, except for her preoccupation with the new baby. Her husband simply cherishes a false notion about woman's sexual ardor, so send for the sex booklet below.

By GEORGE W. CRANE
Ph. D., M. D.

CASE T-487: Marilyn M., aged 25, is the mother of a new baby.

"Please help me, Dr. Crane," she pleaded tearfully, "for my husband is so jealous.

"He claims he is not the father of my baby and has even slapped our child cruelly on sevver occasions, probably to make me cry.

"But I have never even looked at any other man since I first became engaged to my husband!

"So why should he have such a false idea? He now is demanding that we take blood tests to prove if he is really our baby's daddy. Will blood tests do that, Dr. Crane?"

Blood tests can prove if a man is NOT the father of a certain baby.

But they do not prove if he is the infant's father.

A competent lie detector test (polygraph analysis) will usually eliminate such doubt within an hour or so.

But why should Marilyn's husband show such insane jealousy?

Marilyn is at least 50 per cent to blame though she thinks she is entirely innocent of any fault in the matter.

But she is a typical young wife who is not over 25 per cent erotic and 75 per cent maternal.

So when the baby arrived and she diverted that 75 per cent of her attention to its care, then her husband was shocked at the decline from 100 per cent to 25 per cent in her regard for him.

Because Marilyn was also inclined to be overly preoccupied with her new offspring, she may not have directed even 10 per cent of her attention to her mate.

What complicated her case further, was also the fact her husband had absorbed the widespread but false notion that a woman is ALWAYS wildly passionate if she loves a man.

That's not true at all! So millions of you males better get hep to the true facts about female psychology.

Human females are not much more erotic than cows or mares!

That may sound brutally frank but it is medically true.

Yet millions of men have been tutored by lewd older males who have been patrons of "red light" houses.

Those Don Juans then tell their credulous teen - age listeners that women are even MORE passionate than men. Many sheltered idealistic young men then marry with this false notion tucked into their subconscious minds.

So, after the arrival of the first baby, they are shocked to find their wives are diffident and often sexual procrastinators.

"But my wife MUST be wildly passionate," Marilyn's husband later affirmed in my office.

"So — since she is frigid with me, doesn't that prove she is having an affair with some other man?"

Yet Marilyn had never had an affair with any other man prior to marriage and had been true to her husband ever since their wedding!

You wives can eliminate such unmerited jealousy and also much of the cruelty of fathers toward their children, if you will banish mankind's false sex notion about women.

So send for my booklet "Sex Differences Between Men and Women," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 20 cents.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 20 cents to cover typing and printing costs when you send for one of his booklets.)

Mrs. Rockefeller Deeply Grieved By Suit Defeat

NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller's lawyer says she is "deeply grieved" by loss of her suit for custody of the four children she gave up when she got a divorce 18 months ago to marry New York's governor.

The lawyer, Edward S. Greenbaum, said no decision was made immediately on whether to appeal the decision announced in suburban White Plains Thursday by State Supreme Court Justice Joseph F. Gagliardi.

Counsel for Dr. James S. Murphy, father of the children and Mrs. Rockefeller's first husband, said Murphy was "highly gratified" that Gagliardi had not voided the custody agreement contained in the Idaho divorce decree.

Murphy's lawyer, David Kelly, also told a news conference here that "certain details as to visitation (rights) remain to be worked out with Mr. Greenbaum, but we anticipate no difficulties on this score."

Kelly said that, now that the case has been decided, Murphy "wishes for himself and his children to resume his private life as an ordinary citizen. Above all else, the children should be shielded from the glare of the public spotlight."

The children range in age from 4 to 13. The Idaho decree gave Mrs. Rockefeller liberal visiting rights. In recent months, 4-year-old Malinda has been living with the Rockefellers, who have a 4-month-old son of their own. The three older children have been living with Murphy and his second wife, whom he married last June.

Rockefeller's first wife divorced him in 1962 after 31 years of marriage. Their children were all grown.

Gagliardi, who barred the public and the press from the custody hearings, Thursday ordered that all testimony and the court file in the case be sealed "for the best interests of the children."

The judge ruled that it would be "a mistake of the first magnitude" to separate any of the four children from the others.

He found, in effect, that the parents were about equally able to provide love, security, education and other advantages for the children.

Therefore, he said, Mrs. Rockefeller should abide by the bargain she made when she gave up the children.

Balinsky Comes Out At Last

MOSCOW (UPI) — Alexander Balinsky lived in a coffin for 19 years, the Soviet military newspaper Red Star said Friday.

Balinsky was 21 when he built the wooden coffin, placed it in his parents' attic, and hid inside it to escape service in the Red army, according to the newspaper.

That was in 1944. His parents told neighbors their son had enlisted and gone to war.

Invading Nazis came to his village of Chertok and beat his father so severely he nearly died.

"Only one person didn't come to his father's aid and that was Alexander," Red Star said. Alexander stayed in his coffin.

When the war ended, Balinsky was afraid he would be shot as a deserter. So he stayed in his coffin. His parents told neighbors their boy was missing in action.

But he was unhappy, Red Star said.

"He hated everything living around him," it said. "He envied everybody. He condemned his sisters for getting married because people were celebrating and drinking while brother was lying trembling in his coffin in the attic."

Balinsky left the attic only once when his father died. He ignored a government amnesty for all deserters. As his mother grew old, she found it more and more difficult to climb to the attic to feed him. He ate less.

When Balinsky was 40, one of his brothers-in-law happened to go into the attic.

"Alexander started whimpering," Red Star related.

"I will die of hunger," he told the relative. "Help me. Do anything but help me."

They took him out of the attic. They cut off his beard and clipped his hair with sheep shears. They fed him. But still he whimpered, "I have no wife and no children."

Red Star commented: "This disgusting and criminal deserter is now free to work as a free man," but it said he never could remove the shame of his years in the coffin.

Last year, hydrologists from the U.S. Geological Survey, cooperating with the Brazilian government, surveyed the Amazon's waters at various points and at different seasons. They discovered that the Amazon is about 12 times larger than the Mississippi. Previous estimates had placed the Amazon's volume of flow at about seven times that of the Mississippi.

Action Ordered In Pollution Of River Suit

DOVE CREEK, Colo. (UPI)— The State of Colorado charged Thursday thut a Western Slope mining interest had failed to stop pollution of the Dolores River and that it was going ahead with a $30,000 damage suit in the case.

Atty. Gen. Duke W. Dunbar said the Rico Argentine Mining Co. had failed to meet the Oct. 2 deadline set for correcting the problem.

"We've been very tolerant with the company," Dunbar said. "We've accepted their promises that they would clear it up, but whatever, they have done was not very effective. We made tests at four or five locations and the river is still bad."

A spokesman for the company said the firm was doing all it could to eliminate the pollution.

The state originally filed suit against the company in Dove Creek district court last August, but delayed taking action pending attempts to stop the alleged pollution.

Common Bible Is Urged at Vatican Council

VATICAN CITY (UPI)—The Ecumenical Council today heard an appeal for Catholic scholars to work with Protestants towards a common Bible.

A proposal for official church sanction of a Bible is contained in a constitution on the sources of revelation which the more than 2,000 cardinals, archbishops, bishops and abbots continued to debate in St. Peter's Basilica.

Bishop John Van Dodewaard of Harlem, Holland, called for cooperation between Catholics and other Christians in biblical studies while giving a report on the closing chapters of the constitution.

He said translations of the Bible into modern languages should be encouraged and that the work "should be done with separated brethren in harmony with the pastoral and ecumenical goals of the council."

The constitution on the sources of revelation gives a compromise solution to whether God communicated to man through Scripture alone, as Protestants believe, or independently through tradition and Scripture, as the Catholic Church maintains.

Carson Man Given Medal for Bravery

WASHINGTON (UPI)— Army Secretary Stephen Ailes Thursday presented an award for bravery in meritorious civilian service to Herman B. Sneiderman of Ft. Carson, Colo.

Three Witnesses Testify in Municipal Court

Three witnesses testified Friday in Municipal Court that they had the green light Aug. 10 at Hancock Avenue when Stacy Stuart, 69, 2910 Concord St., disobeyed a traffic signal while westbound on Platte Avenue.

Stuart's car collided with one being driven by Stephen Hertzberg, 906 Del Monte St., one of the witnesses, and landed in the center island.

Judge Allan Asher found Stuart guilty and imposed a $15 fine. He also found him guilty of injury to city property but continued disposition until Oct. 14.

Clair Noel Hunt of Canon City was found guilty of a turning movement violation and was fined $15 which Judge Asher suspended.

Luther Smith, 29, 435 N. Uintah St., and Martin Trujillo, 22, 506 E. Moreno St., changed their pleas to guilty to charges of careless driving and speeding, respectively, and each received fines of $15.

Bonds were ordered forfeited by the following who failed to appear in court: Larry Remling, 19, Buena Vista, $10, disobeying a traffic signal; John P. Cannon, 23, Kansas City, $5, muffler violation; and William Lonergan, 42, Wichita, Kan., $10, flashing red signal.

Dean Engle Clements, 24, Ft. Carson, was fined $150 on his guilty plea to reckless driving, and had his right to drive in the city suspended for 60 days. Judge Asher said $50 would be suspended if Clements will attend the traffic lecture Oct. 14 in El Paso County Court House, and if he is not involved in a traffic violation involving the use of alcohol for the next year.

Patricia Hallam, 40, Denver, and Robert Lewter, 25, Ft. Carson, were found guilty of injury to city property charges. Each received fines of $75 and the judge ordered writs of execution issued immediately as they did not appear in court.

A charge of injury to city property was dismissed against Wilbert Padilla, 21, 214 S. 12th St., when Bailiff Cliff Widmoyer noted that the damages had been paid.

On a motion by Deputy City Attorney Bob Isaac, Judge Asher dismissed charges of riotous conduct and breach of peace against Ronald Nimmons, 29, and Thomas Wells, 37, both of 530 S. Cedar St. Isaac said the civilian complainant was out of the state and could not be located.

Attorney John Cooper entered not guilty pleas to charges of vagrancy against his clients, Diana Fields, 22, and Kelly James, 24. Miss Fields listed her address as the Cheyenne Hotel but Miss James did not list an address.

'Future of the City' Topic At Municipal League Meet

Dr. William O. Winter of the political science department of the University of Colorado, was the featured speaker at the annual fall meeting of District VI of the Colorado Municipal League Thursday.

His topic was "The Future of the City." The city, said Dr. Winter before the meeting, should be viewed "not as a machine, but as a humanizing, civilizing device." He feels that, although we have too long stressed efficiency, the modern city is actually inefficient.

The detached dwelling, he said, should be replaced with contiguous multiple dwellings, with the center of the block as a common. He would recommend such planning for even such areas as Colorado Springs. He views the controlling factor not as available perimeter, but as distance from the city center.

Kinney O'Rourke, Boulder, attorney for the Colorado Municipal League, explained during the social hour that the Municipal League has been admitted as amicus curiae (friend of the court), a designation given to parties with an interest in the results of a case, but not directly involved in the present case, in the case of Berman v. City and County of Denver, now before the Colorado Supreme Court.

The central issue is the right of home - rule cities to levy a sales tax. Denver has levied a two per cent sales tax. Ten other Colorado Cities have levied a one per cent sales tax: Englewood, Littleton, Aurora, Boulder, Pueblo, Montrose, Alamosa, Grand Junction, Durango and Gunnison.

O'Rourke explained that the Colorado Municipal League is an independent non - profit organization. The 218 member cities and towns pay fees based on population. The League provides information, holds meetings and conferences for officials of member cities, prepares bills to protect cities' interests, and works with the legislature. Direct service is provided to cities that request it, but the executive board does not enter into local controversy unless requested to do so by the city involved.

Boulder's sales tax, adopted in August, O'Rourke said, will reduce the 1964 mill levy, to be collected in 1965, by 5 mills. The combined sales tax in the ten cities other than Denver is equal to what 8 mills in combined assessed valuation would produce, he said.

The main advantages of a sales tax, O'Rourke said, are: the reduction of property taxes; and the spreading of the tax burden to include tourists and farmers, who use city services although they do not live there. The main argument against a sales tax, he said, is a legal one, the preemption of the field by the state sales tax.

Colorado Springs Mayor Harry Hoth, also interviewed before the meeting, as to his reaction if a sales tax were proposed for Colorado Springs, said that he is against any further increases in the mill levy.

The local levy was 17.1 mills this year, and 15.97 mills last year according to City Auditor Lamont Burger. According to the city charter, the mill levy can only be raised 2.9 mills more. The city needs expanded fire protection and police services, Hoth said. He feels that a sales tax would shift part of the tax burden from property owners to "people who consume and work in our town."

The Municipal League meeting began at 4 p.m. Jim Harpster, Public relations.

He said that city officials should work with the service clubs and newspapers, attempt to get town and community groups involved in the "small things that go to make up a community's identity," work with the schools, answer complaints promptly, and, especially, communicate with the public in terms it can understand.

Tom McPherson, Planning Engineer for Portland Cement, Denver, presented slides to illustrate advantages of soil - cement street paving. The procedure is as follows: cement is spread on the prepared roadway, the soil and cement are mixed to a depth of from four to ten inches, water is added, ant the material is compacted, the final shaping being done with rubber tires. Several months later, an asphalt mat one or more inches thick is applied on top.

Portland Cement Association, said Harpster, is a national non - profit organization, supported by member cement companies, to promote the use of cement and cement products.

Jay Bell, Boulder, is director of the Colorado Municipal League. Officers of District VI of the Municipal League are Vice Mayor Harold Hawks of Colorado Springs, president; Mayor Frederick Wagner of Boone, vice president; and Mrs. Betty Brotherton, Canon City Clerk, secretary. The district includes the following counties: Pueblo, El Paso, Freemont, Teller, Chaffee, and Custer. Municipalities included are: Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Manitou Springs, Boone, Canon City, Palmer Lake, Monument, Woodland Park, Salida, Buena Vista, Silver Cliff, Westcliffe, East Canon, Florence, Victor, Cripple Creek and Fountain.

Springs Crime Index on Rise

The crime index in Colorado Springs continues to go up, according to the latest reports from Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

There have been 3,873 offenses reported to police this year compared with only 3,181 for the same period last year, McKissick said.

In the more serious crimes category, McKissick said there have been 1,900 offenses so far this year compared with 1,536 for the first nine months of 1963.

Robbery cases have nearly doubled this year and aggravated assaults have tripled. Burglary and larceny cases involving under $50 have also sharply increased. A decrease was noted in larceny over $50 in value.

In the lesser crimes category, there have been sharp increases this year in malicious mischief cases, assault and arson. There have been fewer bad checks, McKissick said.

The police department is at authorized strength, but is operating with far less personnel than McKissick feels is necessary.

Parking Meter Take Lags Behind 1963

City parking meter receipts this year are running just slightly behind last year, according to James O'Leary, deputy city treasurer.

September collections amounted to $13,224 to bring the 1964 total through September to $116,354.

This compares with $12,682 for September, 1963, and a nine-month total for last year of $116,881.

This year's collections were lagging behind last year at the mid - way point in 1964, but moved ahead in the last three months to almost equal last year's pace.

Reported to sit in the worst in $60,000, paid for itself in less than six months' dog days, when the "dog star" Sirius rises with the sun.

Pre - sentence investigation date was set for Oct. 23.

James Hubert Clarke 25, Ft. Carson, pleaded guilty to petty larceny and will be sentenced Oct. 23.

He was first charged with burglary and larceny. Clark was alleged to have broken into a room belonging to James J. Souders, 17 N. 13th St. and stealing an amplifier, vibrator and soldering iron worth a total of $275.

On Friday Deputy District Attorney Jack Roeser reduced the value of the items to $49 thus making it petty larceny. Roeser then dismissed the first charge.

"I just hope this doesn't start a trend," muttered one officer.

The hydrant had been left at a street construction project pending its installation.

'Future of the City' Topic At Municipal League Meet

Dr. William O. Winter of the political science department of the University of Colorado, was the featured speaker at the annual fall meeting of District VI of the Colorado Municipal League Thursday.

His topic was "The Future of the City." The city, said Dr. Winter before the meeting, should be viewed "not as a machine, but as a humanizing, civilizing device." He feels that, although we have too long stressed efficiency, the modern city is actually inefficient.

The detached dwelling, he said, should be replaced with contiguous multiple dwellings, with the center of the block as a common. He would recommend such planning for even such areas as Colorado Springs. He views the controlling factor not as available perimeter, but as distance from the city center.

Kinney O'Rourke, Boulder, attorney for the Colorado Municipal League, explained during the social hour that the Municipal League has been admitted as amicus curiae (friend of the court), a designation given to parties with an interest in the results of a case, but not directly involved in the present case, in the case of Berman v. City and County of Denver, now before the Colorado Supreme Court.

The central issue is the right of home - rule cities to levy a sales tax. Denver has levied a two per cent sales tax. Ten other Colorado Cities have levied a one per cent sales tax: Englewood, Littleton, Aurora, Boulder, Pueblo, Montrose, Alamosa, Grand Junction, Durango and Gunnison.

O'Rourke explained that the Colorado Municipal League is an independent non - profit organization. The 218 member cities and towns pay fees based on population. The League provides information, holds meetings and conferences for officials of member cities, prepares bills to protect cities' interests, and works with the legislature. Direct service is provided to cities that request it, but the executive board does not enter into local controversy unless requested to do so by the city involved.

Boulder's sales tax, adopted in August, O'Rourke said, will reduce the 1964 mill levy, to be collected in 1965, by 5 mills. The combined sales tax in the ten cities other than Denver is equal to what 8 mills in combined assessed valuation would produce, he said.

The main advantages of a sales tax, O'Rourke said, are: the reduction of property taxes; and the spreading of the tax burden to include tourists and farmers, who use city services although they do not live there. The main argument against a sales tax, he said, is a legal one, the preemption of the field by the state sales tax.

Colorado Springs Mayor Harry Hoth, also interviewed before the meeting, as to his reaction if a sales tax were proposed for Colorado Springs, said that he is against any further increases in the mill levy.

The local levy was 17.1 mills this year, and 15.97 mills last year according to City Auditor Lamont Burger. According to the city charter, the mill levy can only be raised 2.9 mills more. The city needs expanded fire protection and police services, Hoth said. He feels that a sales tax would shift part of the tax burden from property owners to "people who consume and work in our town."

The Municipal League meeting began at 4 p.m. Jim Harpster, Public relations.

He said that city officials should work with the service clubs and newspapers, attempt to get town and community groups involved in the "small things that go to make up a community's identity," work with the schools, answer complaints promptly, and, especially, communicate with the public in terms it can understand.

Tom McPherson, Planning Engineer for Portland Cement, Denver, presented slides to illustrate advantages of soil - cement street paving. The procedure is as follows: cement is spread on the prepared roadway, the soil and cement are mixed to a depth of from four to ten inches, water is added, ant the material is compacted, the final shaping being done with rubber tires. Several months later, an asphalt mat one or more inches thick is applied on top.

Portland Cement Association, said Harpster, is a national non - profit organization, supported by member cement companies, to promote the use of cement and cement products.

Jay Bell, Boulder, is director of the Colorado Municipal League. Officers of District VI of the Municipal League are Vice Mayor Harold Hawks of Colorado Springs, president; Mayor Frederick Wagner of Boone, vice president; and Mrs. Betty Brotherton, Canon City Clerk, secretary. The district includes the following counties: Pueblo, El Paso, Freemont, Teller, Chaffee, and Custer. Municipalities included are: Colorado Springs, Pueblo, Manitou Springs, Boone, Canon City, Palmer Lake, Monument, Woodland Park, Salida, Buena Vista, Silver Cliff, Westcliffe, East Canon, Florence, Victor, Cripple Creek and Fountain.

Springs Crime Index on Rise

The crime index in Colorado Springs continues to go up, according to the latest reports from Police Chief Cecil J. McKissick.

There have been 3,873 offenses reported to police this year compared with only 3,181 for the same period last year, McKissick said.

In the more serious crimes category, McKissick said there have been 1,909 offenses so far this year compared with 1,536 for the first nine months of 1963.

Robbery cases have nearly doubled this year and aggravated assaults have tripled. Burglary and larceny cases involving under $50 have also sharply increased. A decrease was noted in larceny over $50 in value.

In the lesser crimes category, there have been sharp increases this year in malicious mischief cases, assault and arson. There have been fewer bad checks, McKissick said.

The police department is at authorized strength, but is operating with far less personnel than McKissick feels is necessary.

Parking Meter Take Lags Behind 1963

City parking meter receipts this year are running just slightly behid last year, according to James O'Leary, deputy city treasurer.

September collections amounted to $13,224 to bring the 1964 total through September to $116,-354.

This compares with $12,682 for September, 1963, and a nine-month total for last year of $116,881.

This year's collections were lagging behind last year at the mid - way point in 1964, but moved ahead in the last three months to almost al last year's pace.

Knitting's Nothing New To Fred Mac

In the story of "Kisses for My President," new Warner Bros. comedy, scheduled to open as the next attraction at the Peak Theatre, Fred MacMurray plays the husband of the first woman President of the United States. He is, thus, the first male "First Lady" in American history.

To emphasize the humorous aspects of the role, MacMurray goes through a gag scene in which he takes up knitting to kill time while his wife, the President, keeps busy with affairs of state.

When co-star Polly Bergen, cast as the President, saw MacMurray pick up the knitting needles, she offered, "Want me to show you how?"

"No thanks," the actor replied. "I played in 'Above Suspicion' with Joan Crawford in 1988. Joan is always knitting between scenes. I got the hang of it by watching her."

Along with Miss Bergen and MacMurray, "Kisses for My President" stars Eli Wallach, Arlene Dahl and Edward Andrews. Curtis Benrnhardt produced and directed.

Want a Ruby? Head Down South and Dig Your Own

Vacationists with a yen for gems flock to North Carolina's Cowee Valley Ruby Fields to dig their own.

Occasionally, as in the case of the Georgia housewife who went home early this summer with a ruby appraised at over $4,000, their finds are spectacular. Almost always, their investments of time, energy and a modest fee return a prize of precious or semi - precious stones which any collector would value.

The Cowee Ruby Fields are in a picturesque valley near the resort of Franklin in the Nantahala Mountains. The Cowee ruby - bearing gravels are said to be very similar to those in the Mogok Valley of Burma, site of the world's premier ruby fields. During the late 1890's and the first decade of this century, there were extensive prospecting and mining operations in the Cowee by the United States Ruby Mining Company. The original source of the rubies was never found and, although it was established that the Valley yielded rubies, sapphires, rhododite garnets, rutile, kyanite and other gemstones, commercial mining operations were discontinued prior to 1910.

For a long time, the ruby fields were pretty much ignored by outsiders, although natives of the area continued to pick up some of the "pretty rocks" from time to time. Then, in the early 1950's, when rockhounds from all over the country were showing increased interest in the more than 300 different kinds of minerals and gemstones found in North Carolina, a few Cowee Valley landowners opened up their property to collectors for a small daily fee. The collectors began spreading the news about their finds, and ruby digging was transformed from a novelty to a major travel attraction.

Now, there are no less than 14 mines where collectors are invited to "dig all you want and keep what you find." A typical mine is simply a strip of land where surface soil has been pushed away to make gravel accessible.

The mine operators provide equipment, consisting of shovels, buckets, screening boxes, and clear water washing flumes. The prospector who doesn't want to dig can purchase gravel by the bucketful and devote his entire time to screening it in search of stones with a glint of color.

One resort operator with a hotel some 25 miles away from the ruby fields buys a gem-bearing gravel in the Cowee Valley and places it in a shady spot on the grounds so his junior guests can prospect right on the hotel premises. They get rather muddy, but their parents (and the hotel management) feel this is amply compensated for by the happy hours of entertainment the transported "gem mine" provides.

The town of Franklin and a number of smaller resorts in the area have a wide choice of motor lodges and inns. In addition, there are free or moderately priced family campgrounds at some of the ruby mines, and a number of public campgrounds in Nantahala National Forest are within a short drive of the Cowee.

Gem shops in the area appraise, cut, and set stones, distribute maps of the mining region, and sell or rent equipment to collectors.

Most visitors to the Cowee Valley, whether they are dedicated rockhounds or simply taking a fling at ruby - hunting out of curiosity, make prospecting a day's activity for the entire family. Such an outing requires only the most casual clothing and footgear — the older the better, because it's sure to be liberally marbled with mud by the time the day ends.

Some rockhounds return year after year to add to their gem collections. Others who intend to dig only for a day become so fascinated that they wind up spending their entire vacation in this area, which is ideal for hiking, swimming, golf, horseback riding and fishing as well as for hunting gemstones.

Biggest rush to the ruby fields is from June 1 through August, but spring and autumn are excellent times to enjoy the beauty of this region and sample its gem fields, and many collectors visit the area in winter.

The Florida Air Pilots' Association sponsors a "ruby flyin" to Franklin each September for its members and their guests.

Light Comedy Now Showing At the Ute

Comedy, good music and a light touch of drama are the ingredients of "Looking For Love," now showing at the Ute Theatre.

Connie Francis is starred in this lively comedy written especially for her particular attributes. Jim Hutton, Susan Oliver and Joby Baker make up the excellent supporting cast, and TV's Johnny Carson and Danny Thomas appear, while Yvette Mimieux, George Hamilton and Paula Prentiss are seen as guest stars.

The story concerns a young singer Connie Francis as she attempts to break into show business. Discouraged by initial rejections, she looks for a job where she can meet eligible men, while seeking a backer for her invention, the Lady Valet. Finally successful, she meets Jim Hutton, high - powered advertising executive, hired to promote the gadget.

Through an error Connie thinks Jim is in love with her. When efforts to find a star for their promotional program fails, mainly through Jim's amourous bungling, Connie sings and becomes a star overnight, finally getting Jim's attention, and they plan to marry.

Meanwhile her devoted admirer, former grocer - boy Joby Baker consoles himself with Connie's former roommate, Susan who yearns for Jim. Jobby becomes a musician to be near Connie and earns his own sucess.

In a final re - evaluation of her feelings, Connie discovers that she is really in love with Joby and Susan walks happily away with a confused but willing Jim.

Molly Brown Still Tops At Sky Vue

In "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," Now showing at the Sky-Vue drive in theatre. Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's big color musical based on the Broadway stage success, Debbie Reynolds play - acts the role of a Queen on two significant occasions.

First, with a lard pail on her head and a broom as her scepter, she plays "Queen of the Woodpile" in her poverty-stricken home in Colorado.

She later does become "Queen Molly," so named by her friends of the international set, and again crowns herself —this time with a lamp shade at Maxim's restaurant in Paris.

Screen play writer Helen Deutsch points out that "Queen Molly's" epitaph reads, "The Queen was brought by water," referring to the way she arrived in England when she was crowned.

"Queen Molly," too, was brought by water, as a foundling washer ashore on the banks of the Colorado River!

Harve Presnell, who scored a sensational hit in the Broadway stage version of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," makes his motion picture debut opposite Debbie in the film production.

Big Secret

When a friend's telephone was busy for an unusually long time, Connie Hines, co - star of "Mister Ed" called the operator to see if the phone was out of order. "I'll be happy to check on it," said the operator. "What number are you calling?" "I'm sorry, I can't tell you that," said Miss Hines, both conscientiously and absent-mindedly. "She has an unlisted number and I promised I wouldn't give it to anyone."

LOVELY AND LIVELY — Pamela Tiffin poses on one of the custom cars used in racing sequences in "The Lively Set" in which she stars. The color film, which also stars James Darren, Doug McClure, Joanie Sommers and Marilyn Maxwell starts Thursday at the Ute Theatre.

Props Worth $500,000 Used In Ute Film

It appears that one should never underestimate the importance of props in the making of movies. They play a vital role and sometimes do more than share honors with the stars in a film. This is in evidence in Universal's "The Lively Set," opening Thursday at the Ute Theatre.

A half - million dollars worth of props were used in the filming of "The Lively Set," and without them there would have been no picture.

Three of the 25 major automobiles appearing in the romantic drama — filmed in color — with a racing car background are: A $50,000 dragster fashioned out of a surplus J-47 jet engine; a $150,000 gas turbine made available by the Chrysler Corporation; and a $250,000 land speed record car, Challenger I, owned by internationally famous race driver Mickey Thompson, who also drives and plays himself in the exciting motion picture.

The film's producer, William Alland, had this to say: "Props in movies are often called inanimate actors but these sure aren't. Some of them go 400 miles an hour!"

Sharing honors with the unusual cars in "The Lively Set" are James Darren, Pamela Tiffin, Doug McClure, Joanie Sommers, Marilyn Maxwell and Peter Mann. Except for Miss Maxwell, all are relative newcomers to the screen.

James Darren and Pamela Tiffin starred previously in "For Those Who Think Young"; Doug McClure is still starring as a regular in Revue's TV series, "The Virginian"; singer Joanie Sommers is making her first picture since the birth of her baby daughter; and Peter Mann recently completed his second Hollywood movie, George Stevens' "The Greatest Story Ever Told," in which he portrays the Apostle Nathaniel.

"One thing is certain," commented director Jack Arnold, "I've got the fastest - moving set of young stars in Hollywood!"

Light Comedy Now Showing At the Ute

Comedy, good music and a light touch of drama are the ingredients of "Looking For Love," now showing at the Ute Theatre.

Connie Francis is starred in this lively comedy written especially for her particular attributes. Jim Hutton, Susan Oliver and Joby Baker make up the excellent supporting cast, and TV's Johnny Carson and Danny Thomas appear, while Yvette Mimieux, George Hamilton and Paula Prentiss are seen as guest stars.

The story concerns a young singer Connie Francis as she attempts to break into show business. Discouraged by initial rejections, she looks for a job where she can meet eligible men, while seeking a backer for her invention, the Lady Valet. Finally successful, she meets Jim Hutton, high - powered advertising executive, hired to promote the gadget.

Through an error Connie thinks Jim is in love with her. When efforts to find a star for their promotional program fails, mainly through Jim's amourous bungling, Connie sings and becomes a star overnight, finally getting Jim's attention, and they plan to marry.

Meanwhile her devoted admirer, former grocer - boy Joby Baker consoles himself with Connie's former roommate, Susan who yearns for Jim. Jobby becomes a musician to be near Connie and earns his own sucess.

In a final re - evaluation of her feelings, Connie discovers that she is really in love with Joby and Susan walks happily away with a confused but willing Jim.

Molly Brown Still Tops At Sky Vue

In "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," Now showing at the Sky-Vue drive in theatre. Metro-Goldwyn - Mayer's big color musical based on the Broadway stage success, Debbie Reynolds play - acts the role of a Queen on two significant occasions.

First, with a lard pail on her head and a broom as her scepter, she plays "Queen of the Woodpile" in her poverty-stricken home in Colorado.

She later does become "Queen Molly," so named by her friends of the international set, and again crowns herself —this time with a lamp shade at Maxim's restaurant in Paris.

Screen play writer Helen Deutsch points out that "Queen Molly's" epitaph reads, "The Queen was brought by water," referring to the way she arrived in England when she was crowned.

"Queen Molly," too, was brought by water, as a foundling washer ashore on the banks of the Colorado River!

Harve Presnell, who scored a sensational hit in the Broadway stage version of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," makes his motion picture debut opposite Debbie in the film production.

Big Secret

When a friend's telephone was busy for an unusually long time, Connie Hines, co - star of "Mister Ed" called the operator to see if the phone was out of order. "I'll be happy to check on it," said the operator. "What number are you calling?" "I'm sorry, I can't tell you that," said Miss Hines, both conscientiously and absent-mindedly. "She has an unlisted number and I promised I wouldn't give it to anyone."

'Pale Horse' Is Top Film At the Peak

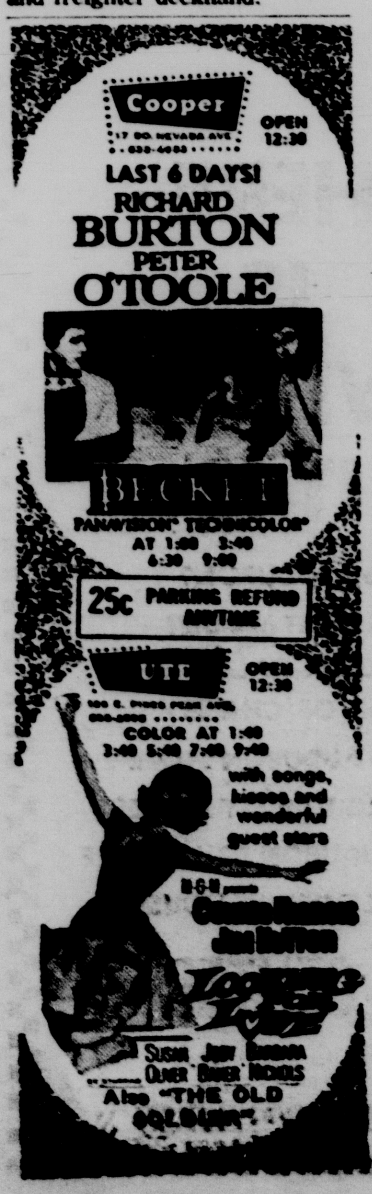
Producer-director Fred Zinnemann combines some of the most exciting entertainment elements ever brought to the screen in "Behold a Pale Horse," now showing at the Peak Theatre to make one of the most exciting entertainments ever screened.

A story of suspenseful pursuit, "Behold a Pale Horse" stars Gregory Peck, Anthony Quinn and Omar Sharif in characterizations which go well beyond the demands of dramatic action. Peck plays a guerilla leader, a legendary hero who fears he has lost his courage. Quinn is seen as his year-long enemy, the police chief who is arrogantly certain he has set a trap that will bring the pursuit to a happy end. And Sharif appears as a young priest, opposed to all that Peck stands for, who warns him of Quinn's plans.

"Behold a Pale Horse" is set in the rugged Pyrenees and in the small towns that nestle at their feet. There are scenes too, in Lourdes.

Based on a noval by Emeric Pressburger, "Behold a Pale Horse" was produced and directed by Zinnemann from a screenplay by JP Miller.

Before he became a newsman, CBS News Correspondent Charles Collingwood worked as a cowpuncher, timber cruiser and freighter deckhand.



Dusk to Dawn At Aircadia

Two extra features have been added to the regular program at the Aircadia Drive-in Theatre for tonight's showing only.

Heading the program, Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin are starred in "Robin and the Seven Hoods" filmed in color. For the action fans, Troy Donahue and Susan Pleshette star in "A Distant Trumpet" a story in color of the last Indian war. Next, Connie Francis sings in "Follow the Boys" in color. The fourth and final feature of the late show, "The Young Racers" stars Mark Damon and William Campbell.

'Becket' is Earthy Drama At Cooper

Eloquently and earthily, Richard Burton and Peter O'Toole play out the imposing 12th century English figures of the Jean Anouilh drama, "Becket," in color and showing through Thursday at the Cooper Theatre.

O'Toole is the lusty but lonely king, Henry II, and Burton the Thomas Becket whose friendship the king treasures more than anything else but who defies the king after being named Archibishop of Canterbury. Henry to God in first loyalties, the young king cries out for his murder, while weeping as if it were his own.

Glenville, who had also directed the stage "Becket" with Laurence Oliver and Anthony Quinn, has turned the film version into a show of sweeping beauty and power and, in some ways, has outdone himself. Burton is quietly commanding, O'Toole comes up with the most brilliant work ever done in any "Becked," and —among others — John Gielgud as a wise, effete French king is magnificent.

Starlite Sets Jungle Film Wednesday

Dave DaLie, featured in the new technicolor picture, "The Mighty Jungle," opening Wednesday at the Starlite Theatre defied death twice while wrestling two dangerous playmates—a giant anaconda and a crocodile.

A veteran of numerous encounters with alligators as Wildlife Director of the Okefenokee Swamp Park, Dave agreed to tackle a crocodile. This wrestling scene almost turned into near tragedy. The raging crocodile caught his left leg in its iron jaws and began rolling to pull Dave under water. Relying on his gator wrestling experience and his natural strength to check the croc's motion. Dave played the scene to the finish. It took five men to pry the maneater's jaws open and extricate Dave's ankle.

Undaunted, Dave agreed to take on a huge anaconda. Again, only Dave's jungle know-how, gained from years of exploration saved him from a horrible fate. No stunt man ever faced more natural danger than this intrepid young man.

But for Dave it was all in a day's work. He has performed stunts of similar nature in the featurettes "Land of the Trembling Earth," "Black Fury," and "The Living Swamp" as well as acting as Technical Director for all animal sequences in "Lure of the Wilderness."

"The Mighty Jungle," filmed on location in the Congo and Amazonia, also stars Marshall Thompson and features Anthony Gutierrez and Rosenda Monteros.

Showing for the last four days, Tempest Storm is starred in "Shock-O-Rama" plus "Oriental Follies."

Bergman's The Silence Next at FAC

"The Silence," Swedish director Ingmar Berman's most candid exploration of the human condition, will be shown at the Fine Arts Center Tuesday at 2:30, 7:15 and 9 p.m.

The third of a vaguely related trilogy that started with "Through a Glass Darkly," and continued with "Winter Light," this latest Bergman bout with life's meaning is considered his boldest and most shocking.

The plot, purposely slight and obscure, deals with two sisters (artfully played by Ingrid Thulin and Gunnel Lindblom) who are returning to Sweden from a holiday abroad. The elder sister, an unmarried intellectual is desperately ill with tuberculosis and is mentally obsessed with her hatred of men and her love for her sister.

The younger sister has her small son with her and is openly rebelling against the abnormal bond that has existed since childhood with her older sister. The child, left to explore the dismal hotel corridors, is a study of his own in loneliness and hopelessness as his mother and aunt struggle with the adult demons which possess them.

Despite the undeniably depressing subject, Bergman has again emerged as a genius with camera. He has demanded superb performances from his actors and has put before his viewers a slice of human life in all its suffering, take it or leave it.

The film is decisively adult fare, demanding maturity and sophistication from the viewer.

The book has received wide support and already 2,500,000 copies have been sold and while it is fiction, the drama is said to parellel closely to the life of Lana Turner and her teenage daughter, Cheyrl.

Sean's Role Is Different In Chief Pic

Most film fans know Sean Connery as the urbane, suave, blase' "007" or James Bond, private eye of the famous Ian Fleming movies, and love him for it.

But there's another Sean Connery and you can see him at the Chief Theatre now in "Woman of Straw."

Co-starred with Gina Lollobrigida and Ralph Richardson, Sean plays a highly dramatic role in this suspense drama from a Catherine Arley novel, in which the tongue-in-cheek Bond is replaced by an intensely serious romantic lead. The picture is in Eastman-color and is being released by United Artists.

Not that "Woman of Straw" is without its elements of suspense and mystery, Bond specialties. The new film is described as a tense and gripping drama of a diabolical plot in which a beautiful woman played by Miss Lollobrigida is made to appear as the prime and obvious suspect in a murder. There is, however, a flaw in this perfect crime, and its discovery — practically at the end of the picture when the suspense is at its highest — gives the beholder considerable challenge before its breath-taking surprise ending.

Connery, of course, loves the James Bond character as well as anybody. However, he says, he doesn't want to be "typed" as the smug private eye to the detriment of his dramatic career. That's why he has a clause in his contract with the James Bond producers which permits him to accept other roles and his part in "Woman of Straw" is one of these.

Connery broke into show business when a dancer in a British stock company playing "South Pacific" injured his foot in London at a time when Connery happened to be visiting friends there. He was offered the role, learned to dance in 48 hours, and got the job. From this he went into lesser British movies where he was "discovered" by the producers of the Ian Fleming stories who had just bought the film rights to them.

"Woman of Straw" was produced by Michael Relph and directed by Basil Dearden.

Crabgrass is indifferent to poor soil and leaps to life in warm weather.

Comedy Hit Set at Chief

Three great comedy smashes in a row. !

That's the record to date of Peter Sellers, Britain's contribution to the world of fun, who makes his American debut in Pan Art's high comedy of teenage infatuation and lecherous long hair love, "The World of Henry Orient," in Panavision and Color by DeLuxe, opening Wednesday at the Chief Theatre, under United Artists release.

The role comes immediately after his appearance in the highly successful "The Pink Panther" and "Dr. Strangelove" opus, in both of which he plays comedy parts leaning heavily upon characterization at which he is an acknowledged pastmaster.

Sellers is co-starred in "The World of Henry Orient," which was produced by Jerome Hellman and directed by George Roy Hill, with Paula Prentiss, Angela Lansbury, Tom Bosley, Phyllis Thaxter, Bibi Osterwald and Peter Duchin. Also starring with him are the two lovely teen-agers, Merrie Spaeth and Tippy Walker, high school girls who were found for the roles after a nation-wide search for just the right types conducted by Hellman and Hill.

Comedy Hit Set Sunday At 8th St.

Filmland's master comedy writer, Stanley Shapiro, wants to go on record, before everyone else leaps aboard the bandwagon, in proclaiming Marlon Brando the screen's foremost comedy artist.

Brando is currently undertaking his first straight comedy assignment, with David Niven and Shirley Jones, in Universal's "Bedtime story," which Shapiro wrote and also produced under executive producer Ehsert Arthur. The color film starts Sunday at The 8th St., Driveln Theater.

"Good as Brando is in straight drama, and he's only about the best there is," appraised Shapiro after viewing initial rushes, "he's at least twice as good, and probably a lot more, at comedy.

"He has a natural genius for extracting all the humor that can be found in any given situation, plus which he endows all the levity with a magic entirely his own."

Shapiro's words carry more than average weight. Some of the greatest comedy hits of recent vintage have come from his imaginative typewriter including "That Touch of Mink," "Lover Come Back," "Come September," "Operation Petticoat" and "Pillow Talk." For the latter he won an Academy Award.

Glenn Ford and Paula Prentiss are starred in the second hit, "Advance to The Rear."

Chalk Garden Set Sunday At Aircadia

The favorite subject of most actors is invariably themselves, not necessarily because of a bloated ego but simply because actors are hardly ever asked to discourse on anything else.

John Mills is an exception. For the second time in his career, he is starring with his daughter Hayley in a film, the Ross Hunter Technicolor production of "The Chalk Garden," starting Sunday at the Aircadia Theatre, and like any proud parent, his favorite subject in his talented daughter. The first time the two worked together was five years ago when Hayley was a wide-eyed 12-year-old making her film debut.

Since then Hayley has appeared in five films and has collected enough awards, including a special Oscar, to furnish a trophy room, enough fans to staff several armies, enough money to live comfortably without working the rest of her life and enough praise to turn her pretty golden head back to front.

During the same five years, John Mills was equally as busy. He starred in "Swiss Family Robinson," the award-winning "Tunes of Glory," "Tiara Tahiti," as well as appearing in the Broadway hit run of "Rose."

The second feature, "The Thrill of It All" stars Doris Day and James Garner.

Tomatoes seem indifferent to the length of days and nights.

Lewis Films 'Orderly' Set

Jerry's everywhere with his camera on "The Disorderly Orderly" set at Paramount, photographing his co-stars, scenes he isn't working in, with his camera going snap-snap-snap most of the day. Jerry hands out the rapidly finished prints as gifts to his subjects.

"So far, Jerry has used up more footage in his camera than we've used shooting "The Disorderly Orderly," kiddingly commented director Frank Tashlin.

Turkey will sell ore.

Wanted: Gorgeous 6-Ft. Knitter

Nancy Kovack has been signed by producer Martin Poll to play "Big Shirley," a glamorous show girl, in Paramount's "Sylvia," a Carroll Baker - George Maharis romantic drama directed by Gordon Douglas.

Her signing culminates a search which began two months ago and for which no less than 150 girls were considered. Unusual requirements called for a girl at least six feet tall, voluptuous and able to knit. The girl had to do the latter in one of her key sequences.

"Not many girls know how to knit," sighs Poll. "Not very many tall girls, anyway."

Nancy wears two costumes in the film, both briefer than modern bikinis. Formerly under contract to Columbia for four years, she recently left the studio to go out on her own. "Sylvia" is her first film as a free agent.

'Chanson' Concert Set At CU Oct. 10

— A "hootenanny with class" will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, at the University of Colorado's Macky Auditorium by two of France's top exponents of the "chanson."

Troubadors Marc and Andre of Paris, said to be the Continent's foremost interpreters of the chanson, will give a performance sponsored by the CU Department of French and the French Club. Tickets for the performance are $1.50 for students and armed forces personnel and $3 for the general public. Mail orders are now being taken by the French department, 108 Old Main, on the CU campus. Proceeds will go into the club's scholarship fund.

"Chanson" is a French word meaning song and is interpreted by Marc and Andre to mean one that depicts " a little corner of life." It is a vignette of "all aspects of life — joy and sadness, pleasant illusions, carefeeeness, humor, wit and literature."

The singers teamed up more than 15 years ago after careers as soloists. In 1960 they and two other entertainers became partners in the cabaret business purchasing "l'Ecluse" in Paris' Latin Quarter. At "l'Ecluse the singers helped launch careers of several well - known artists, including Marcel Marceau and Juliette Greco.

Marc and Andre are on their second tour of the United States, this time concentrating primarily on college campuses.

The tour is under the patronage of the French Embassy.

Choral Group Sets Concert For Sunday

The Army Air Defense Command Choral Group will be a featured attraction during the 75th anniversary celebration of the community of Green Mountain Falls on Sunday.

The ARADCOM soldier-singers will present a concert in the evening at the Green Mountain Falls Community Center, rendering a variety of military, classical, folk, and novelty numbers.

Also on the group's schedule for the student nurses and faculty of Penrose Hospital on the evening of Oct. 16, and for service men at the Cheyenne Shadows Service Club at Ft. Carson on the evening of Oct. 18. The ARADCOM Group returned last week end from a tour of the East Coast, during which they gave two concerts—on Sept. 5 and 7 — at the New York World's Fair. The group had previously concertined six times at the Fair in May.

Producers Buy Their Own Theater

NEW YORK (AP) — The producing team of Cy Feuer and Ernest H. Martin now owns the Lunt - Fontanne Theater, a 1,678 seat Broadway showcase.

The pair in 1960 acquired a 96 - year leasehold on the property for $3 million, recently purchased the theater's site for another $1 million.

With Barrymore

RICHARD TUCKER

Richard Tucker Will Open Symphony Season Oct. 12

The opening concert of the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra will feature Richard Tucker as guest artist on Monday October 12. Walter Eisenberg will conduct at Palmer School Auditorium.

The Saturday Evening Post has described Tucker as "the Met's second Caruso," and certainly his magnificent voice has thrilled music lovers in all of the great opera houses of the world.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about Tucker's status as the number one "Italian" tenor today is that he was born in Brooklyn, has had all of his vocal training and operatic coaching in the United States and sang almost all of the more than 25 leading tenor roles in his repertoire for the first time on the Metropolitan Opera stage.

When he made his Italian debut in the great Roman amphitheatre in Verona, the management had to schedule five performances of "La Gioconda" within two weeks and the Veronese lit candles in his honor in all of the local churches. When he sang in Caruso's home town, Naples, the New York Herald Tribune's report declared that "though an American, in Naples Richard Tucker is ranked only by San Gennaro" (the city's patron saint).

In September, 1962 Tucker was chosen as one of the artists to open Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts singing with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic.

During the Metropolitan Opera season just past, Tucker made his 289th appearance in that historic New York opera house and his 498th with the company, including road tours. The role in which he has been heard most frequently is that of Don Jose in Bizet's "Carmen."

The music to be played by the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra this season can be a more enriching experience than ever before for those holding tickets. Beginning Thursday, October 8, a series of five Study Groups will be held to deepen the listener's appreciation for what he hears.

Always held the Thursday preceding the concert, Walter Eisenberg, Conductor of the Symphony, gives his audience a complete musical background. Using a tape recorder Eisenberg shows how a composer varies a theme and uses it in a methodical way.

Now in its 5th year, this project of the Symphony Guild has between 75 and 80 women in regular attendance. Each Study Group is held at the Chapel of Our Savior, 8 Fourth St., Broadmoor at 9:30 a.m. Coffee will be served at 9:30, lecture at 10, and out at 11:30. Membership for the series: $1.

'Chanson' Concert Set At CU Oct. 10

— A "hootenanny with class" will be presented at 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 10, at the University of Colorado's Macky Auditorium by two of France's top exponents of the "chanson."

Troubadors Marc and Andre of Paris, said to be the Continent's foremost interpreters of the chanson, will give a performance sponsored by the CU Department of French and the French Club. Tickets for the performance are $1.50 for students and armed forces personnel and $3 for the general public. Mail orders are now being taken by the French department, 108 Old Main, on the CU campus. Proceeds will go into the club's scholarship fund.

"Chanson" is a French word meaning song and is interpreted by Marc and Andre to mean one that depicts " a little corner of life." It is a vignette of "all aspects of life — joy and sadness, pleasant illusions, carefeeeness, humor, wit and literature."

The singers teamed up more than 15 years ago after careers as soloists. In 1950 they and two other entertainers became partners in the cabaret business purchasing "l'Ecluse" in Paris' Latin Quarter. At "l'Ecluse the singers helped launch careers of several well - known artists, including Marcel Marceau and Juliette Greco.

Marc and Andre are on their second tour of the United States, this time concentrating primarily on college campuses.

The tour is under the patronage of the French Embassy.

Richard Tucker Will Open Symphony Season Oct. 12

The opening concert of the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra will feature Richard Tucker as guest artist on Monday October 12. Walter Eisenberg will conduct at Palmer School Auditorium.

The Saturday Evening Post has described Tucker as "the Met's second Caruso," and certainly his magnificent voice has thrilled music lovers in all of the great opera houses of the world.

Perhaps the most remarkable thing about Tucker's status as the number one "Italian" tenor today is that he was born in Brooklyn, has had all of his vocal training and operatic coaching in the United States and sang almost all of the more than 25 leading tenor roles in his repertoire for the first time on the Metropolitan Opera stage.

When he made his Italian debut in the great Roman amphitheatre in Verona, the management had to schedule five performances of "La Gioconda" within two weeks and the Veronese lit candles in his honor in all of the local churches. When he sang in Caruso's home town, Naples, the New York Herald Tribune's report declared that "though an American, in Naples Richard Tucker is ranked only by San Gennaro" (the city's patron saint).

In September, 1962 Tucker was chosen as one of the artists to open Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts singing with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic.

During the Metropolitan Opera season just past, Tucker made his 250th appearance in that historic New York opera house and his 400th with the company, including road tours. The role in which he has been heard most frequently is that of Don Jose in Bizet's "Carmen."

The music to be played by the Colorado Springs Symphony Orchestra this season can be a more enriching experience than ever before for those holding tickets. Beginning Thursday, October 8, a series of five Study Groups will be held to deepen the listener's appreciation for what he hears.

Always held the Thursday preceding the concert, Walter Eisenberg, Conductor of the Symphony, gives his audience a complete musical background. Using a tape recorder Eisenberg shows how a composer varies a theme and uses it in a methodical way.

Now in its 5th year, this project of the Symphony Guild has between 75 and 80 women in regular attendance. Each Study Group is held at the Chapel of Our Savior, 8 Fourth St., Broadmoor at 9:30 a.m. Coffee will be served at 9:30, lecture at 10, and out at 11:30. Membership for the series: $1.

'Daniel Boone'

Meet Mrs. Daniel Boone in the person of Patricia Blair. She's a beautiful reason for tuning to the NBC-TV network every Thursday night for 20th Century - Fox Television's "Daniel Boone" series, in which she co-stars with Fess Parker who portrays the famed frontiersman.

The red-haired actress and part - time historian on the Boone family is delighted that Rebecca Boone is being portrayed as a woman of temperament. "Some biographers have described Rebecca as submissive and quiet. That wasn't true. She was a strong woman of real independence with sparkling eyes and the firery temper of her Irish ancestry.

"And, thank goodness, that is the way executive producer Aaron Rosenberg and producer Vincent Fennelly want her played," declared Mish Blair between scenes of the series, an Arcola-Fesspar production in association with 20th-Fox Television.

"I'm also of Irish descent and have my own fiery temper. I've been told my blue eyes turn green when I'm angered. I'm sure my eyes would have turned emerald green if I had been told to portray Rebecca as a complaisant woman, who meekly deferred to her Daniel."

Miss Blair won't employ an Irish accent for her Mrs. Boone portrayal though she could do so with ease. As Chuck Connors' girl friend in "The Rifleman" she acquired an Irish brogue. In fact, it became such a part of her that for a while after that series was over, she'd revert to the Irish accent whenever she lost her temper.

New School of the Arts To Open

Dr. Vittorio Giannini, president of the North Carolina School of the Arts, is now assembling a faculty for this new school which will open in Winston - Salem, N.C., in September, 1965. Applications from prospective students have been coming in since Dr. Giannini arrived here in June.

A group of approximately 400 talented students in music, drama and the dance will be selected from the applications.

Admission to the school will be by auditions which will be entrance examinations given before a jury of faculty members who will have the responsibility of selecting their students from the applicants.

Auditions will be held in April and June at Winston - Salem; however, in order to save applicants the expense of traveling unreasonably long distances, Dr. Giannini is considering other central locations according to applications received.

Students who wish to apply should write for application blanks to:

The North Carolina school of the Arts, James G. Hanes Community Center, or Box 4657, Winston-Salem, N.C.

Dr. Giannini, a composer and musician of international reputation, was chosen president of the school by unanimous approval of a board of trustees appointed by Governor Terry Sanford. Before becoming president, he was on the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music and the Manhattan School of Music at New York.

Governor Sanford, Dr. Giannini and the Board of Trustees will meet with the school's Advisory Board on November 14 at New York to discuss and approve faculty appointments.

The Advisory Board is composed of Sidney Blackmer, chairman; Julius Rudel, vice chairman; James Christian Pfohl, secretary; Richard Adler, Agnes de Mille, Jose Ferrer, Paul Green, Jose Limon, Peter Mennin, Eugenia Oureussow, and Jan Pearce.

When the school opens here in September, it will become the South's only center for training professional talent in music, drama and dance, and it will be the first state-owned and state supported school for the performing arts in the country.

A bill was passed in June, 1963, by the North Carolina legislature, to support a school for professional training in the performing arts, plus a school of academic studies, all under one administration.

Talented students of all ages, elementary, high school and college levels, are eligible to apply, and they may come from any part of the United States.

In addition to professional training, high school level students will receive a state accredited high school diploma upon graduation. College level and graduate level students will receive accredited bachelor and master degrees.

Tuition will be free for high school students who live in North Carolina. Tuition for out-of-state high school students will be $350 for music, $200 for drama and $200 for dance.

More People Are Turning To Cats as Household Pets

What kind of people are cat owners? The growth of cat ownership in the United States — there are now almost a million more cats than the estimated 25 million dogs — has focused attention increasingly on the cat and its owner.

While some spinsters and old ladies are ardent cat lovers, actually they are in the minority, according to a new study by the Purina Cat Care Center, St. Louis.

The Center reveals that children are present in 70 per cent of all cat owning families in the country. In about 70 per cent of the homes the cat is cared for and fed by the homemaker. Abour 25 per cent of all cat owners have incomes between $5,000 and $7,000 annually.

As for a cat having nine lives, this is a myth. Whiile cats are basically rugged creatures, the cat authorities point out that in many ways cats are quite delicate and need careful and thoughtful care.

In particular one should prevent them from roaming. Apart from the nuisance that he creates by toppling garbage pails, the cat that is allowed to fend for itself is exposed to the dangers of poisoning from spoiled foods, to accidents, and to getting lost. Some cats can return from great distances; others are hopelessly lost if they stray around the corner.

There is an increasing tendency to feed the cat at home — 57 per cent of all cat owners now feed their pets a commercial ration at least once a week. Apparently cat owners are more finicky about their cat's meals than the cats themselves. Studies show that 55 per cent of all owners believe cats get tired of some foods and that diet must be changed freqently, and that about 70 per cent of cat owners believe cats are finicky about what they eat.

The first Dempsey - Tunney world heavyweight championship fight Sept. 22, 1927, grossed a gate of $2,658,000 in Chicago.

Dr. Vittorio Giannini, president of the North Carolina School of the Arts, is now assembling a faculty for this new school which will open in Winston - Salem, N.C., in September, 1965. Applications from prospective students have been coming in since Dr. Giannini arrived here in June.

A group of approximately 400 talented students in music, drama and the dance will be selected from the applications.

Admission to the school will be by auditions which will be entrance examinations given before a jury of faculty members who will have the responsibility of selecting their students from the applicants.

Auditions will be held in April and June at Winston - Salem; however, in order to save applicants the expense of traveling unreasonably long distances, Dr. Giannini is considering other central locations according to applications received.

Students who wish to apply should write for application blanks to:

The North Carolina school of the Arts, James G. Hanes Community Center, or Box 4657, Winston-Salem, N.C.

Dr. Giannini, a composer and musician of international reputation, was chosen president of the school by unanimous approval of a board of trustees appointed by Governor Terry Sanford. Before becoming president, he was on the faculty of the Juilliard School of Music and the Manhattan School of Music at New York.

Governor Sanford, Dr. Giannini and the Board of Trustees will meet with the school's Advisory Board on November 14 at New York to discuss and approve faculty appointments.

The Advisory Board is composed of Sidney Blackmer, chairman; Julius Rudel, vice chairman; James Christian Pfohl, secretary; Richard Adler, Agnes de Mille, Jose Ferrer, Paul Green, Jose Limon, Peter Mennin, Eugenie Ourousoow, and Jan Peerce.

When the school opens here in September, it will become the South's only center for training professional talent in music, drama and dance, and it will be the first state established and state supported school for the performing arts in the country.

A bill was passed in June, 1963, by the North Carolina legislature, to support a school for professional training in the performing arts, plus a school of academic studies, all under one administration.

Talented students of all ages, elementary, high school and college levels, are eligible to apply, and they may come from any part of the United States.

In addition to professional training, high school level students will receive a state accredited high school diploma upon graduation. College level and graduate level students will receive accredited bachelor and master degrees.

Tuition will be free for high school students who live in North Carolina. Tuition for out-of-state high school students will be $250 for music, $200 for drama and $200 for dance.

More People Are Turning To Cats as Household Pets

What kind of people are cat owners? The growth of cat ownership in the United States — there are now almost a million more cats than the estimated 25 million dogs — has focused attention increasingly on the cat and its owner.

While some spinsters and old ladies are ardent cat lovers, actually they are in the minority, according to a new study by the Purina Cat Care Center, St. Louis.

The Center reveals that children are present in 70 per cent of all cat owning families in the country. In about 79 per cent of the homes the cat is cared for and fed by the homemaker. Abour 25 per cent of all cat owners have incomes between $5,000 and $7,000 annually.

As for a cat having nine lives, this is a myth. Whiile cats are basically rugged creatures, the cat authorities point out that in many ways cats are quite delicate and need careful and thoughtful care.

In particular one should prevent them from roaming. Apart from the nuisance that he creates by toppling garbage pails, the cat that is allowed to fend for itself is exposed to the dangers of poisoning from spoiled foods, to accidents, and to getting lost. Some cats can return from great distances; others are hopelessly lost if they stray around the corner.

There is an increasing tendency to feed the cat at home — 57 per cent of all cat owners now feed their pets a commercial ration at least once a week. Apparently cat owners are more finicky about their cat's meals than the cats themselves. Studies show that 55 per cent of all owners believe cats get tired of some foods and that diet must be changed freqently, and that about 70 per cent of cat owners believe cats are finicky about what they eat.

American Camera Dealers Tend to Ignore Lens Fans

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Does the average camera fan feel he has a "friend" in his camera store dealer, someone he can turn to for advice an help in his picture - taking efforts?

The answer seems to be "No!" particularly in the larger photo shops in the big cities of the United States. The matter was a point of discussion recently with Wolf Wehran, a representative of the Camera Industries of West Germany, after he had returned from a 10,000-mile tour of this country.

"Salesmen seem to concentrate their efforts on selling cameras with main emphasis on the price," Wehran noted. "they have little time to spare for the customer on the matter of good pictures and how to take them. Afterwards, they have even less time to discus how to improve the customer's first efforts unless there is a chance to sell him aditional equipment or trade in one camera for a more expensive model.

"In big cities the dealers compete by price cutting and their goal seems to be 'Turnover!' Camera stores often ignore service to the photo fan on a personal basis to bring him back — they depend on a discount."

This generalization has many exceptions, of course, throughout the country. I recall the case of Herbert T. Marcus. an exceptionally gifted amateur photographer of Cincinnati, Ohio. He attributed his rapid rise and proficiency as a photographer to the advice, encouragement and technical help which he received from his local camera dealer, David Tondow. The first of many national exhibitions of Marcus' photos started in the windows of Tondow's camera store.

"I think national emphasis on service and helpful advice to photo beginners by camera store dealers," Wehran said, "would make for a healthier and more flourishing hobby of photography.

"One way we achieve this in Germany," he pointed out, "is to train our photographic salesmen. Six years ago, through the joint efforts of dealers and manufacturers, a two - year trade school was established. Applicants for jobs must attend. They learn darkroom technique, the mechanics of different cameras and equipment and how to take pictures as well as sales psychology, business administration and merchandising.

"As a result, photo salesmen have a profession when they finish, not just a salesman's job. They are able to talk intelligently and competently about picture taking not only with beginners but with more advanced camera fans. Camera store competition in Germany is base on the service they give to the customers, never on the price.

"Another thing we have in Germany," Wehran pointed out, "is a nonprofit association founded by the photographic industry and dealers to further the advancement of photography as a hobby.

"As a result, they have installed 10,000 photo labs in grammar and high schools for youngsters to get acquainted with photography. We think if they learn something about it while they are young, they will get better pictures an maintain their interest after they are through with school."

Several important scenes in Universal's "Fargo," starring Michael Parks and Celia Kaye, were filmed in Stockton, Calif., landmark, the B & M Cafe, built in 1862. Edwin Booth reportedly stayed at the then famed inn while touring with his production of Hamlet in 1862.

THERE'S STILL A TOLL — If you were around back in the days when a horse and buggy provided the easy way to the top of Pikes Peak, you went through the toll gate in the top photo. The simple mechanism was located about two miles above the present gate, bottom photo, and was located closer to the creek. The only problem in using the old carriage road to the top was that it took two to three days to reach the peak. The new toll gate may look smarter and be more efficient, but the toll still has to be paid.

Steve Allen Quits Nighttime Show; Channel 11 Will Carry Replacement

"The Steve Allen Show," now into its third season and seen here on Channel 11, will be discontinued following the Oct. 23 broadcast.

Allen and the Westinghouse Broadcasting Co. Group W have agreed to end the five-night a week comedy program to allow the entertainer to concentrate on his "I've Got A Secret" program for the CBS television network.

Rush Evans, manager of KKTV, said that his station would carry the new "Regis Philbin Show," a two - hour variety program being offered in place of the Allen show.

"We're going to try it," Evans said. "We feel that our market area is pretty well saturated with movies and something like this might be refresh thing like this might be refreshing."

Evans said that according to word he has received, the new show is a fast - moving variety program with little conversation. He said that a top - name guest star will act as co-host with the fast-rising 31 - year old Philbin who has been host of the two - hour variety-entertainment program for the past two years in San Diego Calif.

Allen said he has been forced to revise his original intention to appear on both the 90-minute nightly comedy program in Hollywood and on the weekly "I've Got A Secret" program in New York because such a schedule imposed a heaby burden upon him in that it required him to fly regularly to New York.

"The more than two years I've devoted to the present 'Steve Allen Show' were rewarding both personally and professionally," he said. "And the relationship with Group W was one of the most satisfactory I've had in broadcasting."

McGannon said that Allen's contribution to late night television had been "considerable" and that Allen's program had been a pioneer effort and helped pave the way for similar tape syndicated efforts.

"The Steve Allen Show" made its debut on June 22, 1962. The program is distributed by WBC Productions, Inc. on video tape-one of the most successful tape syndicated programs in the history of television. It was broadcast on as many as 47 stations from coast - to - coast including cities in the nation's top 20 markets. It is also seen in Canada and Australia.

Announcement of the new Philbin program was made by Donald H. McGannon, President of Group W, who said: "The often made criticism of television is its lack of new format, new talent and so forth. I am concerned about this situation. We considered building a show around an established star, but abandoned this concept to go in the direction of a new, bright, talented personality whom I believe the public constantly seekds. We did this with Mike Douglas and on many other occasions on the Group W stations. Philbin is going to be tomorrow's star."

Two years ago, Goup W discovered Mike Douglas and developed a local 90 - minute afternoon program around him in Cleveland. That show is now seen in over 30 cities.

Regis Philbin was recently seen as a week - long guest with Phyllis Diller on the Group W produced "The Steve Allen Show," during Allen's vacation. He has been described as "offbeat along with an engaging critic made the point that Philbin has "style, class and dignity."

The new program will place emphasis on variety and entertainment with discussion and talk introduced as "an extension of the entertainment," according to Richard Pack, Vice President - Programming, for Group W.

"We feel there is a place for a place for a late - night or even early - evening program basically oriented towards variety and entertainment. Yet, a program which presents opinions and good, disciplined talk as an ingredient — a show also with enough unpredictability to engage the audience from start to finish," Pack said.

Originating the program in Hollywood provides the production and advantage in terms of availability of talent since the other two late - night programs originate in New York. Hollywood's vast pool of talent and creativity will be called upon upon for the new program. "In view of the fact that new talent seems naturally to gravitate to Hollywood, we intend to comb those places where such talent is found and present the best of it on a continuing basis as well as to present rising and already established stars," Pack said.

Philbin has been seen on television in Hollywood and San Diego since he arrived in California in 1953 from his native New York, and has developed into a top personality in the Southern California area.

He is known to most of the major stars and personalities in the television and motion picture work — and many of them have appeared repeatedly on his program on station KOGO-TV in San Diego.

The Grass Is Greener

Who says art can't improve on nature?

A half-acre mountain slope scorched by California summer sun does not look very attractive in Technicolor, so Paramount's art department went to work giving it the Liz Arden type beauty treatment.

For a scene in Jerry Lewis' comedy, "The Disorderly Orderly," a scorched mountainside was sprayed with fourteen gallons of green coloring, and on the screen it glows like a stretch of the Emerald Isle. It was lush enough to make natural grass green with envy.

We considered building a show around an established star, but abandoned this concept to go in the direction of a new, bright, talented personality whom I believe the public constantly seekds. We did this with Mike Douglas and on many other occasions on the Group W stations. Philbin is going to be tomorrow's star."

Two years ago, Goup W discovered Mike Douglas and developed a local 90 - minute afternoon program around him in Cleveland. That show is now seen in over 30 cities.

Regis Philbin was recently seen as a week - long guest with Phyllis Diller on the Group W produced "The Steve Allen Show," during Allen's vacation. He has been described as "offbeat along with an engaging critic made the point that Philbin has "style, class and dignity."

The new program will place emphasis on variety and entertainment with discussion and talk introduced as "an extension of the entertainment," according to Richard Pack, Vice President - Programming, for Group W.

"We feel there is a place for a place for a late - night or even early - evening program basically oriented towards variety and entertainment. Yet, a program which presents opinions and good, disciplined talk as an ingredient — a show also with enough unpredictability to engage the audience from start to finish," Pack said.

Originating the program in Hollywood provides the production and advantage in terms of availability of talent since the other two late - night programs originate in New York. Hollywood's vast pool of talent and creativity will be called upon upon for the new program. "In view of the fact that new talent seems naturally to gravitate to Hollywood, we intend to comb those places where such talent is found and present the best of it on a continuing basis as well as to present rising and already established stars," Pack said.

Philbin has been seen on television in Hollywood and San Diego since he arrived in California in 1953 from his native New York, and has developed into a top personality in the Southern California area.

He is known to most of the major stars and personalities in the television and motion icture work — and many of them have appeared repeatedly on his program on station KOGO-TV in San Diego.

The Grass Is Greener

Who says art can't improve on nature?

A half-acre mountain slope scorched by California summer sun does not look very attractive in Technicolor, so Paramount's art department went to work giving it the Liz Arden type beauty treatment.

For a scene in Jerry Lewis' comedy, "The Disorderly Orderly," a scorched mountainside was sprayed with fourteen gallons of green coloring, and on the screen it glows like a stretch of the Emerald Isle. It was lush enough to make natural grass green with envy.

A sage once said that every word was once a poem, and each began as a picture.

In a way, this thought is reflected in the eloquent sign language many local residents use on their mailboxes or houses to denote their names and in some cases their hobbies.

Attempts to glorify the common mailbox sometimes reach heights of fantasy, as in the case of one family who chose Mary Chase's fey rabbit "Harvey" from her play of the same name.

Some hieroglyphs people choose to represent themselves may be obscure to the casual viewer unless you are personally acquainted with the person. For instance, you might puzzle why a family would place an ark on their lamplight, until you notice the dwelling is occupied by Phil and Irene Noah.

A meat cleaver on one lamplight serves as a clue that the owner pronounces his name, Kliewer, in the German manner.

The "Spirit of '76" marking the home of science fiction writer Robert Heinlein is a vivid reminder to Coloradoans that their state came into the Union a century after the United States gained its independence. To Heinlein, it signifies the number of his house on Mesa Road.

Joseph H. Atkinson, a retired Air Force general, includes the elevation as part of the legend above his mailbox.

A Sunday afternoon drive around Colorado Springs, searching for unusual house signs and mailboxes, is a game the entire family can play. One finds mailboxes attached to trees, fences, gates, telephone poles, iron rods, stiffened chains, pumps, cream separators, windwood, and an infinite variety of other stands.

Pity the poor postman who must often times find it difficult to even locate a mailbox.

Some residents enhance the plainess of the mailboxes with climbing vines, or encircle the bases with flowers. Perhaps this is psychological, as it may ward off evil. For what postman could deliver bad news to a mailbox sporting a bowl of petunias?

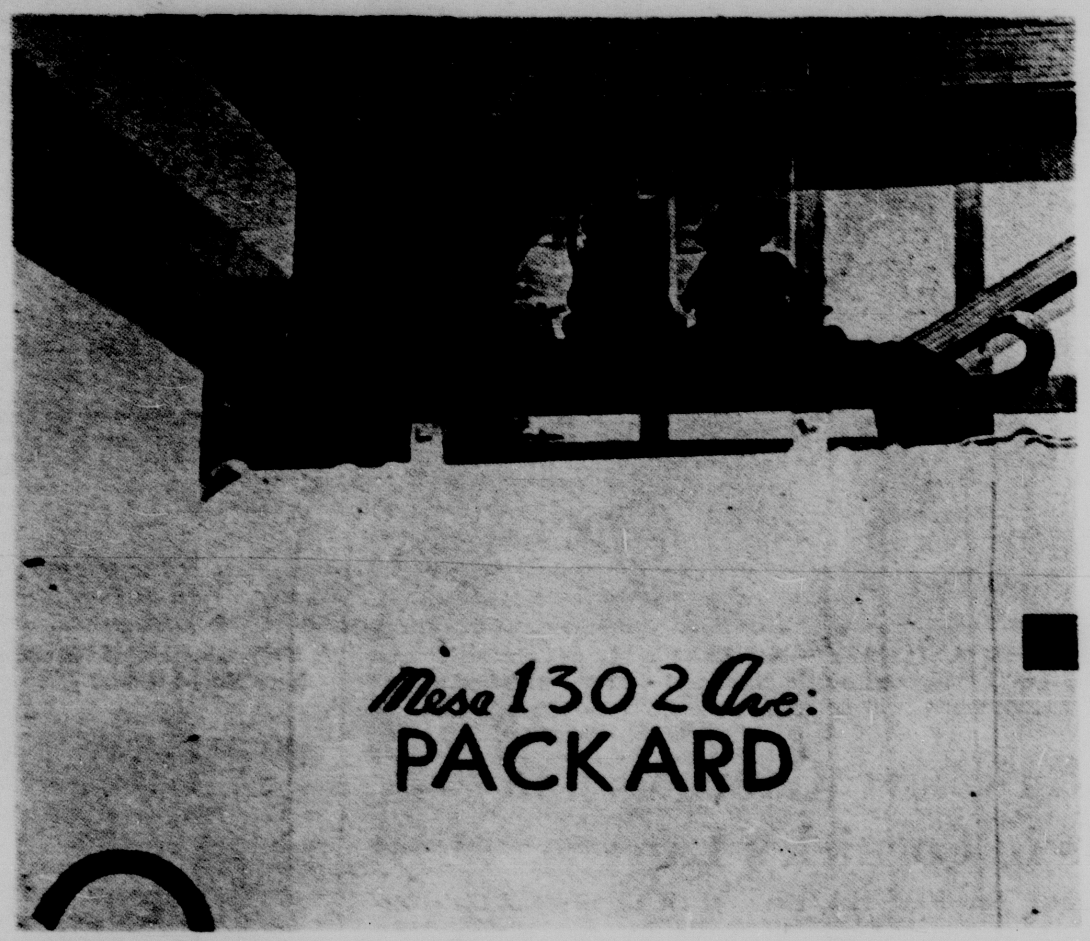
Plays on names are popular here too, in the case of Dr. C. E. Fisher, whose lamplight is topped with a figure of a kingfisher.

In the olden days, when few of the commonfolk could read, figures of ingenious design were often used to tell them the names of establishments.

This practice was, and still is, common in the British Isles, where taverns, inns and the like still bear such colorful figures of the White House, the Boar's Head, the Headless Woman, the Red Lion, and a multitude of others of innate artistry.

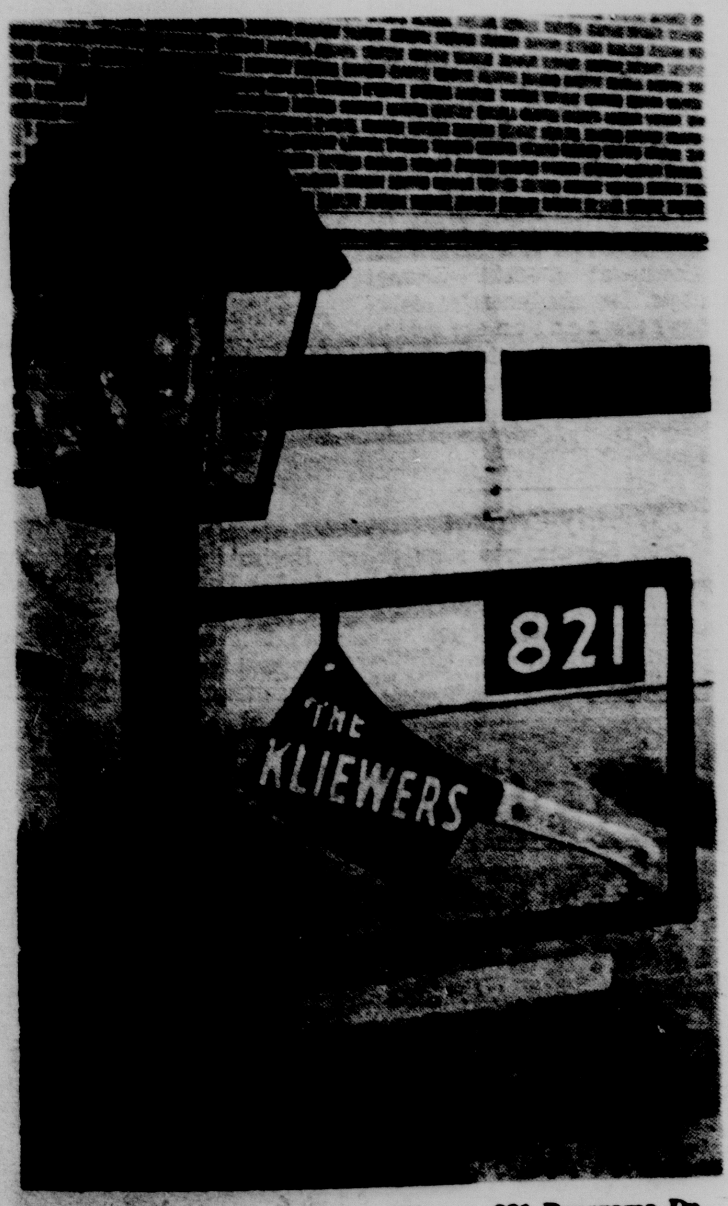
One of the most noteworthy examples of mailbox design here, and so obviously perfect too, is in the Black Forest, where Bob Kiser has supplied an addition to his box making the overall effect that of a covered wagon.

Take a ride about town Sunday; you may come up with many examples Gazette Telegraph photographer Stan Payne missed on his search for the unusual in mailbox and lamplight designs.



WESTERN HORSEMAN — W. G. Packard, prominent horseman, reveals his hobby in this enthusiastic way. Each year in April, Packard joins the "Desert Caballeros" in their ride around Arizona.

WHO BUILT THE ARK? — Phil and Irene Noah built this one, to show the location of their home in Chipita Park. Giraffes, two by two, peek their heads out of this ingenious design.



SHOW AND TELL — Harry Kliewer, 821 Panorama Dr., shows a cleaver inscribed with his name, to tell passersby that he pronounces his name in the German manner.

DOXIE DETAILED — Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jones raise Dachshunds at their Chelton Road home, and also show them at area dog events. The silhouette of this breed of dog tops their mailbox.

'Rainbow' Choreography Is in Cornick's Lap

Where, but in America, can you find a dam in every valley, a rainbow in ever pot and a politician in every hamlet? Where else can be found riches on credit, no matter how ridiculous the taste? Where else does gold sprout from the ground and magical powers abound? Actually all of this will happen in Rainbow Valley, Missitucky (the stage of the Fine Arts Center) when the Colorado Springs Chorale presents "Finian's Rainbow," Nov. 5, 6, and 7.

One of the finest Broadway musicals ever produced, "Finian's Rainbow" is a gay fast moving fantasy which captures the audience in a mist of leprachanology, lovely songs, dances.

"Finian's Rainbow" contains no less than five major dances and the monumental task of choreography for this production will be done by Colorado Norman Cornick, who will be assisted by Esther Geoffrey.

Norman is head of the dance department and assistant professor of dance at Colorado College, a position which he has held for the past 11 years. Born in Salt Lake City, Utah, he received his Bachelor of Music degree from the McCune School of Music and Art. He is a graduate of the University of Utah. While at the university, he became interested in dance and became a member of the Orchesis dance group. He also studied with Virginia Tanner who is nationally known as one of the finest teachers in children's creative dance and activity. His first ballet training was under the direction of William Christensen, head of the San Francisco Ballet Company and now head of the ballet department at the University of Utah. Cornick has also studied dance with such artists as Margaret Dietz, Louise Kleoper, Lester Horton, Eugene Loring, Hanya Holm, Manolo Agullo, Jose Limon, Merce Cunningham, and Charles Wiedman.

Professional experience includes two seasons with the University of Utah Music Festival appearing in such shows as "Showboat," "The Great Waltz," "The Promised Valley," "Carmen," and "Faust." He spent two years with the Lester Horton Dance company in Los Angeles and appeared with this company in New York City in 1953. He also danced with the Lester Horton group when they appeared as guest artists at Ted Shawns famous "Jacobs Pillow." He performed in various night clubs and theatres while in Los Angeles.

Under the direction of Hanya Holm and William Steinberg, he performed the role of the Devil in Stavinsky's "L-Historire du Soldat" during the 1954 Aspen Festival.

His choreographic experience is vast, including work at the University of Utah Orchesis, Lester Horton Dance Theatre, Colorado College Dance Theatre, Colorado Springs Opera Association and the Colorado Springs Choral Society.

Assisting Cornick with "Finian's Rainbow" will be Esther Geoffrey. She is a member of the faculty of Colorado College children's and layman ballet and modern dance department. Mrs. Geoffrey has studied both New York City with ballet and modern dance in known teachers including Nathalie Branitzka, Igor Schwetzoff, Alwyn Nikolais, June Dudley, Sophie Maslow, Mary Anthony, Even Gentry, Bill Bales, and many others. Her experience is vast including performances in many Broadway musicals and at Carnegie Concert Hall.

A member of Dance Teacher's Guild, where she held an office while teaching in Brooklyn, her teaching experience of ballet and modern dance has extended from Brooklyn, New Jersey, Mississippi, Portland, Maine, the Air Force Academy to Colorado Springs. She attended Brooklyn College and received several courses at New York University in teaching creative dance to children. A member of the college faculty for the past three years, Esther has assisted in many of the college dance productions.

"Finian's Rainbow" dances are difficult and are of ballet jazz style. They set the pace for the entire show under the capable direction of Norman Cornick and Esther Geoffrey.

Solo dancer for this production will be Miss Marietta Wilhelm who is a student of Norman Cornick and attends Cheyenne Mountain High School. She plays the part of Susan the Silent who does all of her talking, and very well we must say, with her feet.

Other dancers include Linda Borgeson, Diane Novosad, Melissa Davis, Trina DeLaney, Cindy Winn, Esther Geoffrey, Terrie Reeves, Jim Francis, Gary Masters, Tyrone Brent, Leslie Graiffman, and, of course, Norman Cornick.

Tickets for "Finian's Rainbow" are $2.50 and may be obtained by sending a check to P. O. Box 1651 or calling Mrs. Reimer at 636-2688. Season tickets for the chorales four shows this season are only $7.50 and season ticket holders will have first choice of nights for "Finian's Rainbow." Early reservations are advised.

ECSTACY — There are many ways to express ecstasy and in the dance this is one of them as evidenced by James Franics and Esther Geoffrey. The couple will be featured along with other dances in the Colorado Springs Chorale production of "Finian's Rainbow." (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Baldwin Play In Vienna Festival

VIENNA (AP) — "The Amen Corner" by James Baldwin is to be the U.S. entry in Vienna's music-drama festival next year.

Lloyd Richards will direct the drama which is to visit several European cities after Vienna engagement. The play has had one American production previously, in Los Angeles.

Hula Politics

Visitors to Hawaii this summer may chance upon a free show featuring hula dancers, Hawaiian musicians, and folk songs, only to discover it is a political rally. Hawaiian politicians corral votes with such rallies, the American Automobile Association reports.

Wendy-Cricket

Connie Stevens, who stars as Wendy on ABC-TV's new comedy series, "Wendy and Me," was known to millions for her role as Cricket Blake on ABC-TV's "Hawaiian Eye."

Type-Casting?

Before Janet Lake (who may be seen as Walter Brennan's secretary in ABC-TV's new series, "The Tycoon"), started acting, she worked briefly as a secretary at the Valley Forge Army Hospital. With this experience behind her she won't have to fake the typing and shorthand for her role in the series.

Not So Rosy

Reginald Rose, creator-writer of "The Defenders," once worked as a bookkeeper — until it was discovered he'd never before kept books.

Top Singers Cast in Leading Roles For 'Finian's Rain bow' Production

Some of the area's finest singers are collaborating in bringing to the Fine Arts Center stage the Colorado Springs Choral Society's production of "Finian's Rainbow." This delightful musical will be performed under the direction of Capt. Thomas Smith and David Porter on November 5, 6 and 7.

Taking the part of Sharon McLonergan, Finian's lovely daughter, and the leading lady, will be Miss Rita Mackey. Miss Mackey came to Colo. Springs last June. She was born in Chicago of a musical family and was raised in Dubuque, Iowa where she attended the Mary Crest College. Coming to Colorado Springs to attend the summer music session at Colorado College under a piano scholarship, she studied with Dr. Max Lanner. She also studied music education with Dr. Earl Juhas and music theory from Dr. Seay and is currently a student at the College.

While in Dubuque, Miss Mackey captured the leading roles in "The King and I", "South Pacific" and "The Merry Widow". These productions were by the Dubuque Civic Players. And now, in "Finian's Rainbow", Rita gets the opportunity for the role of Sharon which calls for a great deal of acting as well as almost twice the amount of singing done in any musical. Miss Mackey has an abundance of talent which should see her far in her chosen field as a singer in musicals.

Every musical show must have a hero. And "Finian's Rainbow" has one in Woody Mahoney, a guitar carryin' baritone, who comes back to Rainbow Valley to save his sister's land from falling into the clutching hands of the villians. It is only natural, musical books being what they are, that he falls in love with the heroine. One of the most demanding parts musically, Woody will be played by Richard Wederquist.

Dick is vocal teacher at Washington Irving Junior High

RITA MACKEY

School. He settled in Colorado Springs in 1962 coming here from Milford, Iowa where he taught school for two years. He attended Colorado State University, graduating with a Bachelor of Music degree. While at CSU he studied voice with Professor Edward Anderson. Dick was with the Air Force working with electronics for four years before he began his teaching career.

His vast experience includes male leads in "Brigadoon," "Kiss Me Kate" and "The Boyfriend." Since he has been in Colorado Springs he has performed with the Colo. Springs Chorale in many programs inuluding "Showboat" and also has performed with the Civic Players.

He and his wife, Donna, a German teacher at Cheyenne Mountain High School, have two lovely daughters.

No show is complete without supporting characters and "Finian's Rainbow" is no exception. Jack Connelly plays the part of "Finian" and Og, the Leprechaun is played by Rolf Zinger. Others in order of appearance include: Jarrett Robertson as Buzz Collins; Joe Manci, the Sheriff; Leslie Graifmann, First Sharecropper; Wayne Bell, Second Sharecropper; Marrietta Wilhelm, Susan Mahoney (dancer); Sammy Bryant as Henry; Ada McGurk, third Sharecropper; Mary Ann McRae, Fourth Sharecropper; Howard, the butler, Charles Marlin; and one of the most forceful characters, Senator Billboard Rawkins is played by Edward J. Rodgers, Jr. James Bowers is the first Geologist and Theodius Richardson, second geologist; Diane is Debbie Singer; Honey Lou, Cassandra Theus; Preacher John, Gene Ives; Mr. Robust, William Praether; The Three Passion Gospelers are William Jolley, Theodies Richardson and Tyrone Brown. The Deputies are played by Noe Diaz and David Zimmerly.

Tickets for "Finian's Rainbow" are $2.50. Season tickets for the four program series are only $7.50 and may be had by calling Mrs. Reimer at 636-2688 or by sending a check to P.O. Box 1051.

Auditions Set For Monday For 'Tosca'

Auditions for the Colorado Springs Opera Association's presentation of "Tosca" will be held Monday evening, Oct. 5, at 7 p.m. in the choir house of Grace Episcopal Church, Monument and Tejon Streets.

According to Henry Hester, president of the local opera group, invitations to audition for parts in the Puccini opera have been sent to each resident of Colorado who has sung solo roles in the past two years and to each resident who has auditioned for the opera group since June 1 of this year.

Invitations were also sent to each church choir for consideration by the members and to each vocal teacher for discussion with their pupils.

"Tosca" is to be presented at the Wasson High Auditorium on Feb. 5-6. "Faust" opens the opera season at the Wasson Auditorium on Oct. 23-24. Final offering of the season will be "Die Fledermaus" to be held on April 3-4.

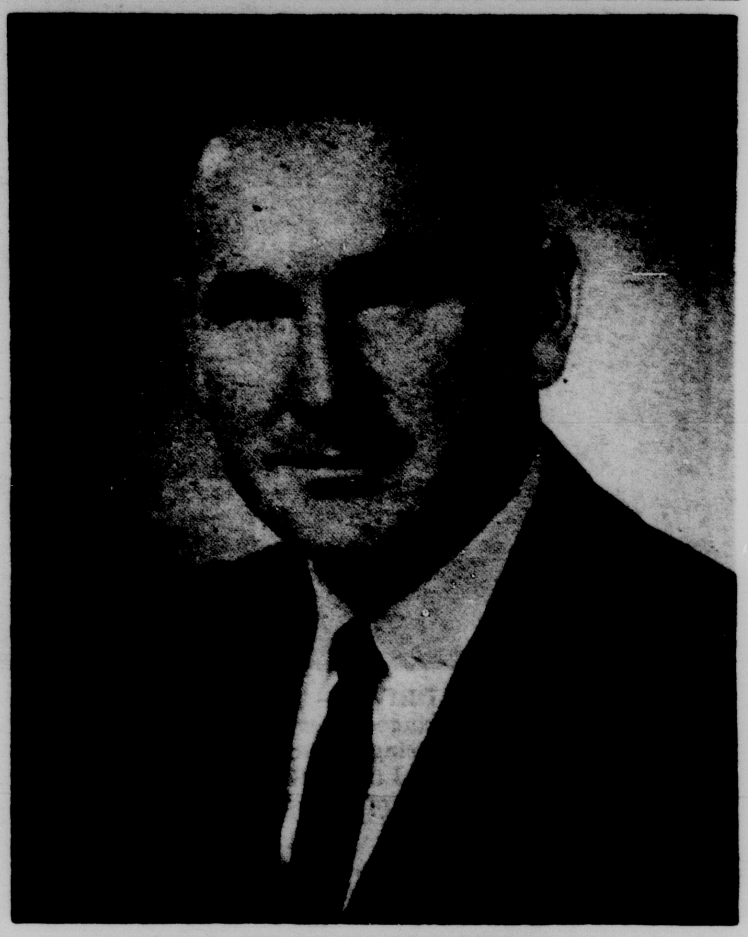
All of the operas are sung in English so that the audience might have a better understanding of the story plot.

Musclesbound For 'Slyvia'

Anthony Caruso has been signed by producer Martin Poll to play "Muscles," small-time hood and penny arcade bouncer, in "Sylvia," a Paramount release starring Carroll Baker and George Maharis.

Caruso, well established as a rugged character actor, claims that as much as he enjoys his roles, some day he'd like to be cast in a more off-beat part, like that of a sensitive composer or painter.

'THE ENTERTAINERS' — Carol Burnett (left), Bill Hayburn and Caterina Valente are the three stars currently and songs and sparkle to the new hour-long variety series, "The Entertainers," seen Fridays on channel 11.



CAPT. PAUL BALLANTYNE

Solo dancer for this production will be Miss Marietta Wilhelm who is a student of Norman Cornick and attends Cheyenne Mountain High School. She plays the part of Susan the Silent who does all of her talking, and very well we must say, with her feet.

Other dancers include Linda Borgeson, Diane Novosad, Malissa Davis, Trina DeLaney, Cindy Winn, Esther Geoffrey, Terrie Reeves, Jim Francis, Gary Masters, Tyrone Brown, Leslie Graiffman, and, of course, Norman Cornick.

Tickets for "Finian's Rainbow" are $2.50 and may be obtained by sending a check to P. O. Box 1051 or calling Mrs. Reimer at 636-2688. Season tickets for the chorales four shows this season are only $7.50 and season ticket holders will have first choice of nights for "Finian's Rainbow." Early reservations are advised.

ECSTACY — There are many ways to express ecstasy and in the dance this is one of them as evidenced by James Franics and Esther Geoffrey. The couple will be featured along with other dances in the Colorado Springs Chorale production of "Finian's Rainbow." (Gazette Telegraph Photo)

Type-Casting?

Before Janet Lake (who may be seen as Walter Brennan's secretary in ABC-TV's new series, "The Tycoon"), started acting, she worked briefly as a secretary at the Valley Forge Army Hospital. With this experience behind her she won't have to fake the typing and shorthand for her role in the series.

Not So Rosy

Reginald Rose, creator-writer of "The Defendrs," once worked as a bookkeeper — until it was discovered he'd never before kept books.

Wendy-Cricket

Connie Stevens, who stars as Wendy on ABC-TV's new comedy series, "Wendy and Me," was known to millions for her role as Cricket Blake on ABC-TV's "Hawaiian Eye."

GOOD APPETITE by Marguerite Mitchell

It's Here Folks, Finally A Prime Southland Recipe

Way back last March when LEISURETIME Editor Ray Herst wrote a promo for this column, he promised readers that I'd print some prime Southland recipes.

So to keep the editor happy, here is one of the most popular of all Southern dishes, Red Beans and Rice. This dish originated down Latin American way but luckily came north; at least as far as Louisiana where it is almost a staple meal in many of the bayou regions.

It's a good dish for a cold snowy night, and besides being hearty and filling, is quite cheap. Too, it can be prepared early in the morning and reheated at dinner time while the rice is cooking.

To prepare, begin the night before by soaking one cup of dried red beans in water to cover. Kidney beans will do if you can't find the smaller red beans.

The next morning, saute ¾ pound of ham shank with bone or ¼ pound of chopped bacon in a Dutch oven or a heavy-bottomed pot, until 2 tablespoons of fat are rendered. Remove the meat from the pot and stir in 2 tablespoons flour to make a roux. Cook this until the roux is a dark brown, stirring constantly. Add 3 cups of water, the beans, 1 cup chopped onion, 4 garlic cloves, chopped, and 1 bay leaf. Return meat to the pot, cover tightly, and simmer over low heat for 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Salt to taste and simmer 1 hour longer, stirring often. Mind you don't salt too much for the ham or bacon also supplies this ingredient.

Serve the bean mixture on a bed of fluffy rice and garnish with ¼ cup of minced fresh parsley. This amount will serve four.

Sometimes, to vary this, Southerners substitute Spoon Bread for the rice, but serve this delectable fare as a side dish rather than heaping it with the bean mixture.

To make Southern Spoon Bread, scald 3 cups of milk and gradually add 1 cup white corn meal, stirring briskly to prevent any lumps forming. Cook this over a medium heat for about 5 minutes until it thickens, stirring constantly. Add 2 teaspoons butter, 1 each teaspoon sugar and salt, and let the mixture cool for about 15 minutes. Separate 3 eggs; beat the yolks and stir into the slightly cooled pudding; then beat the egg whites until stiff and and fold gently into the mixture.

Pour into a greased 2 - quart baking dish and bake in a preheated 350 - degree over for 45 minutes. Serve hot from the baking dish with plenty of butter. And eat with a spoon, naturally.

Spoon Bread is often served with roast beef in the South as the British serve Yorkshire Pudding.

African Pictures Seek To Correct Impressions

PICTURES OF AFRICA — A pictoral history of Africa, to be published next spring by Viking Press, will be serialized in Ebony magazine prior to publication.

The first of five condensed articles, written by William Leo Hansberry, will appear in the November issue of the national Negro monthly.

The book, "Ageless Africa: A Pictorial History of the Golden Past," shatters the European myth of Africa being "a dark continent." Dr. James H. Robinson, director of Crossroads Africa, says the book promises to "point the way out of the Edgar Rice Burroughs jungle of legend, speculation and abominable ignorance of the African continent."

Dr. Hansberry is an eminent scholar in the field. Illustrations and commentaries will be furnished by E. Harper Johnson, co-author.

The men met for the first time in 1961 following a feature in Ebony magazine on Dr. Hansberry entitled "The School Nobody Knows." The historian and the illustrator have done exhaustive research in Africa. The result of their work, they believe, will be to correct the distorted myth of Africa's past.

REMINISCENCES, by Douglas MacArthur (McGraw-Hill, $6.95): Right up to the last weeks of his life, General MacArthur was writing in longhand the story of his life. He left a remarkable document revealing the character of one of the great military personalities of time. Macarthur was a towering egoist, a tough but sensitive individualist. I never crossed his mind, at least in his mature years, that he could be wrong. He possessed a gladiator's courage but, to many, his bravery was showy. Qualified persons have seldom questioned his generalship, but quite a few have found fault with his political thinking. He is worthy of study by this and later generations. The MacArthur writing style at times reads like a 19th century war novel. For example: " 'Give me Chatillon, MacArthur' he said, his voice strained and harsh. 'Give me Chatillon, or a list of five thousand casualties.' His abruptness startled me. 'All right, General,' I assured him, 'we'll take it, or my name will head the list.' " MacArthur recalls the great controversies that dotted his career. He saved his deepest cut for President Truman, who relieved him of command in Korea and thus ended his military career. "It was quite apparent," the general wrote of Truman, "his nerves were at the breaking point — not only his nerves, but what was far more menacing in the Chief Executive of a country at war — his nerve." In an age when the concept of war changed with the development of nuclear arms, Macarthur was to go to his grave believing as passionately as ever that "There is no substitute for victory."

THE BERENSON COLLECTION (Art Gallerie Ricordi, Milan, $100): This big beautiful art book was compiled by Bernard Berenson's friends, Roberto Pupini and Franco Russoli, and reproduces the Italian Renaissance art works and a few others which Berenson had brought together in his home, I Tatti, for his own enjoyment. "These hangings, paintings, these art objects were not acquired first and foremost with an eye to making a collection, but almost exclusively to adorn my abode," Berenson said when it was proposed that they be reproduced in book form. "When that was completed some 30 years ago I stopped buying." Thus Berenson, the foremost critic and commentator on Italian Renaissance art, and master of I Tatti, revealed one of his first principles in judging art — it must have a personal meaning to the viewer — it must be good to live with. The reproductions in this book with comments from Berenson's writings form a sort of post-graduate course in art appreciation. I Tatti is now being maintained with Berenson's collection by Harvard University and the city of Florence for the benefit of art lovers and students.

THE FORTRESS, by Catherine Gavin (Doubleday $4.95): A high-grade historical novel covering a rather obscure area of the past — the Baltic campaigns of the Crimean war.

Britain and France sent sizable forces into the Baltic Sea during that war, which was fought largely in the south of Europe. The Anglo-French force scored no decisive victories, but they did keep Russia's northern fleet bottled up behind its defenses.

Miss Gavin tells this story in terms of an American sea captain, Brand Endicott, and the madcap Finnish noblewoman, Alix Gyllenlove, who persuaded him to enlist in the British navy in the hope that a Russian defeat would mean independence for Finland.

The fortress of the title is Seavborg (now Suomenlinna), which guarded the sea approaches to Helsingfors (now Helsinki), the capital of Finland. The Anglo-French navy knocked Sveaborg to pieces in one of the greatest of the Crimea's Baltic engagements, but were unable to capture it.

"The Fortress" is an entertaining and carefully researched account of a century-old rehearsal for conflict between Russia and the West.

Top Singers Cast in Leading Roles For 'Finian's Rain bow' Production

Some of the area's finest singers are collaborating in bringing to the Fine Arts Center stage the Colorado Springs Choral Society's production of "Finian's Rainbow." This delightful musical will be performed under the direction of Capt. Thomas Smith and David Porter on November 5, 6 and 7.

Taking the part of Sharon McLonergan, Finian's lovely daughter, and the leading lady, will be Miss Rita Mackey. Miss Mackey came to Colo. Springs last June. She was born in Chicago of a musical family and was raised in Dubuque, Iowa where she attended the Mary Crest College. Coming to Colorado Springs to attend the summer music session at Colorado College under a piano scholarship, she studied with Dr. Max Lanner. She also studied music education with Dr. Earl Juhas and music theory from Dr. Seay and is currently a student at the College.

While in Dubuque, Miss Mackey captured the leading roles in "The King and I", "South Pacific" and "The Merry Widow". These produtctions were by the Dubuque Civic Players. And now, in "Finian's Rainbow", Rita gets the opportunity for the role of Sharon which calls for a great deal of acting as well as almost twice the amount of singing done in any musical. Miss Mackey has an abundance of talent which should see her far in her chosen field as a singer in musicals.

Every musical show must have a hero. And "Finian's Rainbow" has one in Woody Mahoney, a guitar carryin' baritone, who comes back to Rainbow Valley to save his sister's land from falling into the clutching hands of the villians. It is only natural, musical books being what they are, that he falls in love with the heroine. One of the most demanding parts musically, Woody will be played by Richard Wederquist.

Dick is vocal teacher at Washington Irving Junior High

RITA MACKEY

School. He settled in Colorado Springs in 1962 coming here from Milford, Iowa where he taught school for two years. He attended Colorado State University, graduating with a Bachelor of Music degree. While at CSU he studied voice with Professor Edward Anderson. Dick was with the Air Force working with electronics for four years before he began his teaching career.

His vast experience includes male leads in "Brigadoon," "Kiss Me Kate" and "The Boyfriend." Since he has been in Colorado Springs he has performed with the Colo. Springs Chorale in many programs inuluding "Showboat" and also has performed with the Civic Players.

He and his wife, Donna, a German teacher at Cheyenne Mountain High School, have two lovely daughters.

No show is complete without supporting characters and "Finian's Rainbow" is no exception. Jack Connelly plays the part of "Finian" and Og, the Leprechaun is played by Rolf Zinger. Others in order of appearance include: Jarrett Robertson as Buzz Collins; Joe Manci, the Sheriff; Leslie Graifmann, First Sharecropper; Wayne Bell, Second Sharecropper; Marrietta Wilhelm, Susan Mahoney (dancer); Sammy Bryant as Henry; Ada McGurk, third Sharecropper; Mary Ann McRae, Fourth Sharecropper; Howard, the butler, Charles Marlin; and one of the most forceful characters, Senator Billboard Rawkins is played by Edward J. Rodgers, Jr. James Bowers is the first Geologist and Theodius Richardson, second geologist; Diane is Debbie Singer; Honey Lou, Cassandra Theus; Preacher John, Gene Ives; Mr. Robust, William Praether; The Three Passion Gospelers are William Jolley, Theodies Richardson and Tyrone Brown. The Deputies are played by Noe Diaz and David Zimmerly.

Tickets for "Finian's Rainbow" are $2.50. Season tickets for the four program series are only $7.50 and may be had by calling Mrs. Reimer at 636-2688 or by sending a check to P.O. Box 1051.

Auditions Set For Monday For 'Tosca'

Auditions for the Colorado Springs Opera Association's presentation of "Tosca" will be held Monday evening, Oct. 5, at 7 p.m. in the choir house of Grace Episcopal Church, Monument and Tejon Streets.

According to Henry Hester, president of the local opera group, invitations to audition for parts in the Puccini opera have been sent to each resident of Colorado who has sung solo roles in the past two years and to each resident who has auditioned for the opera group since June 1 of this year.

Invitations were also sent to each church choir for consideration by the members and to each vocal teacher for discussion with their pupils.

"Tosca" is to be presented at the Wasson High Auditorium on Feb. 5-6. "Faust" opens the opera season at the Wasson Auditorium on Oct. 23-24. Final offering of the season will be "Die Fledermaus" to be held on April 3-4.

All of the operas are sung in English so that the audience might have a better understanding of the story plot.

Musclesbound For 'Slyvia'

Anthony Caruso has been signed by producer Martin Poll to play "Muscles," small-time hood and penny arcade bouncer, in "Sylvia," a Paramount release starring Carroll Baker and George Maharis.

Caruso, well established as a rugged character actor, claims that as much as he enjoys his roles, some day he'd like to be cast in a more off-beat part, like that of a sensitive composer or painter.

'THE ENTERTAINERS' — Carol Burnett (left), Bob Newhart and Caterina Valente are the stars whose comedy and songs add sparkle to the new hour-long variety series, "The Entertainers," seen Fridays on channel 11.

CAPT. PAUL BALLANTYNE

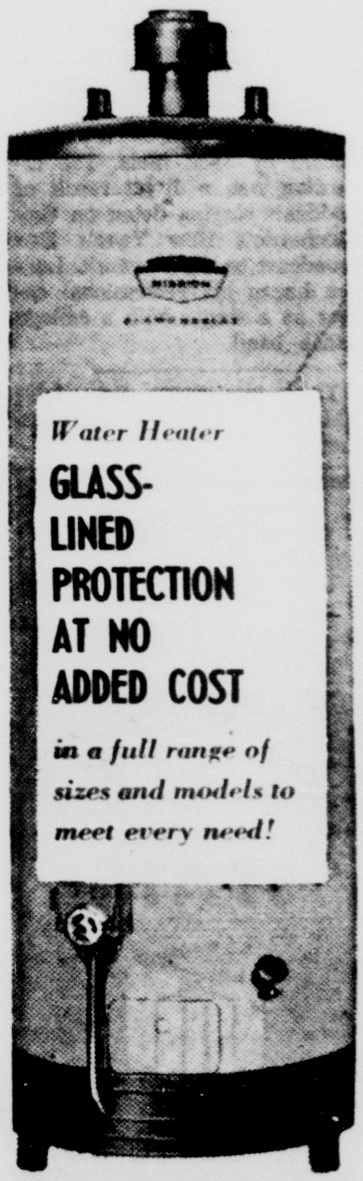
Julius Baird, musical and production director for the opera plans to have the cast sing selections in Acts One and Two of the Gounod opera.



Stravinsky Snarls Back At Criticism

STRAVINSKY SNARLS — The old master, who has been assailed by the composer and writer Vernon Duke in the new music monthly "Listen" in New York, has struck back, in a controversy which has become so heated that some Stravinsky admirers have canceled their subscription to the tabloid. Duke's articles blast Stravinsky's reported stranglehold as "dictator" of modern music, which may come somewhat as a surprise to the avant garde which seems to regard him as an old dada, although there may be conservatories and music departments where he apparently is still thought of as the grand khan of modern music.

A typical reaction in this battle which seems to embrace two continents, comes from Victor Babin, director of the famous Cleveland Institute of Music, who writes: "The appearance of the article 'Deification of Stravinsky' in the monthly's fourth edition makes it impossible for me to regard your publication as worthwhile reading matter on musical subjects." It should be noted here that the magazine staff comprises a heavy percentage of composers, who also apparently seem to have a fine knack for writing controversial articles in the field of music.

On the other hand, a letter from a musician, Lucy Brown of New York City, said "I played Stravinsky for the City Center Ballet for three years and really had my tummy full."

The most entertaining item, however, in the current issue, printed over the top of Duke's continuing attack on Stravinsky, is an article, or a letter, by Stravinsky himself, which casts a fascinating light on the art of words which the musical master has acquired, and in which he brands Duke as a frustrated composer who lost out, more or less, in the race for fame.

Stravinsky starts out by saying about Duke's article (which we mentioned in an earlier column in this space) "I cannot reply to such a spew — a hose or a refuse-removel department are the proper tools ". . .then he goes on to show battle mettle by saying "I rather relish the opportunity to knock this particular infidel flat. . .the article in question is unadulterated claptrap."

Stravinsky explains, "the spectacle of a bad composer (meaning Duke) going sour is not new, and there is little new in the sourness of the very bad composer V. S. —(Vernon Duke) — to adopt his own system of initialing." He explains further: "The conspicuous failure of Diaghilev's 1925 season—during which a revival of my Le Chant de Rossignol was at least a viable success — was a ballet Zephyre et Flore by V.D. (Vernon Duke). The failure was none of my responsibility, but the fact that Diaghilev performed the piece at all was to some extent my fault. Mistaking youth, charm, and facility for talent, I had recommended the work to Diaghilev — for which kindness I am not visited this curious, forty-year-belated thank-you note. . .Diaghilev forgave me my error. . . he did produce my Apllo a few seasons later, and my early ballets remained in his repertory. I do not think he ever forgave the composer of Zephyre — at least he never asked him for another score.

"That the composer of Zephyre et Flore became the composer of April in Paris, is, I think, the very definition of the composer who fails and who, growing bitter and rebarbative, devotes his decline to Philistine diatribe."

"What I really suspect is that he could forgive me anything but my success. . ."

Stravinsky proceeds to rake Duke over the coals, and comments that "my hide has been toughened by half a century of lashing by inferior critics and envious colleagues, and it is absolutely insensitive to the blows now inflicted on me. . .on the occasion of my 75th birthday I at last got around to speak my mind about some of the people who had been slandering me for half a century. . .I was both flattered and rejuvenated by the realization that my "dehumanized' and 'emotionless' music — asinine words — can still trigger so much very strong emotion. Finally, even a yapping at my heels, when it is all so dedicated and tireless is a tribute. . .I am sorry for V.D. (Vernon Duke) in his plight of musical impotence. . .Perhaps I can even understand and forgive V. D.'s ambition, now satisfied. to be mentioned in my books."

One thing is sure. Stravinsky is a master of the biting phrase, as well as of musical construction, and he ends his verbal missile with a P. S. "Kindly send me whichever future issue of your sheet happens to contain notice of the completed vital statistics of V. D., so that I can send an appropriate wreath."

In the same issue of "Listen," however, Vernon Duke blithely concludes his articles series with a blistering attack, personal and musical, against Stravinsky, and particularly against the production of the "Flood" on television, concluding "what should be of vital concern to young Americans is that such a man continues as the greatest single influence, as a dictator whose word is still law to the majority of our composers, as a musical Father Divine, who succeeded in selling his own brand of musical religion) to the gullible multitudes."

Whatever the merits on both sides, the articles provide scintillating reading for musicians and for the general musical audience, giving insight not simply into the music (for that has to be obtained by listening to it) but also into the battle of personalities from which composers do not seem to be at all exempt, no matter how noble their music may sound, witness the exampie of Beethoven and Wagner.

SEASON MEMBERSHIPS

TYPE FACE COMPETITION — The stage is set, the players alerted, and the curtain is up on the National Type Face Design Competition initiated by Visual Graphics Corporation, manufacturer of the Photo Typositor, photographic typesetting equipment, and producer of film type fonts.

The purpose of this Competition is to discover new display type face designs to produce on film for the more than 1000 present owners of The Photo Typositor, and to add more selectivity to the Company's growing library of film alphabets, now numbering over 300.

In the initial announcement of this Competition, issued in July, the closing date for entries was given as November 30, 1964. That has now been extended to January 31st, 1965.

It was also indicated in our initial release that 3 cash awards would be made — 1st to receive $1000; 2nd, $500; 3rd, $250, with royalties on sales. The cash award winners have now been increased to 15 instead of 3, with 12 to receive $100 each in cash, plus royalties on sales.

The royalty contracts have now been clarified. Each of the 15 winners will receive payments of 25 per cent of the gross sales of his particular alphabet on film. The primary source of these royalties will be the more than 1000 present owners of the Photo Typositor, which is steadily growing in number and may reach 2000 by the time the winning alphabets are ready for market.

The Competition is open to all students and professionals in the U.S.A.

Type face designs submitted must be accompanied by Official Entry Blank, which contains details of specifications and procedures.

12 nationally known authorities on art, design, typography have consented to serve as judges: Arnold Bank, Lester Beall, Lucian Bernahrd, Will Burtin, Louis Dorfsman, Alvin Eisenman, Robert Jones, Herb Lubalin, Paul Rand, Klaus Schmidt, Bradbury Thompson and Carl Zahn. The 4 judges who will participate in this first Competition are: Lucian Bernhard, Alvin Eisenman, Paul Rand and Bradbury Thompson.

A brochure describing the purpose and plan of the Competition — and a 19x25 poster announcing the event — are being widely distributed.

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

I had planned to start a series of articles on club members and their dog activities this week with a story about Mrs. Ray Walker (Pat to her friends) but she ducked out on me and is now in Texas showing her Poodles in the big show circuit there. I didn't have time to get her story before she left so if she gets back in time before the next deadline rolls around for this column I will start the series next week.

I really pulled a blooper in last week's column and got my wrists soundly slapped for it too. So here goes my correction for all to see.

I said that Mr. Lew Buckley, president of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club handled an Irish Setter, Pine Meadows Tam O'Shanter to a Winners Bitch win at the show in Denver Sunday. Actually the dog was handled by Mr. Fred Hilgie of Denver and Mr. Buckley is listed in the catalog as the breeder of this fine young dog. So my apologies to all concerned and even to those not concerned.

The writers of informal columns like this one have certain advantages, like speaking their minds on occasions. I have not done this often because after-all who am I to expound my views of the dog world. I am not, and have never claimed to be, an authority on dogs. I get many calls from people with dog problems and I do my best to answer them. If I do not have the answer, and many times I do not, I always refer these calls to someone of authority. I have had a lot of fun doing this and have met many nice people over the phone, many of whom I will never meet in person. The purpose of this column in the first place was to acquaint the people of Colorado Springs with our local kennel club. I feel that I have some small measure of success along this line.

A few years back my husband and I raised and showed Afghan Hounds. We did most of our showing in the Rocky Mountain area. We loved every minute of it, and a lot of fun but certainly didn't set the world on fire. We had some nice dogs, we had some pretty sorry looking specimens, but we had fun.

The point I am trying to make, in a round about way, is that not EVERYONE has the best dogs, not everyone can breed champions. NO ONE has the perfect dog. My biggest gripe in this dog business is the spoil - sport, the poor loser, the misplaced perfectionist who will not consider the fact that he cannot win everytime. These people take themselves and their dogs too seriously, hate competition. Competition is what makes the world go round. It gives all of us something to strive for.

I am glad to say that these poor sports are in the minority, they do not make up the nucleus of the dog world. There are many fine, open-minded, fair-minded, generous, dog people who in reality do more for their breed by their actions in and around the show ring than by those who so fiercely guard their so-called rights and ignore the rights and ideas of their competitors.

Now that I got that off my chest lets go on to more important things. Don't forget the fun match and obedience trial that the club is sponsoring on Sunday, October 11, at the Armory north of Colorado Springs. If you have any questions about the show I will try to answer them. The number is 495-2143.

GOOD APPETITE by Marguerite Mitchell

It's Here Folks. Finally A Prime Southland Recipe

Way back last March when LEISURETIME Editor Ray Herst wrote a promo for this column, he promised readers that I'd print some prime Southland recipes.

So to keep the editor happy, here is one of the most popular of all Southern dishes, Red Beans and Rice. This dish originated down Latin American way but luckily came north; at least as far as Louisiana where it is almost a staple meal in many of the bayou regions.

It's a good dish for a cold snowy night, and besides being hearty and filling, is quite cheap. Too, it can be prepared early in the morning and reheated at dinner time while the rice is cooking.

To prepare, begin the night before by soaking one cup of dried red beans in water to cover. Kidney beans will do if you can't find the smaller red beans.

The next morning, saute ¾ pound of ham shank with bone or ½ pound of chopped bacon in a Dutch oven or a heavy-bottomed pot, until 2 tablespoons of fat are rendered. Remove the meat from the pot and stir in 2 tablespoons flour to make a roux. Cook this until the roux is a dark borwn, stirring constantly. Add 3 cups of water, the beans, 1 cup chopped onion, 4 garlic cloves, chopped, and 1 bay leaf. Return meat to the pot, cover tightly, and simmer over low heat for 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Salt to taste and simmer 1 hour longer, stirring often. Mind you don't salt too much for the ham or bacon also supplies this ingredient.

Serve the bean mixture on a bed of fluffy rice and garnish with ½ cup of minced fresh parsley. This amount will serve four.

Sometimes, to vary this, Southerners substitute Spoon Bread for the rice, but serve this delectable fare as a side dish rather than heaping it with the bean mixture.

To make Southern Spoon Bread, scald 3 cups of milk and gradually add 1 cup white corn meal, stirring briskly to prevent any lumps forming. Cook this over a medium heat for about 5 minutes until it thickens, stirring constantly. Add 2 teaspoons butter, 1 each teaspoon sugar and salt, and let the mixture cool for about 15 minutes. Separate 3 eggs; beat the yolks and stir into the slightly cooled pudding; then beat the egg whites until stiff and and fold gently into the mixture.

Pour into a greased 2 - quart baking dish and bake in a preheated 350 - degree over for 45 minutes. Serve hot from the baking dish with plenty of butter. And eat with a spoon, naturally.

Spoon Bread is often served with roast beef in the South as the British serve Yorkshire Pudding.

African Pictures Seek To Correct Impressions

PICTURES OF AFRICA — A pictoral history of Africa, to be published next spring by Viking Press, will be serialized in Ebony magazine prior to publication.

The first of five condensed articles, written by William Leo Hansberry, will appear in the November issue of the national Negro monthly.

The book, "Ageless Africa: A Pictorial History of the Golden Past," shatters the European myth of Africa being "a dark continent." Dr. James H. Robinson, director of Crossroads Africa, says the book promises to "point the way out of the Edgar Rice Burroughs jungle of legend, speculation and abominable ignorance of the African continent."

Dr. Hansberry is an eminent scholar in the field. Illustrations and commentaries will be furnished by E. Harper Johnson, co-author.

The men met for the first time in 1961 following a feature in Ebony magazine on Dr. Hansberry entitled "The School Nobody Knows." The historian and the illustrator have done exhaustive research in Africa. The result of their work, they believe, will be to correct the distorted myth of Africa's past.

REMINISCENCES, by Douglas MacArthur (McGraw-Hill, $6.95): Right up to the last weeks of his life, General MacArthur was writing in longhand the story of his life. He left a remarkable document revealing the character of one of the great military personalities of time. Macarthur was a towering egoist, a tough but sensitive individualist. I never crossed his mind, at least in his mature years, that he could be wrong. He possessed a gladiator's courage but, to many, his bravery was showy. Qualified persons have seldom questioned his generalship, but quite a few have found fault with his political thinking. He is worthy of study by this and later generations. The MacArthur writing style at times reads like a 19th century war novel. For example: " 'Give me Chatillon, MacArthur' he said, his voice strained and harsh. 'Give me Chatillon, or a list of five thousand casualties.' His abruptness startled me. 'All right, General,' I assured him, 'we'll take it, or my name will head the list.' " MacArthur recalls the great controversies that dotted his career. He saved his deepest cut for President Truman, who relieved him of command in Korea and thus ended his military career. "It was quite apparent," the general wrote of Truman, "his nerves were at the breaking point — not only his nerves, but what was far more menacing in the Chief Executive of a country at war — his nerve." In an age when the concept of war changed with the development of nuclear arms, Macarthur was to go to his grave believing as passionately as ever that "There is no substitute for victory."

THE BERENSON COLLECTION (Arti Graficne Ricordi, Milan, $100): This big beautiful art book was compiled by Bernard Berenson's friends, Roberto Papini and Franco Russoli, and reproduces the Italian Renaissance art works and a few others which Berenson had brought together in his home, I Tatti, for his own enjoyment. "These hangings, paintings, these art objects were not acquired first and foremost with an eye to making a collection, but almost exclusively to adorn my abode," Berenson said when it was proposed that they be reproduced in book form. "When that was completed some 30 years ago I stopped buying." Thus Berenson, the foremost critic and commentator on Italian Renaissance art, and master of I Tatti, revealed one of his first principles in judging art — it must have a personal meaning to the viewer — it must be good to live with. The reproductions in this book with comments from Berenson's writings form a sort of post-graduate course in art appreciation. I Tatti is now being maintained with Berenson's collection by Harvard University and the city of Florence for the benefit of art lovers and students.

THE FORTRESS, by Catherine Gavin (Doubleday $4.95): A high-grade historical novel covering a rather obscure area of the past — the Baltic campaigns of the Crimean war.

Britain and France sent sizable forces into the Baltic Sea during that war, which was fought largely in the south of Europe. The Anglo-French force scored no decisive victories, but they did keep Russia's northern fleet bottled up behind its defenses.

Miss Gavin tells this story in terms of an American sea captain. Brand Endicott, and the madcap Finnish noblewoman, Alix Gyllenlove, who persuaded him to enlist in the British navy in the hope that a Russian defeat would mean independence for Finland.

The fortress of the title is Seavborg (now Suomenlinna), which guarded the sea approaches to Helsingfors (now Helsinki), the capital of Finland. The Anglo-French navy knocked Sveaborg to pieces in one of the greatest of the Crimea's Baltic engagements, but were unable to capture it.

"The Fortress" is an entertaining and carefully researched account of a century-old rehearsal for conflict between Russia and the West.

Carroll Signs to Play Jean Harlow

HOLLYWOOD: — "Jean Harlow," a major motion picture based on the stormy and controversial life of one of Hollywood's greatest screen stars, will be filmed by Joseph E. Levine in association with Paramount Pictures Corporation, with Carroll Baker signed to portray the title role.

The production is a part of the 23 film association originally announced by Levine and Paramount at a Hollywood press conference on July 28, 1964, at which time Levine stated that two of the properties could not be revealed because legal details had not yet been worked out. One of these properties, Levine said, was "Jean Harlow."

The announcement of the production and Miss Baker in the starring role was made by Mr. Levine, President of Embassy Pictures Corp., at a press conference. At the same time, Mr. Levine revealed that Gordon Douglas had been engaged to direct the multi million dollar film and that actual preproduction has started following a year of research.

In naming Carroll Baker to the starring role, Mr. Levine said: "Jean Harlow' presents the tailor - made vehicle for Carroll Baker's fiery talents and is the logical successor to her role of Rina in 'The Carpetbaggers,' the biggest grossing non-roadshow film in history."

Mr. Levine added: "I am delighted to once again star Carroll Baker in such an important motion picture and am looking forward to an extended relationship which will bring to fruition several long range plans for other film properties."

The film, to be personally produced by Mr. Levine, will be a faithful translation of Miss Harlow's life within the context of the period of her screen stardom. The picture will portray the actress as a victim of her times and her own celebrity.

The late Jean Harlow achieved international stardom with the release of "Hell's Angels." She was known as "The Platinum Blonde," and was a frank and unabashed personality who found fame through her hair coloring and the sheath - like costumes she wore on and off the screen.

"Jean Harlow" will be produced in color and wide screen and is budgeted at a cost of several million dollars.

Skiing Film to Be Shown Today at Fine Arts Center

"This slope will never be conquered except in a flying machine," said Judge James Wickersham after he turned back at the 8,100 ft. level on Mount McKinley's north face in 1903.

Sixty years later during the shooting of his new film Hans Gmoser with seven companions was able to climb McKinley's north side for the first time. Not with a flying machine but with skis. After reaching the North Peak they went on to ski down the southwest side of North America's highest peak and thereby also accomplishing the first ski traverse of this giant mountain.

"Skis over McKinley" which will be shown today at the Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m., is the product of a four-month hectic filming spree which Gmoser described in a letter to the editors of "Skiing."

"Sometimes after one week in the mountains I had only 5 hours to get ready for another long trip and those trips are no picnic. I have to be everything — campbuilder, cook, guide and packhorse, not to mention photographer.

"My companions on these tours were Bob Smith, a dentist from San Francisco, Sam Southwick, a USAF doctor, Starr Walton, this year's US National Ski Champion, Linda Crutchfield of the Canadian National Ski Team, Jim McConkey, Alta's famous deep powder expert, as well as Wolf Keller and Mike Wiegele, two Austrian born skiers now living in Calgary. At one point we were also joined by Herbert Matz of Montreal who thought nothing of hiking 5000 ft. up the mountain on one leg and two crutches. Coming down he kept up with the best of them, even jumping the bumps — on one ski only!

"By the middle of May we thoroughly crisscrossed an area of 20,000 square miles in the mountains of British Columbia and Alberta. Most of it on foot and skis, some of it by car, plane and helicopter, camping mostly in the snow on vast galciers or in some forgotten mountain valley. During that time I shot 6000 ft of film, my weight wasdown to 143 lbs. (I am 6 foot 2") and my last haircut was two months overdue. I hate to tell you what I looked like.

"Yet my most ambitious and strenuous trip was still around the corner. On May 22nd I set out with seven other companions to shoot the main feature of this year's film. This took us up to Alaska and eventually to the summit of North America's highest peak, Mount McKinley. In reaching the peak we made the first ascent of the famous Wickersham Wall, a tremendous snow and ice flank rising 14,000 vertical feet in one uninterrupted line to the summit. While on the climb we had to carry our 5 ft. short skis most of the time up sheer ice towers and precipituous slopes. But they proved a tremendous asset on the way down the southwest side of Mount McKinley. Even in 12 feet of newly fallen snow we were able to ski with our 60-pound packs and enjoy the run which offered a 9000 ft vertical drop."

Really Smiley

After 35 years, Smiley Burnette is finally Smiley Burnette, officially. The veteran performer was born Lester Alvin Burnette 53 years ago in Summum, Ill. Now Burnette, regularly featured on "Petticoat Junction," has changed his first name legally to Smiley, the nickname he has been using since 1920. He assumed it while serving as master of ceremonies of a radio series for children in Tuscola, Ill.

The first man to bowl a 300 game in the American Bowling Congress in 1903 was William J. Knox of Philadelphia.

FEATURED IN FILM — Jim McConkey, newly appointed director of the Park City Ski School, carves a high turn on the Illecillewaett Glacier in British Columbia's Selkirk Mountains. The powder skier will be seen in action in "Skis Over McKinley" which will be shown today at the Fine Arts Center, sponsored by the Colorado College Mountain Club.

No Suntan For Jerry

Jerry Lewis is avoiding the sun's rays for the duration of filming The Disorderly Orderly," a Paramount release.

Even aboard his boat, "The Pussycat," on which he spends his weekends, Jerry shuns getting a tan. For much of the comedy, Jerry plays a hypochondriac hospital orderly —and a tan would make the character look too healthy.

Stravinsky Snarls Back At Criticism

STRAVINSKY SNARLS — The old master, who has been assailed by the composer and writer Vernon Duke in the new music monthly "Listen" in New York, has struck back, in a controversy which has become so heated that some Stravinsky admirers have canceled their subscription to the tabloid. Duke's articles blast Stravinsky's reported stranglehold as "dictator" of modern music, which may come somewhat as a surprise to the avant garde which seems to regard him as an old dodo, although there may be conservatories and music departments where he apparently is still thought of as the grand khan of modern music.

A typical reaction in this battle which seems to embrace two continents, comes from Victor Babin, director of the famous Cleveland Institute of Music, who writes: "The appearance of the article 'Deification of Stravinsky' in the monthly's fourth edition makes it impossible for me to regard your publication as worthwhile reading matter on musical subjects." It should be noted here that the magazine staff comprises a heavy percentage of composers, who also apparently seem to have a fine knack for writing controversial articles in the field of music.

On the other hand, a letter from a musician, Lucy Brown of New York City, said "I played Stravinsky for the City Center Ballet for three years and really had my tummy full."

The most entertaining item, however, in the current issue, printed over the top of Duke's continuing attack on Stravinsky, is an article, or a letter, by Stravinsky himself, which casts a fascinating light on the art of words which the musical master has acquired, and in which he brands Duke as a frustrated composer who lost out, more or less, in the race for fame.

Stravinsky starts out by saying about Duke's article (which we mentioned in an earlier column in this space) "I cannot reply to such a spew — a hose or a refuse-removel department are the proper tools ". . .then he goes on to show battle mettle by saying "I rather relish the opportunity to knock this particular infidel flat. . .the article in question is unadulterated claptrap."

Stravinsky explains, "the spectacle of a bad composer (meaning Duke) going sour is not new, and there is little new in the sourness of the very bad composer V. S. —(Vernon Duke) — to adopt his own system of initialing." He explains further: "The conspicuous failure of Diaghilev's 1925 season—during which a revival of my Le Chant de Rossignol was at least a viable success — was a ballet Zephyre et Flore by V.D. (Vernon Duke). The failure was none of my responsibility, but the fact that Diaghilev performed the piece at all was to some extent my fault. Mistaking youth, charm, and facility for talent, I had recommended the work to Diaghilev — for which kindness I am not visited this curious, forty-year-belated thank-you note. . .Diaghilev forgave me my error. . . he did produce my Apllo a few seasons later, and my early ballets remained in his repertory. I do not think he ever forgave the composer of Zephyre — at least he never asked him for another score.

"That the composer of Zephyre et Flore became the composer of April in Paris, is, I think, the very definition of the composer who fails and who, growing bitter and rebarbative, devotes his decline to Philistine diatribe."

"What I really suspect is that he could forgive me anything but my success. . ."

Stravinsky proceeds to rake Duke over the coals, and comments that "my hide has been toughened by half a century of lashing by inferior critics and envious colleagues, and it is absolutely insensitive to the blows now inflicted on me. . .on the occasion of my 75th birthday I at last got around to speak my mind about some of the people who had been slandering me for half a century. . .I was both flattered and rejuvenated by the realization that my "dehumanized' and 'emotionless' music — asinine words — can still trigger so much very strong emotion. Finally, even a yapping at my heels, when it is all so dedicated and tireless is a tribute. . .I am sorry for V.D. (Vernon Duke) in his plight of musical impotence. . .Perhaps I can even understand and forgive V. D.'s ambition, now satisfied, to be mentioned in my books."

One thing is sure. Stravinsky is a master of the biting phrase, as well as of musical construction, and he ends his verbal missile with a P. S. "Kindly send me whichever future issue of your sheet happens to contain notice of the completed vital statistics of V. D., so that I can send an appropriate wreath."

In the same issue of "Listen," however, Vernon Duke blithely concludes his articles series with a blistering attack, personal and musical, against Stravinsky, and particularly against the production of the "Flood" on television, concluding "what should be of vital concern to young Americans is that such a man continues as the greatest single influence, as a dictator whose word is still law to the majority of our composers, as a musical Father Divine, who succeeded in selling his own brand of musical relfgion) to the gullible multitudes."

Whatever the merits on both sides, the articles provide scintillating reading for musicians and for the general musical audience, giving insight not simply into the music (for that has to be obtained by listening to it) but also into the battle of personalities from which composers do not seem to be at all exempt, no matter how noble their music may sound, witness the example of Beethoven and Wagner.

SEASON MEMBERSHIPS

TYPE FACE COMPETITION — The stage is set, the players alerted, and the curtain is up on the National Type Face Design Competition initiated by Visual Graphics Corporation, manufacturer of the Photo Typositor, photographic typesetting equipment, and producer of film type fonts.

The purpose of this Competition is to discover new display type face designs to produce on film for the more than 1000 present owners of The Photo Typositor, and to add more selectivity to the Company's growing library of film alphabets, now numbering over 600.

In the initial announcement of this Competition, issued in July, the closing date for entries was given as November 30, 1964. That has now been extended to January 31st, 1965.

It was also indicated in our initial release that 3 cash awards would be made — 1st to receive $1000; 2nd, $500; 3rd, $250, with royalties on sales. The cash award winners have now been increased to 15 instead of 3, with 12 to receive $100 each in cash, plus royalties on sales.

The royalty contracts have now been clarified. Each of the 15 winners will receive payments of 25 per cent of the gross sales of his particular alphabet on film. The primary source of these royalties will be the more than 1000 present owners of the Photo Typositor, which is steadily growing in number and may reach 2000 by the time the winning alphabets are ready for market.

The Competition is open to all students and professionals in the U.S.A.

Type face designs submitted must be accompanied by Official Entry Blank, which contains details of specifications and procedures.

12 nationally known authorities on art, design, typography have consented to serve as judges: Arnold Bank, Lester Beall, Lucian Bernahrd, Will Burtin, Louis Dorfsman, Alvin Eisenman, Robert Jones, Herb Lubalin, Paul Rand, Klaus Schmidt, Bradbury Thompson and Carl Zahn. The 4 judges who will participate in this first Competition are: Lucian Bernhard, Alvin Eisenman, Paul Rand and Bradbury Thompson.

A brochure describing the purpose and plan of the Competition — and a 19x25 poster announcing the event — are being widely distributed.

COLORADO SPRINGS KENNEL CLUB NOTES

by Mary Urban

I had planned to start a series of articles on club members and their dog activities this week with a story about Mrs. Ray Walker (Pat to her friends) but she ducked out on me and is now in Texas showing her Poodles in the big show circuit there. I didn't have time to get her story before she left so if she gets back in time before the next deadline rolls around for this column I will start the series next week.

I really pulled a blooper in last week's column and got my wrists soundly slapped for it too. So here goes my correction for all to see.

I said that Mr. Lew Buckley, president of the Colorado Springs Kennel Club handled an Irish Setter, Pine Meadows Tam O'Shanter to a Winners Bitch win at the show in Denver Sunday. Actually the dog was handled by Mr. Fred Hiigle of Denver and Mr. Buckley is listed in the catalog as the breeder of this fine young dog. So my apologies to all concerned and even to those not concerned.

The writers of informal columns like this one have certain advantages, like speaking their minds on occasions. I have not done this often because after-all who am I to expound my views of the dog world. I am not, and have never claimed to be, an authority on dogs. I get many calls from people with dog problems and I do my best to answer them. If I do not have the answer, and many times I do not, I always refer these calls to someone of authority. I have had a lot of fun doing this and have met many nice people over the phone, many of whom I will never meet in person. The purpose of this column in the first place was to acquaint the people of Colorado Springs with our local kennel club. I feel that I have some small measure of success along this line.

A few years back my husband and I raised and showed Afghan Hounds. We did most of our showing in the Rocky Mountain area. We loved every minute of it, and a lot of fun but certainly didn't set the world on fire. We had some nice dogs, we had some pretty sorry looking specimens, but we had fun.

The point I am trying to make, in a round about way, is that not EVERYONE has the best dogs, not everyone can breed champions. NO ONE has the perfect dog. My biggest gripe in this dog business is the spoil - sport, the poor loser, the misplaced perfectionist who will not consider the fact that he cannot win everytime. These people take themselves and their dogs too seriously, hate competition. Competition is what makes the world go round. It gives all of us something to strive for.

I am glad to say that these poor sports are in the minority, they do not make up the nucleus of the dog world. There are many fine, open-minded, fair-minded, generous, dog people who in reality do more for their breed by their actions in and around the show ring than by those who so fiercely guard their so-called rights and ignore the rights and ideas of their competitors.

Now that I got that off my chest lets go on to more important things. Don't forget the fun match and obedience trial that the club is sponsoring on Sunday, October 11, at the Armory north of Colorado Springs. If you have any questions about the show I will try to answer them. The number is 495-2143.

French Folks Songs Set To Air Over KRCC FM

The scene is bawdy 16th century France. The lady of the house leaves to meet a clandestine lover. . .The master of the house looks around, finds his wife gone and chases the pretty maid into the bedroom. When the wife returns she confesses her activities and the husband in turn confesses his. Both speak with the quick comic lines of a modern "dirty" joke.

The next scene is also in 16th century France. An attractive, young peasant girl insists that she wants to get married, while her mother insists that she is too young. The girls storms out of the house.

"Mother, you'll be sorry. . . I'm going to be a woman whether I'm married or not!"

Where could these scenes be taken from? A French movie: A television show? A paper back novel? No they'll be aired — and in good taste — on an educational FM station in Colorado Springs this year as part of a collection of Folk songs that were sung before the French court between 1539-1540. In fact Colorado College's KRCC FM will have a whole week devoted to French music from popular and folk songs, to some of the great classical masterpieces. Some of the early folk song records that will be heard were the work of Dr. Seay of the college and his brother-in-law, of the French Broadcasting System and are sold commercially here and in Europe.

KRCC-FM the Colorado College station and KSHS FM the school District 11 radio station have a great variety of entertaining and educational programming such as BBC dramas, interviews, and popular and classical music. KSHS FM is one of 150 stations in the country airing National Association of Educational Broadcaster tapes which cover math, literature, social sciences, and music for the elementary level. KRCC FM even has a full one half hour program where 6th graders tell what they have learned that week in school and another one hour slot announced completely in the Greek language.

Also KRCC FM, KSHS FM, and the KLST Stereo FM Radio School, in addition to providing educational and entertaining programming. . .give people that want to develop their talents along the broadcast line, a chance to start, develop, and carry their knowledge to other areas. Former students from KSHS have helped start educational stations in Ft. Collins, Colorado and in New Mexico.

New Exhibition at FAC Features 'Kids and Cars'

"Kinds and Cars," an appealing exhibition of paintings by German children, is now showing at the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center through Oct. 25.

This unique showing, which is the result of a contest sponsored in 1959 by the Mercedes-Benz Co. of Stuttgart, Germany, features 123 of the best drawings of cars done by German school children ages six to 17 years.

An opening reception was held Wednesday by the Fine Arts Center and the National Carl Schurz Assn. which is circulating the show in cooperation with the Internationales Kultur - und - Astauschentrum of Frankfurt.

Reception guests included state and city officials, military personnel, German language teachers at the Air Force Academy and Colorado College, members of the German-American Cultural Society of Colorado Springs and members and guests of the Fine Arts Center.

The exhibition is a thoroughly delightful reflection of the motorized age in which children now live. The universal fondness for cars, buses, trucks etc. was evidenced in the overwhelming response — over 27,000 entries — to this the kids to draw, sketch or paint whatever the auto meant to them.

The independent jury which viewed the original entries said it was an unforgettable experience to see the thousands of pictures in endless variety, but all containing some form of motorized vehicle.

Carroll Signs to Play Jean Harlow

HOLLYWOOD: — "Jean Harlow," a major motion picture based on the stormy and controversial life of one of Hollywood's greatest screen stars, will be filmed by Joseph E. Levine in association with Paramount Pictures Corporation, with Carroll Baker signed to portray the title role.

The production is a part of the 23 film association originally announced by Levine and Paramount at a Hollywood press conference on July 28, 1964, at which time Levine stated that two of the properties could not be revealed because legal details had not yet been worked out. One of these properties, Levine said, was "Jean Harlow."

The announcement of the production and Miss Baker in the starring role was made by Mr. Levine, President of Embassy Pictures Corp., at a press conference. At the same time, Mr. Levine revealed that Gordon Douglas had been engaged to direct the multi million dollar film and that actual preproduction has started following a year of research.

In naming Carroll Baker to the starring role, Mr. Levine said: "Jean Harlow' presents the tailor - made vehicle for Carroll Baker's fiery talents and is the logical successor to her role of Rina in 'The Carpetbaggers,' the biggest grossing non-roadshow film in history."

Mr. Levine added: "I am delighted to once again star Carroll Baker in such an important motion picture and am looking forward to an extended relationship which will bring to fruition several long range plans for other film properties."

The film, to be personally produced by Mr. Levine, will be a faithful translation of Miss Harlow's life within the context of the period of her screen stardom. The picture will portray the actress as a victim of her times and her own celebrity.

The late Jean Harlow achieved international stardom with the release of "Hell's Angels." She was known as "The Platinum Blonde," and was a frank and unabashed personality who found fame through her hair coloring and the sheath - like costumes she wore on and off the screen.

"Jean Harlow" will be produced in color and wide screen and is budgeted at a cost of several million dollars.

* * * * * *

Skiing Film to Be Shown Today at Fine Arts Center

"This slope will never be conquered except in a flying machine," said Judge James Wickersham after he turned back at the 8,100 ft. level on Mount McKinley's north face in 1903.

Sixty years later during the shooting of his new film Hans Gmoser with seven companions was able to climb McKinley's north side for the first time. Not with a flying machine but with skis. After reaching the North Peak they went on to ski down the southwest side of North America's highest peak and thereby also accomplishing the first ski traverse of this giant mountain.

"Skis over McKinley" which will be shown today at the Fine Arts Center at 8 p.m., is the product of a four-month hectic filming spree which Gmoser described in a letter to the editors of "Skiing."

"Sometimes after one week in the mountains I had only 5 hours to get ready for another long trip and those trips are no picnic. I have to be everything — campbuilder, cook, guide and packhorse, not to mention photographer.

"My companions on these tours were Bob Smith, a dentist from San Francisco, Sam Southwick, a USAF doctor, Starr Walton, this year's US National Ski Champion, Linda Crutchfield of the Canadian National Ski Team, Jim McConkey, Alta's famous deep powder expert, as well as Wolf Keller and Mike Wiegele, two Austrian born skiers now living in Calgary. At one point we were also joined by Herbert Matz of Montreal who thought nothing of hiking 5000 ft. up the mountain on one leg and two crutches. Coming down he kept up with the best of them, even jumping the bumps — on one ski only!

"By the middle of May we thoroughly crisscrossed an area of 20,000 square miles in the mountains of British Columbia and Alberta. Most of it on foot and skis, some of it by car, plane and helicopter, camping mostly in the snow on vast galciers or in some forgotten mountain valley. During that time I shot 6000 ft of film, my weight wasdown to 143 lbs. (I am 6 foot 2") and my last haircut was two months overdue. I hate to tell you what I looked like.

"Yet my most ambitious and strenuous trip was still around the corner. On May 22nd I set out with seven other companions to shoot the main feature of this year's film. This took us up to Alaska and eventually to the summit of North America's highest peak, Mount McKinley. In reaching the peak we made the first ascent of the famous Wickersham Wall, a tremendous snow and ice flank rising 14,000 vertical feet in one uninterrupted line to the summit. While on the climb we had to carry our 5 ft. short skis most of the time up sheer ice towers and precipituous slopes. But they proved a tremendous asset on the way down the southwest side of Mount McKinley. Even in 12 feet of newly fallen snow we were able to ski with our 60-pound packs and enjoy the run which offered a 9000 ft vertical drop."

Really Smiley

After 35 years, Smiley Burnette is finally Smiley Burnette, officially. The veteran performer was born Lester Alvin Burnette 53 years ago in Summum, Ill. Now Burnette, regularly featured on "Petticoat Junction," has changed his first name legally to Smiley, the nickname he has been using since 1929. He assumed it while serving as master of ceremonies of a radio series for children in Tuscola, Ill.

The first man to bowl a 300 game in the American Bowling Congress in 1913 was William J. Knox of Philadelphia.

FEATURED IN FILM — Jim McConkey, newly appointed director of the Park City Ski School, carves a high turn on the Illecillewaett Glacier in British Columbia's Selkirk Mountains. The powder skier will be seen in action in "Skis Over McKinley" which will be shown today at the Fine Arts Center, sponsored by the Colorado College Mountain Club.

No Suntan For Jerry

Jerry Lewis is avoiding the sun's rays for the duration of filming The Disorderly Orderly," a Paramount release.

Even aboard his boat, "The Pussycat," on which he spends his weekends, Jerry shuns getting a tan. For much of the comedy, Jerry plays a hypochondriac hospital orderly —and a tan would make the character look too healthy.

Bob Denver, star of "Gilligan's Island," comedy series on the CBS Television Network, plans to install a tape deck in his automobile and learn languages by means of tape recordings while traveling to and from work. French, Spanish, Russian and Chinese are on his lingual curriculum. "I'm interested in communications," he says. "This is one world and the only way we can save it is if we learn to communicate."

French Folks Songs Set To Air Over KRCC FM

The scene is bawdy 16th century France. The lady of the house leaves to meet a clandestine lover. . .The master of the house looks around, finds his wife gone and chases the pretty maid into the bedroom. When the wife returns she confesses her activities and the husband in turn confesses his. Both speak with the quick comic lines of a modern "dirty" joke.

The next scene is also in 16th century France. An attractive, young peasant girl insists that she wants to get married, while her mother insists that she is too young. The girls storms out of the house.

"Mother, you'll be sorry. . . I'm going to be a woman whether I'm married or not!"

Where could these scenes be taken from? A French movie: A television show? A paper back novel? No they'll be aired — and in good taste — on an educational FM station in Colorado Springs this year as part of a collection of Folk songs that were sung before the French court between 1539-1540. In fact Colorado College's KRCC FM will have a whole week devoted to French music from popular and folk songs, to some of the great classical masterpieces. Some of the early folk song records that will be heard were the work of Dr. Seay of the college and his brother-in-law, of the French Broadcasting System and are sold commercially here and in Europe.

KRCC-FM the Colorado College station and KSHS FM the school District 11 radio station have a great variety of entertaining and educational programming such as BBC dramas, interviews, and popular and classical music. KSHS FM is one of 150 stations in the country airing National Association of Educational Broadcaster tapes which cover math, literature, social sciences, and music for the elementary level. KRCC FM even has a full one half hour program where 6th graders tell what they have learned that week in school and another one hour slot announced completely in the Greek language.

Also KRCC FM, KSHS FM, and the KLST Stereo FM Radio School, in addition to providing educational and entertaining programming. . .give people that want to develop their talents along the broadcast line, a chance to start, develop, and carry their knowledge to other areas.
